Move to Put Langer's Wife In Governor's Chair Pushed

Militia Guards Capitol as Legislators Back Plan.

Ole Olson Declares Himself Executive

State Supreme Court Places Lieutenant in Office.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 19 (U.P.).—The North Dakota State Legislature, ruled yesterday by one Governor and today by another, launched an attempt tonight to select a brand-new one, a woman, to do its ruling tomorrow.

Assembling inside the modernistic new capitol which was surrounded by soldiers, the Legislature started a movement to install Mrs. William H. Langer in the executive's office.

The effort to make Mrs. Langer Governor started in the lower house of the Legislature a few hours after her husband, who was Governor yesterday, disappeared.

In the interim, Lieut. Gov. Ole Olson had walked into the Governor's office and declared himself the State's executive.

He backed up his claim with a supreme court ruling, and National Guardsmen who originally were called out by Langer.

Assemblies Recognize Langer as Governor

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 19 (AP).—North Dakota's chaotic political fires burned fiercely today as the State Legislature assembled in special session under a cloud of legal doubt as to its right to convene, and National Guardsmen lined the corridors of the new Statehouse while Gov. Ole H. Olson took possession of the Governor's office. William Langer, ousted Governor, had disappeared.

The situation was further complicated by arrival of a truckload of farmers, avowedly supporters of Langer, removed from office by supreme court order, giving credence to reports that Langer sympathizers might concentrate here to demonstrate.

Called to order by Mrs. Minnie D. Craig, speaker of the House, the lower assembly adopted a resolution that it was convened in its own right. The Senate lacked a quorum but convened by virtue of a quorum in the House.

Langer was expected to appear before the assemblies tomorrow.

Wholesale impeachment of State officials, and possibly supreme court judges who have held Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson was now vested with powers of Governor, was understood to be under consideration.

Polish Flood Toll Is 120

Warsaw, July 19 (AP).—Receding flood waters in southern Poland today left a scene of devastation over a wide area, in which 120 bodies have been recovered, while 180 persons were reported missing.

The rain ceased after three weeks, and the sun shone upon the section stricken with the most destructive flood in the history of the nation. Traffic was resumed on some railroad lines to points which have been entirely cut off.

A wave of water was sweeping down the Vistula Basin today, but as the lower shores of the river are well banked, no difficulties were expected. The crest was expected to reach Warsaw Saturday.

Airplanes and boats penetrating the flooded area reported shortage of food and drinking water, the latter being rationed in some places from tanks at railroad stations.

Johnson Is Signed By Indians for '35

Former Nats Pilot Has Contract Renewed.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19 (AP). Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians Baseball Club of the American League, annonced tonight that he had signed Walter Johnson as the club's manager for the 1935 season.

Spanish Decoration Given Henry Roosevelt

Madrid, July 19 (AP).—The Spanish cabinet today awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of Naval Merit, with a white ribbon, to Henry Roosevelt, United States Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Ribbons of the order are of two colors, white being a recognition of an outstanding naval accomplishment and red denoting distinction in war.

Al Smith, Tammany Settle 5-Year Row

ALFRED E. SMITH.

The former Governor, estranged from Tammany Hall in the turbulent reign of John F. Curry, returned to give his advice and counsel to the new leader, youthful but cautious James J. Dooling.

This action presaged speedy accomplishments of a new charter for New York City, consolidating the out-moded, overlapping municipal and county governments.

"I had a talk with the new leader," Smith said at his office in the Empire State Building. "We discussed the constitutional amendments for a new form of city government. I found his views were very sound. He expressed the desire to be helpful and I think he'll come along in fine shape. He's going to see me next week for a longer discussion."

Asked if their visit foretold a return to influence once more in Tam-

Unified Air Rule Hit by Baker Report

U. S. Held Second to None in Aeronautics Under Present Set-ups.

(Copyright 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Creation of a unified air force—one of the most hotly contested questions in American aeronautical policy—is opposed in the report just made to Secretary Dern by the special aviation committee headed by Newton D. Baker.

The committee, headed by the wartime Secretary of War, based its recommendation on the contention that its three months' study of American aviation problems showed conclusively the United States was second to no other nation in aeronautics.

The committee's findings are that, since the United States' military and naval aviation have developed to their present status through separate Army and Navy Air Corps, it would be folly to make a radical change in the organization.

The report, which contains comprehensive conclusions, data and opinions secured through a study of aeronautical development in other nations, as well as in the United States, and expert testimony from 115 civilian and military aeronautical authorities, will be made public Monday.

The printed report of 75 pages was delivered to Acting Secretary of War Woodring yesterday by the Government Printing Office and arrangements made for its general distribution next week.

In addition to opposing the creation of a united air force, the report said the Army Air Corps lacked sufficient fighting planes for its highest possible wartime efficiency, and recommended the immediate construction of more combat and attack planes. The Army Air Corps has between 1,300 and and 1,400 serviceable planes.

The Baker committee found the ratio of training, observation, transport and other nonfighting types was so high as to drastically reduce the Air Corps' fighting efficiency.

At the present time it is estimated that, despite the fact the United States has more planes, this country ranked below Japan in fighting planes and on an approximate equality with Great Britain.

The world air powers are estimated to rank: Russia and France,

Paris Cabinet Is Near Crisis In Bank Case

The dead hand of Serge Stavisky stirred up a storm which threatened to split the ranks of the cabinet wide open.

Former Premier Andre Tardieu, who charged that the party of his fellow-minister, Edouard Herriot, knew about the Stavisky swindles, was represented as insisting that he will stay in the cabinet as long as Herriot does.

Special Meeting Called.

The Radical Socialist committee will meet tomorrow night to decide on its future policy, and Herriot has been urging his followers to "sleep over" the matter and refrain from precipitate action.

Tardieu, who previously had enjoyed the aged premier's favor, incurred his anger yesterday with an attack on the Radical Socialist government in testimony before a commission investigating the ramifications of the collapse of Stavisky's Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop.

The premier urged the Cabinet to remain together "for the sake of the country," and said that he would come back if necessary.

If the break comes, it was regarded as likely that he would reorganize his government and hold on until September before calling an election.

Charges Weaken Bourse.

Tardieu's charges that the Radical Socialists knew Stavisky was looting France precipitated the most bitter fight in several months and shook confidence on the bourse. Government bonds and francs were sold freely.

The center of the disturbance was shared by Camille Chautemps, also a former Radical Socialist premier, whom Tardieu flatly accused in his testimony before the commission.

Chautemps was said to take the position that the Radical Socialists should withdraw from the cabinet.

Herriot was said, on the other hand, to be considering resigning from the party, or at least from its executive committee, if necessary, rather than from the cabinet.

Arkansas Indicts Official, Trusty in Girl Convict's Death

Little Rock, Ark., July 19 (AP).—A trusty convict guard was indicted today for first-degree murder and the prison official who accompanied him was indicted as an accessory before the fact in the killing of Helen Spence Eaton, escaped convict, on July 11.

The girl was slain 24 hours after she had made her fifth escape from prison, leaving a note she never would be taken alive.

The guard, Frank Martin, who claimed he fired his shotgun at the girl when he overtook her about 9 miles from the Jacksonville prison farm as she attempted to draw a pistol from her blouse, is already under a 21-year sentence for second-degree murder in the killing of a man in Saline County three years ago.

The prison official—V. O. Brockman—who has been ousted as assistant superintendent at the women's prison along with his wife, who was superintendent, was indicted on two other counts, under separate statutes, charging that he permitted the 22-year-old brunette slayer to escape.

Brockman's indictment as an accessory before the fact of murder makes him subject, upon conviction, to the same punishment as the principal, which may be death.

Martin and Brockman left the prison farm in an automobile late Wednesday, the day of the killing, when they received a report from a farmhouse about 8 miles distant that Helen had attempted at gun's point to force a farmer's wife to provide her with automobile transportation.

When the official and the guard saw the fugitive girl, Martin claimed he called on her to halt as she walked ahead of him and that she half-turned and attempted to draw a pistol from her blouse. He fired and she fell, fatally wounded.

A complete shake-up in the State's penal system resulted two days after the killing. A. G. Stedman, under whose 18-month administration 14 convicts had been killed in attempts to escape, resigned as penal superintendent. S. L. Todhunter was appointed to the post.

Ratio Plan To Cut Arms Is Favored

Disarmament Session to Get Proposal for Adoption.

Europe's Alliances Hit as Real Barrier to Peace.

London, July 19 (AP).—Adaption of the ratio principle of limitation provided for in the Washington and London naval treaties to European land and air forces will be suggested, it was stated authoritatively today, at the September meeting of the disarmament conference steering committee at Geneva.

The basis on which these treaties is founded, said a close observer, forms the only "real security" and would add a "practical provision" to any disarmament scheme it may be possible to devise at Geneva.

Meanwhile, British plans for a marked increase of air strength were outlined today in the House of Commons.

European powers "must quit trying to form alliances and must take away the incentive to invade a neighbor's territory before they can have real security," was the view expressed by one statesman favoring the disarmament plan.

Despite the approval given to the proposed eastern security pact by Great Britain and Italy, it was the view in some quarters that such a pact can aid only if it is the means of real disarmament.

A changing opinion in Geneva toward the Versailles treaty was noticed in some quarters. The steering committee, it was predicted, will be faced with the necessity of differentiating between "treaties imposed on nations and those voluntarily agreed to."

In that event the cause of Germany would be presented more forcefully and France would be asked to accept a certain amount of German rearmament.

Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, and Rear Admiral Richard H. Leigh, who have engaged in discussions with the British, sailed for home tonight.

Davis will go first to Washington and then take a vacation, reporting to President Roosevelt when the latter returns from his Pacific cruise.

Voice Culture For Police Radio Artists Planned

Policemen soon will be instructed in voice culture.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Police Superintendent, announced yesterday that he is planning a special course to improve his policemen's voices. But only a chosen few will benefit—those connected with police radio station WPDW.

Maj. Brown said he hopes to inaugurate the course next month.

"It will not only aid our radio dispatchers, but also those who have to listen to them. A well-trained voice and schooled enunciation will make a great difference in dispatching alarms by radio."

It also is planned to start instruction courses for every member of the police radio patrol. Maj. Brown said he felt both patrol car crews and station attendants would profit by schooling.

Policeman Held In Store Robbery

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Accused of robbing a store on his beat, Patrolman Wesley J. Williams, 39, was arrested today by a radio patrol crew and stripped of his equipment pending a hearing. He submitted his resignation.

Reports on file at the northern police station show that Williams was arrested early today as he was leaving a grocery, after residents had phoned to the station house saying they had seen him break in.

A quantity of fruit, vegetables and eggs was found in a basket at the rear of the store, the report said. Williams was said to have told superior officers "family trouble" had been disturbing him. He has a wife and three children.

2 Ships and Dock Afire in Brooklyn

Five Alarms Are Sounded in Molasses Blaze.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 19 (U.P.).—Five alarms were sounded tonight for a fire at Beard's Molasses Dock. Two large freighters of 8,000 and 9,000 tons, moored to the pier, also were reported afire.

Parkway To Span D.C. Is Assured

Ickes Allocates $165,000 for Rock Creek-Potomac Link.

Construction Under Way for Years as Money Became Available.

Completion of the long-delayed link between Rock Creek and Potomac Parks was assured yesterday when Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes signed an order allocating $165,000 to the project for expenditure by the National Park Service.

At the same time he approved an allocation of $55,000 for completion of roadways in the Mall, which were started but unfinished out of PWA funds. The Secretary reserved decision, however, on a recommendation that another $280,000 be allocated to the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

The Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway has been under construction for several years as money has been made available by Congress. The project was started by the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks under Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d. This office since has been abolished and its functions taken over by the National Capital Parks Office.

The uncompleted link is between the P street and M street bridges. When finished, the parkway will offer a new artery for traffic from Potomac Park to the extreme Northwest section into Maryland and it will be along a scenic route unsurpassed in the Capital.

The District Commissioners plan to assist on this project and have set aside $100,000 from the more than $900,000 made available to the District by the Bureau of Public Roads under the $200,000,000 roads relief appropriation. They are new engaged in building a new P street bridge.

Construction will be done by the National Parks Service, and the District fund will be turned over to this agency, it is said, if the $165,000 is not sufficient.

The District allocations came out of the $5,000,000 appropriated for new roads and trails in National Parks at the last session of Congress. They were recommended to Secretary Ickes by A. E. Demaray, acting director of the National Park Service.

Baltimore Girl Beaten, Seized

Torn Bits of Dress Only Clew in Reported Kidnaping.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Torn fragments of a girl's dress were the only clews which police had today to aid them in investigating an attack on a young woman last night at an isolated spot in the suburbs of Baltimore.

After the attack, the young woman was kidnaped in an automobile, and police are in the dark as to her identity.

Two men were seen beating the girl, and before residents of the neighborhood could reach the scene the pair had tossed their victim into a car and had fled.

County police were told loud screams were heard issuing from a wooded section near Parkville in the early hours today. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Behr joined other residents of the district in investigating, and reported seeing the girl struggling with the men.

As the residents approached, police were told, the girl's cries ceased when one of her assailants struck her on the head. She was thrown into a waiting machine and the men drove off.

Jury Indicts U. S. Agent In Slaying at St. Louis

St. Louis, July 19 (AP).—Lear B. Reed, agent in charge of the Department of Justice here, was indicted by a grand jury late today on a manslaughter charge growing out of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Dessie Masterson in a raid led by Reed.

Baltimore Boy Plunges 280 Feet to His Death

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Elwood Peter, 19, a resident in Baltimore's exclusive suburb of Homeland, plunged 280 feet to his death today from a top floor of the Standard Oil Building, on the edge of the downtown business section.

His body struck the ground with such force that his wrist watch burst, parts of it being hurled 100 feet.

Oregon Walkout Delay Is Pledged

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—The general strike of San Francisco union labor was called off today.

The labor steering committee which engineered the mass walkout voted, 191 to 174, recommending the immediate return to work of all unions that went on strike in sympathy with longshoremen and marine workers.

As soon as word of the committee's action was flashed, the trek back to work assumed almost the proportions of stampede in the metropolitan area of 1,300,000 persons.

Even before the strike was called off, both union and nonunion men had been returning to work.

Industry that had been paralyzed for a time by the mass walkout last Monday of nearly 100,000 workers was revolting against the decrees set up by the strike organization for the emergency conduct of its affairs.

Delay Sought in Portland.

In Portland, Oreg., meanwhile, the strategy committee of the Central Labor Council pledged Senator Robert F. Wagner it would use its influence to postpone calling of a general strike there until the Senator could present to the Federal Mediation Board at San Francisco the information he gathered in Portland.

Senator Wagner, who reached Portland this week as an observer for the White House and Federal Labor Board, said he will leave tomorrow for San Francisco.

The San Francisco strike committee had authority to recommend the course it took. Leaders said the various unions would have to ratify the action by votes. This was considered only a perfunctory matter, however, as many of the locals already had voted to go back to their jobs and others were balloting.

Support Pledged Dockmen.

After "advising" all unions on sympathy strikes to resume work at once, the strike committee pledged "every resource, moral and financial, for the continued prosecution for the successful termination of the maritime workers' and longshoremen's strike."

Its resolution referred to the situation as "a crisis threatening the community with disastrous results attendant upon the breaking down of civil government when superseded by martial law."

"The general strike committee," the resolution went on, "has done everything within its power to avert this catastrophe."

Referring to its previous action recommending that both shipping interests and the striking maritime unions submit to arbitration by the Federal longshoremen's strike board, the strike committee said it thus

Movie Salary Code Junking Is Advocated

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Indefinite suspension of motion picture code provisions, dealing with "excessive salaries," was recommended to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson in a report made public yesterday by Sol A. Rosenblatt, division administrator in charge of the code.

Declaring bluntly that "the industry has made no material progress in setting the production side of its house in order," the administrator found, nevertheless, that the much-debated salary provisions of the movie code do not offer satisfactory means to correct unreasonable earnings or to prevent "star raiding."

The report was the outgrowth of a six months' statistical study of motion picture production, distribution and exhibition, ordered by President Roosevelt at the time he suspended the code's salary sections. It disclosed that Hollywood pay checks—though generally far short of press agentry claims—still "have gone beyond any reasonable standard of compensation."

Thus attacking the salary scale and the "star system" as a whole, Mr. Rosenblatt came out as an ardent champion of the artist himself, with the paradoxical statement that, "as a matter of principle, no salary is too high or excessive if the picture produced by the individual receiving the salary meets with unusual public favor, as a result of unique direction or artistry."

His contention was that the "rational standard of compensation" should be based upon a percentage of the gross receipts received from the pictures, that unfair bidding for stars—known as "star raiding"—and other similar abuses have led to the creation of values, largely fictitious, which make salary costs of the motion picture industry out of proportion to other businesses.

The report comprises a comprehensive survey of employer-employe relations, which the administrator found unusually touchy, and a voluminous mass of statistics, which reveal that $350,000 was the

Misanas Now Is Lone Free Member of Tri-State Mob.

With the serious wounding and capture of Herbert Myers, 39, in a New York apartment yesterday, police and postal inspectors have only one more member of the so-called "tri-State gang" to get.

Of the gang whose depredations include the murder of a postal guard in a mail robbery at Richmond, mail robbery at the Union Station last October and the shooting of Mrs. Elizabeth Fontaine at Upper Darby, Pa., only Arthur Misanas, 37, is still at large.

Police describe Misanas as the "least known and most dangerous" of the bandits. In the round-up of the gang, in which Washington detectives have been active, two members have been slain, two wounded and two captured unhurt.

Shot by Dectective.

Myers was shot yesterday as he reached for his pocket when he opened the door of his apartment and faced several detectives. New York Detective Frank O'Neill, of the headquarters staff, fired the shot.

Information about Myers' New York hideout was secured by Detective Sergt. Floyd Truscott and Postal Inspector Leo Beward, of Washington, who went to New York several days ago to track him down.

Myers, shot in the abdomen, was removed to the prison ward of Fordham Hospital. His condition was said to be serious. He was found in the apartment of his wife, Agnes Myers, an actress, who, according to the Associated Press, had not seen him since November of 1933 until two weeks ago.

Three Others Captured.

Members of the gang in custody, in addition to Myers, are John Kendrick, 39, who is held at the District Jail; William Davis and Robert Mais, both held in Baltimore, awaiting extradition to Richmond, where they have been indicted for murder, and Mrs. Fontaine, who Washington police are holding in secret.

Mrs. Fontaine, a former member

More Heat Forecast Today; Prisoner Wilts Under 93

Temperatures from 10 a. m. yesterday were recorded officially at the United States Weather Bureau as:

10 a. m.	84	4 p. m.	90
11 a. m.	85	5 p. m.	86
Noon	85	6 p. m.	89
1 p. m.	86	7 p. m.	88
2 p. m.	92	8 p. m.	86
3 p. m.	92

Washington simmered with the temperature reaching a maximum of 93.4 degrees at 2:45 p. m. yesterday, and the Weather Bureau predicting today would be at least 1 degree hotter.

One heat victim was reported. Stewart McGuire, 37, of the 800 block M street northwest, collapsed in the prisoners' dock at Police Court while awaiting trial on a charge of intoxication. He was treated by an Emergency Hospital physician, who said his condition was not serious.

A sudden shower fell about 4 p. m., lasting about 10 minutes. It sent the mercury down several degrees, but furnished no real relief.

Yesterday's low was 71, recorded at 5:30 a. m. The humidity at 8 a. m. was 70, dropping to 49 just before the shower, and jumping to 68 after the rain. Slight variable winds, which fanned the city yesterday, will continue today.

Oregon Guard Is Mobilized

To Be Held in Readiness; Employers Intend to Load Ships.

Portland, Oreg., July 19 (AP).—Gov. Julius L. Meier late today ordered the Oregon National Guard to mobilize to protect life and property in event of strife or riot.

The Governor announced he had been notified that water-front employers intended to proceed with the wholesale loading of vessels and the opening of the port to commerce.

The guard was ordered to mobilize at Old Camp Witycombe here to be held in readiness.

Mayor Joseph Carson and county authorities have informed him, he said, that present peace officers would be unable to cope with the situation produced by an attempt to resume forcibly the loading and discharging of cargo on the strike-bound water front.

Edward Young Clarke Sent to Federal Prison

Jacksonville, Fla., July 19 (AP).—Edward Young Clarke, former high official in the Ku Klux Klan, was sentenced in Federal Court here today to five years in the Atlanta Penitentiary on six counts of using the mails to defraud in connection with the organization of Esskaye, a fraternal order.

His wife, Mrs. Martha Ann Clarke, was sentenced to two years in the Women's Federal Industrial Institute at Alderson, W. Va., on each of the six counts. Sentences were made to run concurrently on each of the counts.

San Francisco General Strike Is Called Off

Workers Stampede Back to Jobs Even Before Vote Is Ended.

had proposed "a fair and equitable basis upon which this general strike may be ended at once.'

Employers Asked to Parley.

Saying the longshoremen's board had indorsed the original proposal of the strick committee, it then reiterated the employers should submit to arbitration of the marine workers' issues if their differences could not be settled by collective bargaining. It said the marine workers should submit also and call off their strike when both sides had laid their cases before the board.

The strikers' convention then passed a resolution asking the withdrawal of 4,500 National Guardsmen from the strike-bound area and another perpetuating the general strike committee "until such time as the president of this body shall decide."

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator and Government spokesman in the negotiations here, immediately notified Edward Vandeleur, president of the strike committee, that he would carry out his promise to bring the central issues to arbitration. "I am going to uphold your end to the limit," he said.

To Use All His Influence.

Johnson, who yesterday called upon the strike committee to call off the mass walkout as a prerequisite to Federal peace efforts, told Vandeleur:

"My position originally was that I would not take any action until the general strike had been withdrawn or the threat of martial law was dispelled.

"Since that has been done, I will use all of my influence to bring this to immediate arbitration."

"This is the sane and sensible American thing to do."

Oscar K. Cushing, attorney and member of the Government's longshore strike board, said the strike committee's action was "a move in the right direction."

Congratulated by Mayor.

Mayor Rossi, who had worked day and night to avert a walkout, congratulated "the real leaders of organized labor on their decision."

"San Francisco," said the mayor, "has stamped out without bargains or compromise an attempt to import into its life the very real danger of revolt. * * *

"The crushing of this general strike must not be construed to mean that San Francisco either will desire or will tolerate any attempt to destroy union labor or invade its rights. * * *

"I pledge myself and this city to secure justice wheer it is due and to protect all by fellow citizens against any unfair aggression whatsoever."

Alameda Strike Gives Way.

In Alameda County (Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and neighboring cities, the sympathetic strike of 42,000 union men was likewise collapsing, and formal action to end it was scheduled for tonight.

The San Francisco committee's action was the signal for a virtual stampede of workers returning to their tasks.

Three hundred taxicab drivers, ready in their seats, dashed out into the streets of San Francisco as the news was flashed. Trucks rolled through the streets unguarded and undisturbed. Automobile row along Van Ness avenue opened almost as if by magic.

Gasoline stations began filling empty automobile tanks. Cooks, butchers, waiters, street car men and hosts of others rushed to their jobs. Some of the teamsters got behind the wheels of their trucks and the union, with a membership of 2,500, called a meeting to vote on complete return to work.

Trolleys to Resume.

Full erryboat service on the bay and complete resumption of trolley traffic was assured for tomorrow with the voting of carmen and boat operators to go back then.

There seemed but one exception to the general scramble. That was in Carmen's Union 1004, which went on strike Sunday morning more than a full day ahead of the mass walkout, and presented grievances.

The Market Street Railway Co. began operating its cars under guard and presumably with "company union" employes, although the management said it would take both union and nonunion workers.

William Thompson, president of the local, said, however, his organization still was on strike because of "intolerable conditions imposed by employers."

In Oakland, where the rise of scores of armed citizen's committees opened the strikebound thoroughfares of commerce yesterday, Mayor William J. McCracken issued a proclamation urging all citizens, union members and otherwise, to go back to work. Even then, workers were streaming back to their jobs.

"Two days ago," he said, "I asked you, my fellow citizens, to talk over with your neighbors plans for common action against an assault upon our government. You did so and the results have been magnificent. You have proced your power.

"Now use that same power to reunite our citizenry."

Longshoremen to Carry On.

The spirit of the longshoremen, whose walkout of 12,000 members in Pacific Coast ports last May 9 started the trouble that led to the general strike, was expressed by Ralph Mallen, publicity chairman of the union. He said:

"We are still on strike, and will carry on.

"We would have bene a lot better off if the general strike never had been called. Now we are a lot worse off than ever. But we will prove that we can take it."

Harry Bridges, left wing leader of the longshoremen here. whose strategy helped of bring on the general strike in behalf of the marine workers, said:

"We are not going back to work. We can carry on our own strike. The joint marine strike committee meets tomorrow at 10 o'clock. There would be no reason for our meeting if we were going back to work."

Printers Approve Labor Day Parade

Vote to March in Union Demonstration.

Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, yesterday voted to participate in the Labor Day parade sponsored by the Central Labor Union. A committee named to confer with the Central Union includes Frank S. Lerch, chairman; Dean S. Blackwell and George Lee Rooney.

Each Typographical chapel will name a committee on parade arrangements.

A civilian uniform for members to wear in the procession is under consideration. This may consist of black striped trousers, white shirt, gray necktie and straw hat.

3 Hurt by Fight In Alabama's Textile Strike

Union Leader Shot in Leg; Walkout of 20,000 Is Claimed.

Huntsville, Ala., July 19 (AP).—Three persons were wounded in disorders at Decatur today in Alabama's three-day-old textile strike which, union officials claim, has called more than 20,000 men from their looms.

Monroe Adcock, president of the local at Dallas Mills here, was shot in the leg in a street battle in which at least two others were wounded.

Burnice Rigsby, Huntsville textile union member, and Isaac Bullard, Huntsville, trustee of the Alabama State Council of Textile Workers, who were Adcock's companions on a visit to Decatur textile mills, were both treated at hospitals for scalp wounds believed inflicted by a pistol bullet. None of the wounds was regarded as serious.

Decatur workers have not heeded the strike call issued for Tuesday morning.

Adcock said he and his two fellow union members were attacked on a street corner near one of the textile plans by three men who drove up in an automobile. The latercation, which lasted but a few seconds, ended when the trio left as rapidly as they came. Adcock said he hit one man with a brick.

Meanwhile, peaceful picketing was the order of the day at the 24 plants closed down by the strike. Estimates of the number of tsrikers continued to vary widely, ranging from 13,000 to 22,000.

No negotiations for settlement of the strike were in progress today, both mill owners and union heads saying "the next move is up to the other fellow."

Strikers are demanding a permanent 30-hour week on a $12 weekly minimum wage, recognition of the collective bargaining and certain changes in working conditions.

Strikes Cost June Pay Rolls $5,000,000

Miss Perkins Estimates 119,000 Jobs Lost by Wage Earners.

Strikes, combined with seasonal declines, cost wage earners throughout the country 119,000 jobs and $5,000,000 from pay envelopes during June, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced last night.

It was the first check in the upward swing of manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries' employment and pay rolls during the year.

Labor Department records show that normally the seasonal declines have caused June indices to slip under those of May during eight of the last fifteen years.

Dock War Noted.

However, Miss Perkins pointed out that besides these factors, "the longshoremen's strike no the Pacific Coast affected operation in a number of establishments in this section."

"Sporadic labor disturbances affected plant operations in other localities also," she added.

The index of factory employment for June is 1.7 per cent below the May level, while factory pay rolls are 3.1 per cent below the index for May. The June pay roll index also is below that of March and April but higher than the indices of any other month since August, 1931.

Simultaneously, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that wholesale commodity prices showed a further weakening during the week ending July 14, declining .3 of 1 per cent.

District industrial employment, outside building construction, has dropped 3 per cent in June, with 34,746 on the pay rolls. However, the amount of pay rolls rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent, reaching $815,667.

Increases Are Shown.

Four of the 14 groups in the manufacturing industries showed increases in both employment and payrolls. These gains were food, 5.5 per cent; iron and steel, 1.6 per cent; tobacco, 1.8 per cent, and railroad and repair shops, 0.3 per cent.

In the ten groups showing decreasse in employment and pay rolls, the largest declines were textiles, 5.5 per cent; transportation, 5.1 per cent; leather products, 4 per cent, and rubber products, 3.9 per cent.

"In the textile group," a Labor Department statement said, "the code authority's curtailment of operation in the cotton goods establishments was reflected in decreases of 7.1 per cent in employment and 17.8 per cent in pay rolls. This curtailment also affected operation of plants in the dyeing and finishing textile industry, in which decreases of 6.6 per cent in employment and 17 per cent in pay rolls were reported in June.

"In the transportation group, the decreases were due entirely to the declines in the automobile industry, in which employment fell 7.6 per cent and pay rolls decreased 11.7 per cent.

"A decline in retail trade employment occurred generally in the group of department, variety, limited price stores and mail order houses. Employment in this group declined 1.9 per cent."

PWA Workers Increase.

An increase of more than 100,000 in the number of workers employed on PWA construction projects was reported by the Labor Statistics Bureau. On June 15 direct employment on PWA sites totalled 600,000, it stated. The monthly PWA pay roll was $30,000,000.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration gave employment to 970,000 more workers in June, while about 280,000 were employed in the Civilian Conservation Corps and more than 18,000 on projects financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. State Governments employed more than 208,000 on road work.

Monthly pay rools for CCC workers amounted to $12,000,000 in June, and for RFC workers, $1,500,000. State road workers were paid $11,200,000.

Josephine Hillyard Wins Scholarship

Catholic Alumna Awards Columbus U. Course.

Columbus University's scholarship awarded to the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, has been won by Miss Josephine Hillyard, of the Immaculate Conception Alumnae, Mrs. Lewis Payne, governor of the District chapter, announced yesterday.

Miss Louise Brew, of St. Patrick's Alumnae, has been designated alternate. Plans were completed yesterday for participation in the National convention of the I. F. C. A., in New York in October.

The chapter, which has a membership of 2,000, adopted a resolution pledging assistance and support to the Catholic Legion of Decency in its campaign against unclean movies.

Maryland Police Guard Truckers

Patrol Philadelphia Road in Strike Trouble.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Special details of State motorcycle police patrolled the Philadelphia road between Baltimore and the Delaware State line today to avert further disorder in connection with the strike of truck drivers and helpers who were ordered to quit work Monday.

Stoning of a fleet of trucks on the highway near Havre de Grace early today, in which one driver's arm was cut by flying glass from a shattered windshield, led to the road patrol being established.

Six men were in the group which stoned the trucks, the drivers reported. When police reached the scene the attackers had fled. No disorder has yet been reported on the Washington boluevard, but police officials are keeping a close watch. Union officials say more than 1,000 truck drivers have ceased work since the walkout was called.

Army Airmen In Minneapolis On Alaska Hop

1 Ship Returns for Motor Tuning; to Join Others at Winnipeg.

The Army Air Corps expedition to Alaska flew away from Washington yesterday morning, and at 5:10 p. m. had landed at Minneapolis, Minn.

Roaring away from Bolling Field at 10 a. m. while hundreds of Washingtonians gathered for the sendoff, nine of the planes reach Dayton, Ohio, for lunch at 12:30 as planned.

The tenth ship, piloted by Capt. Westside Larson, came back to Bolling Field at Anacostia, after flying for about half an hour. Larson was not satisfied with the way his motors were functioning and came back for adjustments. He took off later and planned to join the rest of the party in Minneapolis last night.

Today the fliers expect to cover the short hop to Winnipeg, where they will spend tonight. Tomorrow they expect to push on to Regina, Saskatchewan, for lunch and then fly in the afternoon to Edmonton, Alberta.

Sunday they will fly to Whitehorse in the Yukon, continuing on to Fairbanks if enough daylight hours are left. At this time of the year in Alaska the sun sets at about 10 p. m. and rises at 2 a. m., with several hours of twilight during the night.

Col. Henry Arnold, leader of the expedition, indicated before leaving yesterday that he might take advantage of the long day and try to reach Fairbnks by Sunday night. Otherwise the last leg of the trip between Whitehorse and Fairbanks will be completed Monday.

In Alaska Col. Aronold and his men will set up headquarters at Fairbanks. Three other airplane operating bases will be established for the purpose of reconnaissance and photographic work.

The pilots are expected back in Washington around the first of September. The return route has not been decided upon, but it is understood that it will include a stop at Seattle, and that a speed trial will be made in the bombers on the return jaunt.

Mrs. LangerBoome For Governor Post

members of the Legislature began to assemble.

Early in the day Ad. Gen. Earle Sarles removed one of the weak spots in Olson's position by agreeing to take orders from him. National Guardsmen, posted by Langer in an effort to maintain himself in office, were withdrawn by Olson as one of his first acts in office.

Olson immediately ordered them out again however, as a precaution against violence.

A resolution by the house held that the assembly was convened on its own initiative as well as pursuant to Langer's special session call and declared "a condition of emergency exists."

The right to meet in the face of a proclamation by Olson, revoking Langer's special call, was questioned by some members who refused to participate.

Olson sat in his offices ignoring the special assemblies.

A committee was named to wait on the Governor, announcing the House was ready to hear his message. Presumably, Langer was referred to as Governor.

Threats Are Revealed In Coast "Morals" Trial

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP).—Three more witnesses testified today they heard Pat Harman, screen villian, voice threats against Dave Allen, former casting bureau manager, and one of the defendants in the so-called "Hollywood morals" trial.

The witnesses by whose testimony the defense seeks to establish its claim of a "fram-up" on Allen, were Wallace Davis, prominent Los Angeles lawyer; Dr. Robert Lundsen, a dentist, and Alyears in the film business, has been an actor, director and producer.

Kin of Mrs. Harding Wins Divorce Decree

Marion, Ohio, July 19 (AP).—Mrs. Jean de Wolfe Weil, 26, of Marion, granddaughter of the late Mrs. Warren G. Harding, was granted a divorce from Charles M. Weil, of Los Angeles, Calif., formerly of Cincinnati, in Common Pleas court here today.

The suit, in which Mrs. Weil charged gross neglect and extreme cruelty, was not considered. Custody of their son was granted Mrs. Weil.

top salary paid an actor during 1933, the year studied. All of the salaries are listed as anonymous, in accordance with a pledge of secrecy given the industry.

350,000 on Small Royalty.

The study disclosed, for the first time, what percentage of box oce receipts goes to the star featuring the picture. In the case of the $350,000 salary, the actor received 0.74 per cent; in other words, of every $1 paid for admission, he obtained approximately ¾ of 1 cent.

Second highest sadary went to an "artist"—either actor or actress—and amounted to $296,250, while another actor received $283,654 for third place. The list tampers down, showing 110 receiving $75,000 or more—the salary of President Roosevelt. Of this number 51 were actors, 28 directors, 22 executives, 9 producers, 2 writers and 1 counsel.

In all, the producing-distributing companies paid actors $16,932,128 of a total pay roll of $72,515,878 for the year, which was 41.3 per cent of gross receipts. Partly for this reason, the administrator sets forth, the producing and distributing companies lost $9,320,501 in 1933, forcing numerous capital reorganizations.

Urges Percentage System.

Admitting that any determination of salary schedules in the movie industry is fraught with difficulty, Mr. Rosenblatt suggested the creation of a committee to report on a method whereby artistic talent in the film world would be compensated on the basis of a minimum guarantee plus a percentage of receipts on their pictures.

"Public popularity of artists is a flimsy and perishable product," he declared. "* * * A screen personality may be a hero today and forgotten tomorrow. Moreover, it is difficult for executives to determine with even a reasonable degree of certainty the extent of the contribution made to a motion picture."

Asserting that "jealousy, ambition and other destructive forces play their full part in the present system," he added that "the inflated values which producers have placed upon a limited number of executives and artists have created a vicious circle of bidding for their services. The creatures of the system have turned to plague their masters."

Freezing Custom Scored.

Among present abuses he mentioned the "freezing" of talent, a practice of companies holding actors under contract, though idle, to prevent others using them. This, Mr. Rosenblatt said, has created an unnecessary scarcity of talent and contributes to a lessening in quality of Hollywood pictures. Directly contrary to this practice is the "loaning" of actors for exorbitant amounts, many times their salaries.

"It appears," added Mr. Rosenblatt, not without a trace of humor, "that the services performed by stars and directors are of such a character, and moreover, their temperament is of such a character, that complete contentment is necessary to the proper performance of their work. Their value is apparently nil when they are 'unhappy!'

"The mere offer to a star of substantially increased compensation, upon termination of his existing contract, apparently produces a psychological effect in his work which tends to decrease or to actually destroy the value of his services to his present employer. Thus, in actual operation, a producer can by a mere offer, compel his competitor to increase the compensation of the star * * *"

Remedies Ineffective.

The suspended code provisions would provide, among other things, for the setting up of a system, under which no producer could bid for another's star until with 30 days of the expiration of the contract. Even then the employing producer would have to be given notice of the offer, which would enable him to meet or exceed his rival's figure.

In rejecting this and other such sections, Mr. Rosenblatt also said that efforts of the industry to control practices considered unfair have proved "ineffective." He proposed formulation of the committee, "with or without Government participation," both to work out a method of compensation and a uniform production cost formula, report system, budget schedule, and salary ranges under classifications.

The committee also would report on "whether it would be desirable, practical, proper and legal" to establish a permanent motion picture commission, again with or without Government participation, to set up a broad system of regulation over the whole industry, including "the regulation of salaries in proper cases."

Lupe Has Until Today To Decide on Divorce

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP).—Lupe Velez, the chameleon of the cinema, has until tomorrow to make up her mind about whether she is going through with her announced plan to divorce her mate, Johnny Weissmuller.

Disappointing a packed courtroom, where she was scheduled to tell of the film Tarzan's destruction of furniture and conduct unbecomming a husband, Lupe today advised Judge Robert Kenny through her attorney that she probably could appear tomorrow.

Elks Defy Heat of 107 For Kansas City Parade

Kansas City, July 19 (AP).—Under a blazing sun that sent the mercury to 107 degrees but did not wilt the spirit of several thousand marchers, the B. P. O. Elks held their parade with a grand flourish today, ending the seventieth annual convention.

Young Shirley Temple Gets $1,250 Per Week

Hollywood, Calif., July 19 (AP).—Shirley Temple, 5-year-old screen darling, who was elevated to stardom in a series of "hit" pictures, today held an adjusted contract with the Fox Studio calling for a salary reported to be $1,250 weekly.

Her Parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Temple, had demanded $2,500 a week. Shirly had been drawing $150 weekly.

many, the 1928 Democratic Presidential condidate asked:

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well, everyone knows your advice has not been sought and has not been given in Tammany's recent years. Does your visit with Dooling mean you'll once more be active and give your council in shaping its policies?"

"Yes," he replied. "I suppose that's right.

"I am anxious to help the young man all I can. I like him, and I think he's going to do a fine job."

The hearing showdown in the legislature, as a result of today's development, finds a powerful triumvirate in accord on charter revision.

At Albany, Gov. Herbert Lehman said he was behind Smith's program.

Dooling said he likewise was whole-heartedly behind the four-time governor.

The Tammany leader, after his conference next week with Smith, plans to confer with Lehman at the State capital.

"Lehman's news was good to me," Smith said. "I don't plan on going to Albany with Dooling. But they know I'm here and can be reached."

Five Year Break.

It's been nearly five years since the voice of the former Governor has been heeded in Tammany Hall—the early medium of his political rise.

But times have changed.

The Curry crowd is out. Fusion runs the city. Jobs were gone. To build its power anew, Tammany needed Federal patronage.

Under the banner of Dooling, it capitulated to the Roosevelt Administration's desires. Under Dooling's leadership, it has set out to clean its own house, to gain public favor.

One of the first concrete evidences of Dooling's first week of intense activity was his visit with Smith.

The influence of this visit will in all probability also be strongly felt in Tammany's course on municipal politics.

Dooling disclosed he discussed with Smith the question of the election of a comptroller in the fall.

It was made known that Smith advised Dooling to abandon plans for a Tammany candidate and indorse the fusion insumbent, Joseph D. McGoldrick, who was named by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia to fill the gap after the death of W. Arthur Cunningham.

This was viewed by observers as sound strategy, allowing Tammany to concentrate its efforts on the next city-wide campaign.

Turks Probe Shooting.

Angora, Turkey, July 19 (AP).—The Turkish government today accepted "in principle" the British suggestion that the fatal shooting Saturday of a British naval surgeon, Lieut. T. J. Robinson, by Turkish soldiers, be investigated by a joint Anglo-Turkish commission.

of the gang, was shot at Upper Darby because she "knew too much." She has given police valuable information about the gang and her whereabouts have been kept secret. She is an important witness and police fear a reprisal against her. There are no charges against her.

Kendrick was captured in Johnson City, Tenn., in company with Marie McKeever, who was not held. Mrs. Barbara Kendrick, his wife, was arrested in Philadelphia, brought to Washington and released after questioning by Washington police.

Two Are Dead.

Mais and Davis were captured in a gun battle with Baltimore police. Mais was seriously wounded, and although still in the hospital, will probably recover. The dead members of the gang are William B. Phillips, shot here last April by Policeman John Caton, and George Kauffman, victim of a gangster "ride" in Pittsburgh.

Crimes in which the gang is involved also include murder in Baltimore, the hold-up of the Heurich Brewery here and the hijacking of a truckload of cigarettes in North Carolina.

Texas Concern Pays 16 Fines

Firm Pleads Guilty to Violation of Income Tax Law.

The W. L. Pearson Co., Inc., a road building firm of Edinburg, Tex., yesterday in the District Supreme Court paid 16 $500 fines for violation of the income tax laws to which it had pleaded guilty.

Justice Peyton Gordon assessed the fines after the corporation had admitted its failure to comply with the income tax regulation that governs the payment of $1,500 or more to any person. The data is required on tax blanks so that the income tax units can ascertain the correctness of individual returns.

In accepting the plea, the Government announced that an indictment charging W. L. Pearson, president of the firm, with the same offenses, had been dismissed. Sixteen payments to Texas State and County officials, aggregating $1,500,000, were alleged in the indictment.

Government prosecutors said many of those charged with having received money from the corporation have been indicted and triad in Texas for their alleged failure to pay income taxes on the moneys they got. The corporation is in the general contracting business.

Execution Stay Asked For Colorado Brothers

Denver, July 19 (AP).—A petition for a stay of execution, expected to halt plans for a double execution tomorrow in Colorado's lethal gas chamber, was filed in the supremen court today on behalf of Louis and John Pacheco, brothers condemned for the killing of Clifford Smith, Wellington, Colo., rancher.

L. R. Temple, defense attorney, asked for 90 days in which to file an appeal. He said that until yesterday friends and relatives of the Pachecos had been unable to raise funds to finance the appeal.

Total No wEstimated at 18 Billions; 1934 Loans Rise.

The debts of American cities have begun to increase again in a way. Their total is estimated now at almost $18,000,000,000, according to the Associated Press.

Before the depression, the total was going up at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year. The slump interrupted that, but figures showed today that municipal borrowings in the general market in the first six months of 1934 exceeded $500,000,000.

This was approximately the same sum as for the whole of 1933.

Banks, stripped of their dealings in general bonds by the securities act, have been active participants in disposal of muncipal bonds.

Added to sales of such securities in the Capital market have been the loans made cities through Federal emergency agencies. The Public Works Administrtaion has lent substantial sums in such a manner.

Some of the bonds bought by the PWA have been resold at a profit. It holds others that can be disposed of similarly, but not all fall in this class.

Among the bonds held are obligations of cities that were already in default when PWA loans and grants were made to acquire or build utility plants in the Tennessee Valley.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was authorized by the last Congress to make $250,000,000 more available to the PWA for loans to cities.

Holy Name Societies Honor Gibbons Sunday

Baker Report Opposes Unity For Air Forces

Views of Secretary Dern and Army Command Are Supported.

3,000 planes each; United States (including Army and Navy), 2,800; Japan, 2,500, and Great Britain, 1,400. The announcement in London today that Great Britain would construct 41 additional squadrons of approximately 500 planes, would bring that nation ahead of the United States in air-fighting forces.

The Baker committee report presents a comprehensive survey of the organization, personnel, training and procurement program of the Army Air Corps and recommends several changes in administration.

Air-Mail Discussed.

It deals extensively with the Army's transportation of the mails during the recent emergency, caused by cancellation of commercial airline mail contracts.

The recommendation against creation of a unified air force along the same general line as Great Britain's Royal Air Force, will bring up anew one of the most controversial isesues in American aviation. The Army general staff has strenuously opposed such a move, as has Secretary Dern.

Farming Experts To Make Speeches

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Gatherings of Maryland farmers during the remainder of the summer will be addressed by four officials of various agricultural organizations just designated by the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, it was announced today.

Those named as speakers are M. D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; J. F. Porter, president of the Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, and Charles E. Wise, jr., secretary of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation.

Next Tuesday Mr. Lincoln will speak at a picnic of the Talbot County Farm Bureau near Easton, and on the same day will speak at the Worcester County Farm Bureau's meeting at Snow Hill. On Wednesday he will address Montgomery County farmers, and on July 26 he will speak at the picnic of farmers from four Southern Maryland counties at Chapel Point. On July 27 he will speak at a Carroll County meeting at Westminster, and on July 28, at a Howard County meeting.

Middlebourne Street Lights to Be Darkened

Middlebourne, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The city council has decided to economize by turning off all the street lights as the result of an empty treasury.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ½ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.

Two Officials' Voting Eligibility Questioned

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Expressing a doubt as to the eligibility of City Attorney H. A. Downs and Contractor D. C. James to vote in Martinsburg, and filing an affidavit in county court supporting that view, County Commissioner J. C. McKown raised the subject at today's session of court.

The result was that the court issued a summons calling on the sheriff to cite both Downs and James to appear next Tuesday and show cause why their names should not be stricken from the registration lists in Martinsburg. Both men, claims the affidavit, are residents of Shepherdstown.

Virginia's U. D. C. Meets in October

Petersburg, Va., July 19 (AP).—The Virginia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold its three-day annual convention here the first week in October.

Delegates from 130 chapters will attend, and Mrs. Severn M. Nottingham, of Orange, president, will report on work accomplished during her term of office.

The session will open October 3 and end October 5. The Petersburg Chapter, U. D. C., will be the hostess chapter. During the business sessions the work of the various chapters will be reported.

Underground Lake Is Found by Boys

Bedford, Pa., July 19 (Spl.).—A group of youthful Bedford County explorers has found a 10-mile underground lake near New Paris. The "lost lake" had long been a legend. The young explorers make it a fact.

It is believed to extend from the Hughes distillery to the Pennsylvania fish hatchery at Spring Meadow.

The youths found it in examining a 50-foot crevice disclosed by workmen at a stone quarry. They descended with ropes and lanterns. Following a channel of water at the bottom, they said they discovered numerous rooms with stalactites and stalagmites as well as the lake.

Anne Arundel Gains Legislator

U. S. Census Gives County Right to Elect Six.

Annapolis, July 19 (Spl.).—Voters of Anne Arundel County will be called upon in November to elect six delegates to the lower House of the State Legislature, instead of five, by virute of the latest figures of the Federal Census Bureau. A proclamation to that effect has been issued by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Under the law each county is apportioned one representative in the House for each 10,000 or fraction thereof in population, the limit of membership being six.

The final census report of the county shows the population to be 55,167. The last time the county gained an increase was in 1930, when the census figures approached 50,000, and the county was thus entitled to a block of five.

Sycolin Church To Hold Reunion

Upperville Pastor Will Speak at Service.

Leesburg, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The Rev. G. W. Richardson, former pastor of the Sycolin Methodist Church, now located at Upperville, Va., will speak at the morning service of home-coming day at the Sycolin Church near here Sunday, as a celebration of the sesquicentennial of the founding of Methodism.

In the afternoon the Rev. Howard Wells, presiding elder of Washington District, will be the speaker. The third quarterly conference will follow.

Miss Sallie Shumate will read the history of the Sycolin Church and the Leesburg Methodist Church choir will furnish music. A number of former pastors are expected. The Rev. Jesse R. Hobbs is pastor now.

Roanoke, Va., July 19 (AP).—Authorities took Maj. Robert C. Kent, jr., held in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary Jane Hastings, Blue Ridge Springs hotel operator, out of his cell in the city jail again yesterday, and he said today that he conferred in the office of the United States marshal with his attorney, Samuel R. Price.

Relatives also visited the World War veteran. They were his father, R. C. Kent, Wytheville, and his wife, Mrs. Caspary Kent.

Kent said he had lost 15 pounds since being jailed.

Police Seize Pair As Auto Thieves

Youths Held After Failure to Pay for Gasoline.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Stopped after attempting to evade payment at a Stafford County gasoline station, two New York youths, who confessed to police they were traveling in a car stolen in New York, were arrested today.

The men are Leonard Shultz, 20, and Harry Truetage, 19, both residents of the Bronx, New York. A .32-caliber revolver was found on Shultz.

Shultz and Truetage sped out of the filling station of T. L. Brooks, on the Richmond-Washington highway, north of here, after procuring gasoline and oil without payment. Brooks telephoned Fredericksburg police, who recognized the car.

Boy Admits Death Of School Trusty

Escaping Pair Hurl Body in W. Virginia River.

Grafton, W. Va., July 19 (U.P.). David Bruner, 18, of Huntington, W. Va., an inmate of the State Industrial School for Delinquent Boys, today told Superintendent R. P. Bell that he and Albert Nichols, 16, of St. Louis, Mo., killed James Powell, 17, a trusty, and threw his body into a river, following their escape yesterday.

Powell was among those who joined in the hunt for Bruner and Nichols. Bruner told Superintended Bell that Powell came across their hiding place in a woods about a mile from the school.

"We beat him on the head with a rock, took off his clothes and threw his body into the river," Bruner said. The body had not been found.

State troopers arrested Bruner in a railroad yard here. Nichols remained at large. St. Louis authorities were asked to be on the lookout for him.

Va. Murder Story Bared

Shooting of Employer Accidental, Accused Housekeeper Says.

Montross, Va., July 19 (AP).—On trial for murder, Mrs. Bessie Reamy, 45, told from the witness stand today details of the shooting of Robert H. Barrow, 75, in whose home she was employed as a housekeeper.

Placing her defense on a plea of accidental shooting, she told the court her gun was discharged without intent.

The witness ended her direct testimony today and tomorrow will go under cross-examination at the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney Ferdinand F. Chandler, of Westmoreland County.

Barrow was killed instantly as he stood on the lawn outside his home at Tidewell, June 18. He had been struck, officers said they learned, by a bullet fired from within the house. Mrs. Reamy was charged with the killing.

She said then, and repeated on the stand today, that she had seized the gun to defend herself against Walter Barrow, 40-year-old son of the victim, with whom she was engaged in an altercation.

Conflicting stories were told by Mrs. Reamy and the younger man, she claiming he struck her when she refused to make a trip with him, and he saying the quarrel began when she reproached him for not taking her on a fishing trip with him.

Frederick Woman To Be Buried Today

Mrs. Carol K. Baughman Dead at Baltimore.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Funeral rites for Mrs. Carol Kilroy Baughman, wife of Automobile Commissioner E. Austin Baughman, of Frederick, who died here yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 8 a. m. at St. Ignatius Catholic Church.

Burial will be in Philadelphia, beside the grave of Mrs. Baughman's mother, the late Mrs. John R. Kilroy.

Col. and Mrs. Baughman were married in 1910, and lived at the Baughman farm near Frederick until Col. Baughman was named automobile commissioner of Maryland. Mrs. Baughman had been ill about four years.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

"Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

Girl's Sojourn With Man Told In Death Trial

Defense Loses Attempt to Justify Killing as "Unwritten Law."

Hagerstown, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—Defense efforts to have testimony admitted as to the visit of Jane Hollar, 16, to Washington with George Saum, prior to the fatal shooting of Saum, with which the girl's father, Allen L. Hollar, 45, is charged, was balked by the court as the trial got under way here today.

All of the prosecution's case was presented during the morning and afternoon and Mrs. Hollar, wife of the accused, and the daughter, Jane, had testified when court was adjourned until tomorrow, when Hollar is scheduled to take the stand.

Counsel indicated the defense would raise the question whether the fatal shot was actually fired by Hollar, or was fired during a struggle between Hollar and Saum for possession of the revolver.

The testimony of Mrs. Hollar and Jane was confined to statements of seeing Saum drive near their home a few hours before the shooting, and of their own hysterical condition when Hollar returned home for a few moments before he is alleged to have left for the Saum home.

The principal witness for the prosecution and the only eyewitness to the shooting was Carl Smith, a neighbor of Saum, who testified that Hollar fired at Saum while the latter was preparing to put his car away.

B. C. Beasley testified that Hollar borrowed a revolver from him a few days before the shooting "to kill a mad dog." It was this gun that the prosecution contends was used in the shooting.

Police Capt. Clarence Emmert and County Investigator Martin L. Ingram testified as to the confession which they said Hollar made after the shooting, in which Hollar said he found his family hysterical and got the revolver and went to Saum's home, where he waited. Hollar said his mind went blank and he could recall nothing.

Detective William Peters testified to a conference he had with Hollar in the office of State's Attorney Lloyd Harshman, in which Hollar suggested that no charges be preferred against Saum and that he be released from jail, where he had been incarcerated while searching for Jane Hollar was in progress. The girl was found by Washington police nearly a week after she disappeared. Saum had brought the girl back to Hagerstown, but she returned to Washington, saying she feared the wrath of her parents because of her week-end escapade with Saum.

Bausell's Trial To Open Today

Wytheville, Va., July 19 (AP).—Under a continuance order from Judge Sutherland, the murder trial of Henry F. Bausell, 58, Lebanon newspeper publisher, will be called here tomorrow morning.

Bausell is charged with shooting T. Eugene Cornett at the latter's home at Rural Retreat January 13. As court opened today the order was received postponing the hearing a day. Some jurymen were on hand, others had not appeared in court.

The trial will be perhaps the last in a series growing out of the death of Cornett and his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Cornett Bausell. Bernace Bausell, husband of the dead woman, has been convicted of the murder of her father. Both Bausells, father and son, were tried jointly on the charge of killing Mrs. Bausell and both cleared.

The shooting is supposed to have resulted from a family discussion over the custody of the small daughter of Bernace and Virginia Cornett Bausell, who were estranged at the time.

School for Nurses Is Discontinued

Chambersburg, Pa., July 19 (Spl.). Faced with the insistence over the past few years by the Pennsylvania department of public instruction board of examiners for registration of nurses that reason be shown for continuing the Nurses' Training School, the board of directors of the Chambersburg Hospital has voted to discontinue the school September 1.

The 11 student nurses now in training will be transferred to accredited hospitals to complete their training. Recommendations of the State board of examiners calling for a higher standard of education for the supervisory staff and for changes in the methods of teaching student nurses were the motives behind the decision.

Under the new plan the hospital will be operated with graduate general duty nurses and maids, instead of graduate nurses, maids and student nurses.

Virginia Bans Lapsed Policy Time Payments

Insurance in Arrears Must Be Settled in Full, Bowles Orders.

Richmond, July 19 (Spl.).—An order prohibiting, after August 20, collection of part payments for premiums in arrears by industrial life and sick benefit companies operating in Virginia was issued today by George A. Bowles, superintendent of insurance, following a lengthy investigation of the industrial insurance business.

Twenty-one companies are affected by the ruling, and there now is in force in Virginia $245,677,610 in industrial insurance.

The companies are in full accord with the change, Mr. Bowles said, and the new order puts Virginia regulations in conformity with those of North and South Carolina and other States.

The inquiry developed that while installment collection of premiums in arrears in many instances has been a convenience to persons seeking to reinstate lapsed policies, the practice also has been "open to certain abuses," the superintendent of insurance explained.

"This ruling," he said, "is not to be construed or interpreted as criticism of insurance practices, since the companies themselves are in full accord with bringing about this uniform procedure * * * the companies feel that this ruling will be a decided benefit to both policyholder and company.

"In the past it has been the practice of the companies to make installment collections of the premiums on industrial insurance policies which were in arrears in an effort to assist the policyholder in getting his policy back in force. The order ends this practice by providing that 'the agent shall not be permitted to accept any money in payment of the premiums which are in arrears on any industrial policy that has lapsed and which the insured seeks to reinstate unless such payment shall amount to the total of such arrears and thereby enable the insurance to make immediate application for reinstatement of the policy.'"

Girl Diver Finds 11-Year-Old Boy's Body in Va. Pool

Martinsville, Va., July 19 (AP).—Miss Mary Pannill dived into the Liberty Heights swimming pool yesterday afternoon and came to the surface screaming.

She had discovered the body of 11-year-old Herbert Tate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tate, of North Martinsville.

A life guard dove immediately and brought the body to the surface. Doctors said the boy apparently had been dead an hour.

Herbert had been in the amusement park pool most of the afternoon, and up to the time his body was discovered had not been missed. Later, commpanions recalled seeing him dive and, intent on their own pleasure, did not recall seeing him come to the surface again.

Virginia Begins Study to Allot U. S. Road Fund

State Gets $3,700,000 for Improvements During Year.

Richmond, July 19 (Spl.).—Preliminary study for disposition of $3,700,000 of Federal road funds which have been allotted to Virginia was begun by the State Highway Commission in Richmond today.

Henry G. Shirley, highway commissioner, said that no allocation would be announced at an early date as regulations adopted by the United States Bureau of Public Roads were stringent and required the use of much figuring in distributing the funds within the State.

One half of the Federal fund must go to roads in the Federal-aid system. One-fourth will go to city streets which are part of the Federal system and the remaining one-fourth goes to feeder and post roads not in the Federal system.

Regulations, which prohibit use of these funds on roads being built by convicts and in purchase of materials manufactured by convicts, are much the same as those which were issued last year, but emphasis, is laid this year on use of Federal money for prevention of accidents. This means that it must be used to a great extent in eliminating grade crossings and straightening highways.

Baltimore Sees Business Rise In Six Months

Auto Sales Lead Boost in Report Compiled by Chamber.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Business conditions in Baltimore have been marked by a "significanct advance" during the past six months, it was noted today in a report compiled by G. H. Pouder, executive vice president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.

In making public the results of a survey just completed, Mr. Pouder pointed out that new commercial auto sales are nearly 51 per cent higher than for the same period last year, while new passenger automobile sales are 47 per cent higher.

Industrial power consumption has increased 18.7 per cent, department store sales 18.8 per cent, street railway passengers 15.7 per cent, and exports and imports were 132.2 per cent higher than for the same period in 1933.

Bank debits have increased 21.9 per cent for the same period, and bank clearings 35.9 per cent. In a general discussion of conditions, Mr. Pouder said: "Analyzing Baltimore's business half year, it is apparent that the peak of general activity was in April and May although in some respects June was better than any preceding month. In commercial car sales and in industrial and commercial gas consumption, the month was the best June since 1931.

"Last month employment in selected industries decreased by 3.2 per cent under May, while pay rolls showed a gain of 1.2 per cent for the same period according to the Maryland Bureau of Labor and Statistics. From June, 1933, to the same month of 1934 local industrial employment increased by 27.8 per cent and pay rolls advanced by 57.2 per cent."

Md. Bigamist Gets 18 Months

Sentence Then Suspended to Investigate Claim of Wife's Death.

Westminster, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Carroll R. Yingling, of Snydersburg, Carroll County, was sentenced today by Chief Judge Francis Neal Park, of the circuit court, to 18 months in the Maryland Penitentiary for bigamy.

The sentence was suspended for two weeks, pending an investigation to determine whether Yingling's first wife is alive.

Yingling testified that he was married to Nettie Hornsby at Yorktown, Va., in 1928; that she later left him and that when he married Rosella Bowers, of Snydersburg, in November, 1933, he thought his first wife was dead.

A second charge against Yingling of perjury in connection with statements made on his application for a marriage license, was nol-prossed by the State's attorney.

Other sentences were:

Ernest Stultz, Westminster, charged with a statutory crime, two years in the Maryland House of Correction; Joseph H. D. Taylor, Westminster, charged with nonsupport, sentence suspended; Charles J. Null, Pleasant Valley, charged with nonsupport, sentenced to pay his wife, Hazel Null, $2.50 per week for three years.

Legionnaires Open Show.

Salisbury, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—A two-day American Legion show, "The World's All Right," was opened tonight at the Wicomico High School stadium under auspices of the local post, assisted by Company I, Maryland National Guard.

Blackstone Weekly Awarded Virginia Newspaper Prizes

Receives Certificates at Association's Annual Convention.

Charlottesville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The Courier-Record, of Blackstone, edited and managed by W. C. Coleburn, this afternoon received two awards in the annual "Better Newspaper Contest," held for Virginia weeklies and semiweeklies by the Virginia Press Association.

The Blackstone weekly was given 1934 Rhame certificates for the best front page and for the best press work. The awards featured the opening session of the association's forty-sixth annual convention.

The Farmville Herald, published by J. B. Wall at Farmville, won the certificate for the best handling of display advertising among the 32 weeklies entered in this year's contest.

The Peninsula Enterprise, published by John and Alfred Edmonds at Accomac, was judged to have the best general make-up.

Issues of May 18 were studied by the judges, who were Marlen Pew, editor of Editor & Publisher, New York; Laurance S. Siegfried, editor of the American Printer, and John E. Allen, editor of the Linotype News.

Mr. Allen had a leading part on the opening program this afternoon, conducting a "newspaper clinic."

The three-day convention was convened at 2 p. m. by Louis Spilman, publisher of the Waynesboro News-Virginian and association president.

City Manager Seth Burnley welcomed delegates and Josiah P. Rowe, publisher, Fredericksburg Free Lance Star and former association president, responded. John E. Roberts, manager Western Newspaper Union, Baltimore, and B. Arp Lowrence, of Charlotte, administrator graphic arts code for North Carolina, will speak tomorrow.

The delegates were the guests of the University of Virginia at a dinner tonight, at which Dean Charles G. Maphis, director of the Institute of Public Affairs, and Edwin Lee, president of the local chamber of commerce, were speakers.

Virginia Fete Of Music Lures Entire Valley

Fourth Annual Festival Called One of Most Colorful in History.

By A. R. O'Roark.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 19.—Attracting an audience from the entire Shenandoah Valley from Harpers Ferry to Roanoke, tonight's program of folk music of many nations at the Massanetta Springs fourth annual sacred music festival, under the leadership of Mrs. David Barnum, Norfolk, was one of the most colorful events of its kind ever held in the Valley of Virginia.

The singing of folk songs of Germany, Italy, Holland England, France, Scotland, Ireland, Chile and the United States accompanied by folk dances presented by music clubs of the State in colorful costumes, constituted a performance which figuratively swept the audience from its feet with its deep feeling and expression and its graceful and educational interpretation of folk lore.

Many Groups Take Part.

Staged upon the gently rolling green of the Massanetta grounds under powerful white flood lights, the songs and dances were offered under capable leaders. Songs and dances of the German nation, rendered by 135 children and girls from the State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, were under the direction of Miss Ethel Spillman, Harrisonburg, and Miss Mary Deffenbaugh Washington. The Lyric Trio, of Norfolk, appeared on the Italian program, and music of the Netherlands was presented by Staunton high school girls.

England's folk songs and dances were interpreted by the Scherzo Music Club, Norfolk, and the Young Artists Club, Clifton Forge, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Meredith. Members of the Scherzo Music Club and Staunton high school girls under the leadership of Miss Mary Lou Bell, Staunton, staged the programs of Scotland, Ireland and Chile. Young women of Massanetta Springs appeared on the French program, dancing the minuet.

Folk music of America was arranged and directed by Mrs. Annabel Morris Buchanan, authority on this type of music, and originator of the Festival of White Top Mountain. John Powell, Virginia's noted pianist, delivered an address on folk music and introduced the fiddlers and other performers from the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains.

2,000 Will Sing Today.

The climax of the program will be reached tomorrow night when a choir of 2,000 voices from Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, under the direction of Dr. John Finley Williamson, of the Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J., will offer a program of sacred music.

Among the thousands of persons from Virginia and neighboring States scheduled to attend will be the mayors and presidents of Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of practically every town and city in the Shenandoah Valley.

Among the mayors who have expressed their intention of being present and taking part in the processional are S. T. Seifert, Roanoke; C. H. Rivercomb, Covington; G. A. Rhodes, Lexington; Mr. Tyman, Charlottesville; George C. Cottrell, Staunton; C. R. Anderson, Winchester; G. A. Woods, New Market, and Mark Swank, Harrisonburg.

Rotary and Kiwanis Club presidents attending and participating will be D. J. Howard, Winchester; Dr. George W. Parrott, New Market; J. Gold Knisley, Woodstock; Samuel Rader, Lexington; John L. Liveley, Charlottesville; William B. Smith, Roanoke; Arthur Gable, Charlottesville; Mr. Chapman, Roanoke; L. F. Shelburne, Staunton; Frank Switzer, Harrisonburg and others.

Orange to Ask Nation's Head To Celebration

County Also Wants Eight Governors to Attend Bicentennial.

Orange, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—President Roosevelt and the Governors of West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Michigan and Wisconsin will be invited to Orange as guests of the Orange County Bicentennial Celebration and Pageant here September 25 to 28.

The invitation to the President will be tendered upon his return from the cruise he is now making. The Governors will be invited by Gov. Peery of Virginia.

The occasion is the 200th anniversary of the partition of Orange as a separate county. Prior to 1734, the boundaries of Orange County were those of the Northwest Territory, later ceded by Virginia to the United States and containing the States named above.

Princesses from every county originally contained in the Orange County grant, Greene, Augusta, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Fairfax, Loudoun, Fauquier, Frederick, Shenandoah, Madison and from the above-named States, will be selected by their respective localities and will be guests of honor at a pageant ball September 27. A queen will be chosen from their number. Mrs. Peytie Johnson and Dr. Carroll Chewning, president of the Rotary Club of Orange, are asking the Rotary Clubs in each locality to appoint a princess.

Family History Asked.

Letters are being sent members of all original families of Orange throughout the country by the historical committee, the chairman of which is D. N. Davidson, county historian and superintendent of schools. They are requested to send to the central office information regarding their families which can be used to complete the genealogies from the founding of the county to the present day. The completion of those histories is to form a major part of the celebration. Members of the committee include Mrs. Barton H. Cameron of Gordonsville, Mr. Thomas Barbour, of Somerset; Judge A. T. Browning, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson, of Rapidan; Mrs. Sue H. Wright, of Portsmouth; Mr. C. P. Cowherd, and Miss Mary Cameron, of Gordonsville; Mrs. P. W. Hiden, of Newport News; T. T. Tinder, of Mine Run; Mr. B. P. Willis, of Fredericksburg, and others.

Mrs. Charles B. Keesee, of Martinsville, regent of the Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution, has said she is ready to organize a chapter of the society in Orange for the celebration.

Special individual group celebrations will be other features of the event. Baptists from all over the State will participate in erecting a marker at Gum Spring, where Parson Leland secretly met James Madison and formulated with him the principles of religious freedom later incorporated into the Constitution of the United States. Lutherans from all parts of the country will take part in the celebration at Germanna of the founding of the first Lutheran and the first Reform churches in this country. The Junior Women's Clubs of the State will be asked to participate in a celebration in honor of William Madison, considered one of the fathers of the public schools in America.

Pageant Casting Begun.

As many descendants of the original settlers as is possible will be invited to take part in the pageant. The historical committee will be in charge of the casting and has already secured Harrison Spottswood, of Orange, to portray his ancestor, Gov. Alexander Spottswood. A special committee has been appointed in Germanna to cast the proper persons for the episode showing Gov. Spottswood importing residents of two small towns in Westphalia, Germany, to start the iron mines in Orange County. The committee is composed of J. B. Fray, W. L. Utz, J. C. Crigler, Lee S. Blankenbaker, Alcey Weaver and C. L. Yowell.

A museum committee is also being formed by Mr. Davidson to collect any works of art, literature, or industry wrought by members of the original families of Orange. The committee will also collect the authentic furniture of the colonial period now owned by Orange County residents for a special exhibit.

Col. Charles D. Winn, U. S. A., retired, is executive secretary for the celebration

Spillman Heads Milk Unit.

Richmond, July 19 (AP).—The State milk commission has announced that Louis Spillman, of Waynesboro, has been named chairman of the local milk board for the Staunton and Waynesboro area.

In Senate Race

MRS. WILLIAM B. SNYDER, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., is seeking the Republican nomination for the State Senate from the Fifteenth West Virginia District, comprising Jefferson, Berkeley, Morgan and Hampshire Counties. A former member of the State Parole Board and active in club affairs, Mrs. Synder is the first Eastern Panhandle woman to seek any office other than a county post.

Albemarle Baptists Pick Rev. J. L. White

Fork Union Cleric Named Moderator as Group Adjourns '34 Session.

Charlottesville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The 144th annual session of the Albemarle Baptist Association was adjourned late yesterday to meet next year with the Scottsville Church.

The Rev. R. J. Mann, of Red Hill, was chosen to deliver the annual sermon, with Dr. Russell C. White, pastor of the University Baptist Church, this city, as alternate.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were:

Moderator, the Rev. James L. White, jr., Fork Union; vice moderator, the Rev. Oscar E. Northen, Scottsville, and secretary-treasurer. J. C. Phillips, Crozet.

Addresses were made at the morning session by Dr. J. J. Wicker, president of Fork Union Military Academy, and Dr. George T. Waite, of Richmond. The former's topic was "Christian Education," while the latter told of the work in the Baptist mission's field of the State. The cause of home and foreign missions was presented at the afternoon meeting by the Rev. R. E. L. Aylor, of Red Hill, and Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of First Baptist Church, Richmond.

Valley Baptists Meet At East Radford in '35

Roanoke, Va., July 19 (AP).—Adopting a report of the committee on time and place at the closing assembly of the 107th session at Belmont Baptist Church yesterday, the Valley Baptist Association voted to meet in 1935 at First Baptist Church, East Radford, the first Tuesday and Wednesday following the third Sunday in July.

G. E. Trout, Roanoke, was reelected chairman of the executive committee, and other members, with the exception of W. W. Boxley, of Roanoke, also were chosen for new terms. Dr. George D. Stevens, moderator, was authorized to appoint a successor to Mr. Boxley. The other members are W. R. Whitescarver, Sale; M. S. Noffsinger, Roanoke; G. H. Brugh, Buchanan; C. J. Crews, East Radford, and Roy Bolton, Fincastle.

A report on State missions by the Rev. Lee Sheppard, pastor of Blacksburg Church, and an address on the "Relationship of the State Mission Church to the Denominational Program," by the Rev. E. T. Clark, pastor of Winchester Church, featured the day's program.

Funds paid in for the support of the cooperative program are $11,000 ahead of those for the corresponding period last year, Frank T. Crump, treasurer of the General Association of Virginia, reported.

Virginia Drys May Fight Wet Assemblymen

Prohibitionists Declare Control Law Proves a Failure.

Richmond, July 19 (Spl.).—Possibility that the still formidable dry faction of the Democratic party would make war on a number of assemblymen, who voted for beer and for liquor control in 1933 and 1934, was causing some nervousness in political circles today.

The wets ran rough-shod over the drys in the repeal election in Virginia on October 3, 1933. Assemblymen from dry and wet territory accepted the majority as a mandate to vote for a control system. Assemblymen from dry territory have discovered, however, that there may be trouble ahead for them.

Dry leaders were placed on the control study commission. They were consulted in preparation of the control law in the legislature, but this has not quieted them.

Furthermore, experience with control has given the die-hard drys new ammunition. They insist that bootlegging has decreased only in the cities, that there is much more drinking now than ever before and that there is a great deal more drunken driving.

The wets—except those wet assemblymen whose constituents are dry—are not particularly bothered about the situation as yet. They insist that control has gotten away to a gratifying start and that before 1936, the control system will have proved itself. The system already has diverted more than $500,000 from bootleg channels into legitimate trade, they say.

Meanwhile the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is watching closely sale of liquors by its stores, with an idea of eliminating the unprofitable ones.

The board has concluded that a store with sales amounting to less than $500 a day is unprofitable, but what is to be done about these stores is a matter that has not yet been determined.

The board is endeavoring to give all stores a fair trial. It is probable that no stores will be closed before late summer, the theory being that the sale of hard liquors may not be great during the summer months.

Rockingham County is the next locality to vote on the question of whether its people want a State liquor store, and the private licensee sale of high test wines and beers. The date of the election is August 7.

Danville, the first community to vote on the question, has decided to be wet for four years.

ABC Takes Options On Danville Sites

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—George Snead, head of the real estate division of the ABC board, left for Richmond today with options on three centrally located sites for a dispensary here.

He thought that the State would be doing business here within ten days and that a second dispensary would be open within 90 days.

The official canvass of the returns in Tuesday's local option election increased the dispensary majority from 596 to 600. The total vote was 3,425.

Annapolis Man Killed Self, Coroner Declares

Annapolis, July 19 (Spl.).—Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, acting coroner, gave a verdict of suicide in the case of John Brown, 57, Annapolis building contractor, whose body was found at his hme here last night with a bullet through his head.

The body was discovered by Brown's daughter, Miss Gertrude Brown. It was lying on the floor of his room, his right hand clenching a pistol from which one shot had been fired.

1 Killed, Another Hurt In Motorcycle Crash

Uniontown, Pa., July 19 (U.P.).—Robert Shively, 23, Morgantown, W. Va., was killed and Robert Miller, 23, Fairmont, W. Va. was critically injured when their motorcycle sideswiped a heavy truck 2 miles north of Point Marion today.

The youths, going to Pittsburgh, were rounding a curve when they hit a truck driven by George Assif, Uniontown, State police said.

30-Day Water Fowl Season Arouses Virginia Sportsmen

Believe Proposed Ruling Favors Conditions Only on Pacific Coast.

Richmond, July 19 (Spl.).—Virginia sportsmen are aroused over the statement of J. N. Darling, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, that the season for shooting wild geese, ducks and other migratory water fowl is to be cut from the two months' period allowed last year to 30 days this fall.

M. D. Hart, executive secretary of the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, said today that he would not be surprised if a vigorous protest was made by Virginia hunters.

The water fowl season, according to Mr. Darling, will run generally from October 1 to January 15, and States will be allowed to choose any 30 days within this period for their shooting.

At a recent meeting of the Atlantic Coast Game Commissioners a resolution was adopted to have a general season running from October 1 to January 31, with each State determining what period of 60 days would be adopted for shooting within its confines. The idea of the Atlantic Coast Commissioners was that they would extend their shooting periods over the greater part of the general period by prescribing rest periods, from time to time, during which water fowl could not be legally shot.

This, they argued, would enable guides, coast guards and sportsmen to continue their operations, intermittently, during the greater part of the general period they proposed.

Virginia sportsmen feel that the proposed Federal regulation is in response to representations made in regard to conditions on the Pacific Coast rather than as to conditions on the Atlantic Coast.

Tax Yield Far Under Estimate

Less Than $700,000 Taken by West Virginia for Gross Income Levy.

Charleston, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.). The State tax department reports that the State gross income tax enacted last year is failing as a revenue producer, when judged by original estimates of its yield.

The figures show that it has produced less than half of the amount expected.

Collections for 1933 amount to less than $700,000, as against the legislative estimate of $1,400,000.

It is contended, however, by spokesmen for the revenue and collecting agencies, that more will eventually be produced by the tax for the first year as thousands paid their initial tax under protest for only seven months of the year, owing to its retroactive feature. The law, enacted May 26, 1933, provided than it was to be paid for the entire calendar year.

The retroative feature was upheld by the State supreme court. Since then, however, few delinquents have paid for the five months period, because it was announced that the test would be carried to the United State Supreme Court.

The law calls for payment of 1 per cent of gross incomes of individuals. Married men are exempt $1,000, and $400 for each dependent.

New Trial Granted In Accident Case

Luray, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Judge H. W. Bertram has announced that he will grant a new trial in at least one of the four trials against S. W. Harris, of Augusta County, who is alleged to have been responsible for four deaths on the Eastside Highway, 10 miles south of Luray, more than a year ago.

The first trial against Harris was [illegible] administrator of May McDaniel, [illegible] was killed in an automobile collision. Judge Bertram agrees to [illegible] a new trial based on the fact [illegible] the court was wrong in giving [illegible] instructions to the jury. In the many cases for damages against Harris, amounting to $40,000, only one went against Harris. This was that of C. S. Royer's administrator. This granted Royer's administrator $250 for damage to the car in the collision and $750 for the death of Royer.

Hagerstown Is Sure Of Adequate Water

Big Supply in Reservoir Despite Drought.

Hagerstown, Md., July 19 (Spl.). With 35,000,000 gallons of water remaining in its Edgemont reservoir today, Superintendent Albert Heard expected this would be sufficient to continue bringing at least a million gallons daily to the city from its mountain supply.

Dry weather here has caused many of the smaller mountain streams which feed the two reservoirs to go dry. Heard said it was not unusual to cut off the mountain supply entirely at this time of the year. Last year it was cut off July 1, and the entire consumption supplied from the Potomac River pumping station. Hagerstown built a pumping station on the Potomac River about 5 years ago, and augments its mountain supply, which comes by gravity with its river water.

Boy, 15, Drowned In Brother's Sight

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—A 15-year-old boy drowned in the harbor here today while his younger brother looked on, powerless to aid him.

John Lucas, 15, had taken his brother, Mason Lucas, 12, to a pier to watch him dive. John plunged into the water, and came to the surface struggling. As Mason watched in terror, the elder boy sank.

The younger boy's cries brought two men, who dived repeatedly trying to find the boy. A police boat recovered the body.

Man Is Saved From Gas By Salisbury Firemen

Salisbury, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Allan Orrison, 26, was taken to Peninsula General Hospital last night after city firemen, in response to an emergency call, had partially revived him from the effects of gas.

Orrison is alleged to have plugged the openings in the kitchen and to have turned on the gas. He was discovered, however, by other roomers. Staff physicians at the hospital said today that he was out of danger.

Galestown Church to Reopen.

Seaford, Del., July 19 (Spl.).—Reopening services of the Galestown (Md.) Methodist Episcopal Church on Galestown-Reliance Charge, the Rev. Wilbur F. Corkran, of West Seaford, pastor, will be held Sunday, featured by special music.

Trio Held as Vandals By Waynesboro Court

Waynesboro, Va., July 19 (Spl.). Hearing for three men charged with vandalism in Riverview Cemetery has been set for tomorrow morning in Justice W. Terrell Sheehan's court. The men, arrested yesterday by Constable Frank Fitzgerald, are Hub Farrar, David Clemmons and Ed May.

The warrant, secured by C. J. Wright, treasurer of the cemetery, charged that the trio entered the cemetery on Sunday night and damaged monuments.

Automobile Hits Deer; 2 Hurt, Car Smashed

Everett, Pa., July 19 (Spl.). When their automobile struck a deer and crashed into a pole on the Lincoln highway between here and Bedford early yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford J. Baer, of Baltimore sustained bruises and lacerations and the deer, a 10-point buck, was killed.

The deer was turned over to Warden Dittmar, of Bedford County and the meat distributed to Everett relief agencies. The automobile was demolished.

Firemen to Appear In Pajama Parade

Waynesboro, Pa., July 19 (Spl.). Announcement was made today of prizes for a pajama parade, the second night of the thirty-third annual convention of the Cumberland Valley Firemen's Association here August 14 to 16.

Invitation acceptances have been received from practically all fire companies in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. On the third day of the convention a civic parade will be held, featuring drills by firemen, band contests and an exhibit of fire-fighting equipment and methods.

For the pajama parade $200 will be given, first awards amounting to $50; second, to $35, with individual ones of $10, $5 and $3.

Tire Factory Dispute At Cumberland Settled

Cumberland, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Officials of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., and United Rubber Workers, Local No. 19007, closed their labor dispute yesterday when union committeemen were informed that terms of the agreement reached at a hearing before the regional board in Pittsburgh, Pa., last Friday, had been approved by company officials in New York.

J. M. Reed, chairman of the union grievance committee, said last night his committee was informed that all the 18 furloughed union men would be returned to work this week. Several of them said to be union officers, were returned Monday.

Norfolk Police Hunt Pipe Attacker of Girl

Norfolk, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Norfolk County authorities today were seeking an unidentified man who attacked Irma Cannon, 17, with an iron pipe as she slept in her home early today.

O. E. Cannon, father of the girl, reported that the man entered through a side window and went into his daughter's bedroom, striking her twice. The girl awoke. Her cries awakened her father, who hastened to the room in time to see the man jump out the window.

Rites For Drowning Victim.

In North Dakota.

North Dakota's imbroglio, resulting from the conflicting orders of two governors, might be humorous if less serious issues were at stake. Gov. Langer has been seeking support from the National Guard and the Legislature in a desperate effort to avoid deposition, in spite of the State Supreme Court's ruling that he is ineligible to retain his post. Lieut. Gov. Olson, who took the oath of office following Langer's conviction on a charge of soliciting political funds from Federal employes, has been recognized as chief executive by the supreme court, but he is having a difficult time to establish his authority.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the case is the popularity of the convicted Governor. He is reported to have overwhelming support in the Legislature. In spite of his conviction, he was renominated as the Republican candidate for Governor by a huge majority. Before the law he is ineligible to hold a high official position, but in the eyes of North Dakota he still appears something of a hero.

No doubt it is this popular indorsement which led Gov. Langer to believe that he could defy the law and nullify the edicts of the State's highest tribunal through military force. By their attitude the people have openly encouraged revolution in North Dakota. The underlying issue of respect for constituted authority has been waived aside.

It is this aspect of the fracas at Bismarck which gives cause for serious thought. Respect for judicial decisions has been weakened in many parts of the country. Administrative officials have been encouraged to believe that they are all powerful, so long as they can secure a popular support for their policies. The controversy as to who is Governor of North Dakota appears to be in process of settlement. But the larger issue of upholding the fundamental law and the institutions which have grown up under it against the encroachments of ambitious individuals and groups is by no means solved. Nor will it be until Washington sets a scrupulous example to the State capitals.

Another Breach Of Contract.

After the Young Plan was adopted the Bank for International Settlements became the agency for collecting and transferring interest on Dawes and Young bonds. On July 15, following its announcement of a suspension of transfers on these bonds, the German Government failed to provide foreign exchange to meet monthly payments.

Consequently the B. I. S., acting on behalf of trustees for the Dawes loan, has requested the Reichsbank to attach certain customs and internal revenue receipts pledged specifically as a guarantee of payment. The German government claims that payment has been made in marks, and protests against impounding of receipts "which would place in jeopardy its vital interests." The Reichsbank has been ordered, therefore, to disregard the trustee request, and the agreement has been repudiated.

Germany's insistence upon inclusion of the Dawes and Young bonds within the general transfer moratorium has been accepted as a challenge by many, who are prepared to concede Germany's inability to continue payments on a large proportion of her external indebtedness. The reparations bonds fall in a special category as obligations of the Reich issued in accordance with international agreements of a particularly binding character. In view of this fact and considering the modest sums required to cover interest, Germany's action seems to be evidence of bad faith, rather than involuntary default.

Through sinking fund redemptions, repurchase, and as a result of currency depreciation in creditor countries, the nominal principal represented by both issues has already been sharply reduced. As a result, monthly payments on the Dawes loan amount at present to a sum only slightly in excess of 4,000,000 marks. The interest on the Young bonds—against which no revenues are pledged—totals about 6,300,000 marks monthly. The contention of the Government that it can not transfer these small sums is open to doubt, especially since the British Government has forced a settlement in full, with other European creditor countries preparing to take similar action.

This repudiation of the terms of specially-guaranteed obligations of the Reich, combined with the discriminatory treatment of American holders of reparations bonds, deals another severe blow to the confidence of investors. It is one that will not soon be forgotten and may cost Germany much more in the future than the sacrifice required to continue making payments on these loans.

This latest breach of contract also emphasizes the inadequacy of special guarantees when a borrowing government refuses to fulfill the terms of its contract. Short of forcible collection following invasion—a method abhorent as well as often ineffective—foreign creditors have no redress except when they are in a position to resort to retaliation in kind. That, too, is a proceeding that in the long run injures creditor as well as debtor countries.

After The Strike.

Four days are quite enough to make or break a general strike, and that length of time has proved more than ample to bring collapse to the dangerous social experiment attempted in San Francisco. The manifestation, as a matter of fact, was disintegrating under the influence of commonsense before the general strike committee voted by a narrow majority to bring it to a close.

There will be much discussion as to whether this strike was good or bad labor tactics; a savage attempt to hold up a great community, or a justifiable protest against abuses which needed graphic emphasis in order to secure their elimination. Full evidence to judge those questions is not yet available. But what is certain is that San Francisco kept its head during a very trying period.

The civil and military authorities are to be congratulated on the fact that these four days passed without bloodshed, and with only minor attacks on the provocative Communist agitators, for which outraged labor elements are reported to have been responsible. The strike committee and the participating unions are to be commended for handling their tremendous protest with discipline, restraint, and a great deal of dignity. The employers involved in the dispute have apparently sought earnestly this week to forward a reasonable settlement of the underlying issues. And the patience and good humor of the unfortunate public have been exemplary.

But highest praise should perhaps be reserved for the conduct of the Communists. Their shrieking, shouting, epileptic tactics have so thoroughly discredited that fanatic rabble of trouble-makers that its reemergence as a factor of importance in other industrial disputes is scarcely probable. Without the object lesson of their noisy futility provided by San Francisco, the Communist influence in labor circles might have become less negligible. This is scarcely likely now.

And it will be still less likely if, with the strike over, the reasonable employers and the reasonable workers of San Francisco sit down to work out a cooperative settlement of the grievances, abuses and injustices which led to the flare-up. Between the lunatic fringes on extreme left and extreme right stand the great majority who have everything to lose and nothing to gain by the sedulous exploitation of class war. The good sense shown in San Francisco the last few days gives promise that the intelligent leadership of the community will insist that bygones be bygones, and will see to it that no excuse is left for recurrence of an outburst which might so easily have brought ruin in its train.

Where The Old Deal Wins.

In an article in the current American Magazine, H. G. Wells asserts that the country is as yet unprepared for the Administration's great social effort, in which he finds much that is admirable as a result of inquiry on the scene. As proof of this lack of preparation, he cites the fact that we have "no civil service class, with the necessary morale for the carrying out of this vast proposition."

Despite the fact that the objectives of the Roosevelt Administration fall far short of the ambitious aspirations of Mr. Wells, he sees that even its limited aims depend for success upon the development of a conscientious and competent body of civil servants. Resistance to spoilsmen has never been so imperative as under existing conditions, with the Government engaged in social experiments involving huge public disbursements as well as a high degree of technical knowledge.

Under these circumstances it is ironic that Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, should feel it imperative to state that there is "an atmosphere of cynical indifference on the part of National authorities who should be standing as bulwarks of the merit system." His further assertion that "spoilsmen are undermining the whole structure of the Federal civil service" is borne out by the Administration's appointment of 89,000 persons outside the classified service. It is also shown by the methods applied in the selection of candidates for office, and in the parceling out of patronage among local political groups.

On his first day in office, for instance, the new head of Tammany Hall announced that he had already distributed a score or so of Federal positions. He added that "of recent months, Tammany's share of Federal jobs has been exceedingly slim." So Mr. Dooling's modest beginning is no doubt a mere foretaste of the harvest to be garnered at a later date by a slightly whitewashed Tammany, under a leadership acceptable to the Postmaster General.

While such methods prevail, there is not even a possibility of preparing for the great experiments which Mr. Wells envisages as the work of the future. And, more to the point, they serve to cast ridicule on the limited "economic planning" to which the Administration has set its hand.

Once More The Goat.

Just as Washingtonians were welcoming some slight amelioration from the temperatures of early summer, our local winter climate has been cited as a reasonable cause for separation in a prominent divorce suit.

Washington weather has always suffered much at the hands of its critics, one school complaining that it is unpleasantly raw for one-half of the year, and the other school asserting that it is unendurably hot throughout the other half. These criticisms have of late become respectively colder and hotter. And here at length is Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo—after a long meteorological test, broken of course, but dating from March 4, 1913—who rests a portion of her plea for the legal dissolution of her marriage upon the atmospheric condition of the lower Potomac Valley.

Many would like to see these assaults against our weather ended, but we do not believe they can be. The dog was given its bad name at a now too distant date. We recall the story that George Washington, after the winter of suffering at Valley Forge, sought a permanent seat of government where the thermometer would register in the upper levels, and succeeded beyond expectations. But that is legendary and must be taken with a lump of ice.

A Test Case For NRA.

The public is not in a position to pass judgment upon the merits of the conflicts that inevitably arise between the NRA and individual concerns which refuse to obey official orders or comply with code provisions. However, it is only through such struggles that the limits of authority of the Government and the rights of the individual under the recovery law can be defined.

The threat to deprive the Greif Company of its "Blue Eagle," for example, because it refused to obey an order of the code authority prescribing wages above the minimum for certain employes, will afford a much needed test of the wage-fixing powers of the recovery administration. The company has complied with the provisions relating to payment of minimum wages, but it does not consider itself legally bound to pay higher than minimum rates. Therefore, it has secured an injunction temporarily restraining the NRA and code officials from attempting to force it to obey the order, hoping that no action will be taken to deprive it of the "Blue Eagle" until the case has been heard on its merits.

As the injunction will not affect anyone outside the State of Maryland, its effect of course is largely moral. However, it has brought the issue of the Constitutionality of wage fixing squarely to public attention before the code authority had actually tried to punish the recalcitrant.

A committee of the American Bar Association has recently called attention to the multiplicity of rules and regulations having the force of law which have followed passage of the recovery act and other emergency legislation. As the lawyers stated, the Constitutional rights of individuals are jeopardized by the existence of a vast mass of laws and Executive decrees which can not be digested and often are not even known to exist.

When administrative agencies proceed to impose punishments for alleged violation of their orders, the offender is in a peculiarly helpless position. If, for example, the Greif Company were to be deprived of its "Blue Eagle" prior to determination of its legal right to disobey the code authority's command, the protection afforded it against unwarranted punishment would not save it from losses which might throw many workers out of employment.

The sooner the Constitutional issues are brought before the courts of the country for determination, the fewer the chances will be for that insidious undermining of Constitutionally guaranteed rights which is undoubtedly possible under the recovery legislation.

"The Merchant" in Venice.

Max Reinhardt's open-air presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" in the city where Shakespeare laid its scene seems to have been less of a success for the author than for the producer. Dispatches from the critics present lament the impediments affecting both the German impresario and the Italian cast in interpreting this English classic.

These criticisms again demonstrate what every student of Shakespeare has long known: that, universal in the poetic sense, he remains essentially Anglo-Saxon in the dramatic. "Julius Caesar" is as English as if its Forum were Cheapside. But the Venetian failure seems to have still other roots.

Reinhardt, after all, remains a stage carpenter—probably the most wonderful stage carpenter that ever lived, but always a maker of pageants. And, except in some of the chronicle-plays, Shakespeare not only never lends himself to pageant gracefully, but is always more poet than dramatist. "The Miracle" was a triumph for Reinhardt and will remain a lasting monument to his technique. But Shakespeare's best monument is the English text of Shakespeare. His plays are not hurt by modernistic staging and costuming. They may be injured by the labored realism of an exotic setting.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world. That's the trouble with it.

"Earth God Gave to Man."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The greatest of all questions, ever with us, is the land question. It has appealed to philosophers in all ages. The name of Lincoln is intimately associated with patriotic celebrations. Said he in reference to the land question: "The land, the earth God gave to man for his home, sustenance and support, should never be the possession of any man, corporation or unfriendly government, any more than air or water, if as much."

It may be of interest to quote other Americans on this question as follows: "Every man, as an inhabitant of the earth, is a joint proprietor of it in its natural state."—Thomas Paine. "I set out on this ground, which I suppose to be self-evident, that the earth belongs in usufruct to the living; that the dead have neither power nor rights over it."—Thomas Jefferson. "He who has no clear inherent right to live somewhere has no right to live at all."—Horace Greeley. "Of course, whilst another man has no land, my title to mine, your title to yours, is at once vitiated."—R. W. Emerson.

"Those who say it would be unjust for the people to resume their natural rights in the land without compensating present holders, confound right and wrong as flagrantly as did they who held it a crime in the slave to run away without first paying his owner his market value. . . . The earth is an entailed estate—entailed upon all the generations of the children of men, by a deed written in the constitution of Nature, a deed that no human proceedings can bar, and no prescription determine."—Henry George.

Our Sidewalks and Others.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad that some attention is finally being called to the disgusting condition of Washington parks and streets, littered as they constantly are with papers, trash and filth.

A recent letter to The Post signed M. A. R. S., makes the excellent suggestion that instead of spending $500,000 to clean the outside of the Monument the money be expended in cleaning up streets and sidewalks which badly need it. They not only should be cleaned, but the public should be trained to keep them clean.

Nobody in Europe thinks of dropping papers and trash in public places. Let him try it, and a dozen citizens, not counting policemen, will rush to warn him. I find that even in New York City, with ten times the congestion of Washington, the streets are clean and neat by comparison. This is doubtless largely due to the absence of parked automobiles, which makes cleaning them an easier matter; but apparently the habits of the general public are better in this important respect.

Why is it only in the Nation's Capital, that slovenly individuals are allowed to litter the streets and sidewalks and parks unrestrained with all sorts of papers and trash, so that, as one correspondent recently wrote to The Post, he wondered if Washington was the most beautiful city in the world or the dirtiest? Are there no ordinances against these bad public habits? If so, why are they not enforced? The Monument grounds after the Fourth of July crowd, were a disgrace to any civilized nation. I suggest that before another gathering, loud-speakers be installed and the crowd ordered to pick up their own newspapers and litter.

The Martians' Magic Cure.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many months ago this writer told of strife to come in industry and business with labor. The wage earner has not only suffered a decrease in income, but is also bearing the brunt of increased taxation which further decreases his purchasing power. Each day brings that prophecy of trouble and strife closer and more poignant, as witness the strikes of labor in California, Washington, Wisconsin, Minnesota and several Southern States.

Until the Administration will awaken to the lack of purchasing power in the hands of the consumer, we will see recovery retarded. We must have a sufficient amount of purchasing power distributed among all consumers in order to create a demand on industry and business, before we can even hope for a normal prosperity.

Congress or the President by the simple expedient of authorizing an issue of Treasury orders (checks) in payment of Governmental pay rolls, public works, relief of the farmer and the needy poor, could free an abundance of our currency now lying idle in frozen assets, savings and safe deposit, without money cost to the Government and the tax payer, and without loss or injury to anyone.

Concurrent with the authorization of an issue of Treasury orders, Congress or the President could issue a National mandate to the banks to honor said checks or orders as bank deposit money subject to check or to cash them outright, thus allowing the recipients the use of currency now in existence and in that manner keep it continuously moving in the business world.

It is time for business men, farmers and workers to make a concerted and mandatory demand on the Administration that experiments and brainstorms be brought to a halt and constructive action taken, which would restore prosperity and secure economic safety and well-being for our 125,000,000 citizens.

Stepping on Toes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In President Roosevelt's recent radio address he said, "In the working out of a great National program which seeks the primary good of the greater number it is true that the toes of some people are being stepped on and are going to be stepped on."

It seems a Democrat has been stepped on first in no less a personage than a former candidate for President and former Ambassador to England. In defending the "Old Order" the letter says, "The trouble lay not with the system, but with the men and conditions which they created and under which men drunk with the desire for easy money cast off all restraint and forgot the rules of prudence and some of the demands of honor also."

It certainly would have been gratifying if he had named some of these men, and would not the same men do the same thing again if laws had not been passed by the New Dealers to restrain them from so doing? It is true some Democrats have the interests of monopoly at heart. It is also true some Republicans are interested in the welfare of the rank and file, or the whole American people.

Noisy Trucks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to bring to your attention the noise caused by a fleet of trucks loaded with sand and gravel which keeps the residents of Michigan avenue and Queens Chapel road northeast awake at night. These heavy, loaded trucks run night and day and at night it is impossible to sleep if you happen to live on one of these streets.

Having read your article "In Defense of Quiet," I thought perhaps something could be done about this nuisance.

Is there no law prohibiting the owner of a fleet of these huge trucks from running them nearly every night? Perhaps the Michigan Park Citizens Association could take this up.

Famine in Russia.

(From the New York Times.)

Our Moscow correspondent reported on Friday that well-informed circles in Soviet Russia estimate this year's grain crop at 70 per cent of the 1933 harvest. This means that Russia is facing a winter and spring of famine. Stalin at the recent Communist congress claimed for the bumper 1933 crop an increase of 30 per cent over 1932. If this summer brings a decline of 30 per cent from last year, Russia's food supply is 10 per cent below that of 1932. There died in Soviet Russia in the winter of 1932-33 a minimum of 6,000,000 people by starvation, typhus and other diseases.

Once more the Kremlin assails the peasant kulaks for imperiling the nation's food. The kulak has been "liquidated" several times since 1930, but in 1934 he is once more in the field plotting to starve out the proletarian regime. To any one familiar with the tone of Soviet utterances this is obviously a way of breaking the bad news.

Mr. Davis in his University of Virginia speech said that one of the achievements of capitalism which can not be denied is that it has fed and housed and warmed and clothed a population in the Western World three or four times as large as when the industrial revolution began. Today we may not be proud of the fact that a considerable part of that population is being fed from public relief. But the food is there, from whatever source derived. Starvation, except as a microscopic fraction due to human mischance, does not exist. The health of the people has been fully maintained. Such is the record of the old order, at the very moment when many people find that it has "failed."

The only existing alternative to it is the new order in Soviet Russia; and there in the space of 15 years there have been two devastating famines, with a third bad winter coming. They have not been acts of God but man-made. Drought has played but a small part. The famine of 1921-22 was the result of a planting strike by the peasants in protest against the grain confiscations under military communism. Lenin surrendered, but too late to prevent the loss of perhaps 10,000,000 lives. The starvation times of 1932-33 were precipitated by Stalin's collectivization drive. The peasants were herded into the collective farms, but they first killed off their cattle, and they have been half-hearted in sowing and cultivating and harvesting. Millions of them are in sullen revolt.

One often hears it said that communism would never do for this country, though "it seems to have worked well in Russia." A system can hardly be said to have worked well which in the space of 15 years has failed no less than three times in the elementary duty of providing the people with bread—even at half rations—at a cost of probably more than a score of million lives.

The Post Impressionist

Sailors Ashore.

Postoffice, Friday.

NEWS dispatches from Pueblo report that deeply land-locked Colorado has been invaded by sea-gulls. The citizens of the Silver State are wondering how these creatures of the wave and coast ever got so far inland.

May we venture to tell our Rocky Mountain cousins that this phenomenon is not quite unique? And that to some countries almost as far from the ocean as Colorado sea-gulls make long visits annually?

Well, to one country that we know of, anyhow. Anyhow, one that is far enough from salt water to make such visits remarkable. Or, anyhow, to one part of that country.

Every summer—and if we remember rightly, well into September—there are far more sea-gulls passing their vacations on and along the Lake of Geneva than there are delegates arriving for the sessions of the League of Nations' Assembly.

All Geneva's bird and fowl life is sagacious. The wild ducks of its lake are extremely wise in their generation. A strictly enforced law forbids shooting them west of an imaginary line theoretically drawn from shore to shore at the city's eastern bounds. Regiments of those ducks often swim so close to it that their foremost rank marks the line—where they abruptly pause, and whence they wheel westward.

But the gulls, protected wherever they go, go wherever they please.

They crowd the place. They sweep in long procession past the hotel windows. On each of the five onion-shaped towers of the Orthodox Church a sea-gull is seated, it would seem, from the advent of warm weather until the advent of cold. Gulls circle over all the city.

And not only Genevese throng the bridges and quays to feed the voracious visitors. Dignified diplomats, have been known, we believe, to vie with Genevese urchins in endeavors to induce the birds to snatch crumbs from their outstretched hands—nor is success difficult. The gulls fight for food; if the violence of their voices provides a truthful indication, their language is far from diplomatic. When warm statesmen open windows of the Palais des Nations, the debates of the sea-gulls are likely to interfere with the discussions of the League.

Why should Colorado wonder?

There are the gulls of the Juniata Valley, in Pennsylvania. This district may be but a stone's throw from the Atlantic, as compared with Pueblo's distance from the Pacific, but it is some distance, at that, and the Alleghenies are to be negotiated. Yet our friend Col. Henry W. Shoemaker—himself a diplomat—records this in his Altoona Tribune:

"The Indians of the Juniata Valley regarded the sea-gulls as the guardians of their crops. Though their clearings were not large, and though their knowledge of agriculture was limited, the red men were wise enough to realize that insect pests and droughts meant ruin. When a great dry spell came in the Juniata Valley, before the French and Indian War, those Indians prayed to the Gitchi-Manitto, or Great Spirit, that rain might be sent. Just when it looked hopeless the river became covered with white-winged gulls.

"They are bringing the rain clouds on their powerful pinions!' exclaimed the high priests to the prayerful multitudes.

"And before night the skies opened and a deluge soaked the fields, from the mouth of the Juniata to the Kittanning Path."

And how about Utah? Doesn't Colorado know the history of its neighbor State?

Of this story also Col. Shoemaker reminds us:

"When the Mormons, after their long journey across the prairies and deserts, arrived at last at their haven of refuge beside the Great Salt Lake, myriads of grasshoppers appeared—to destroy their first wheat crop. As the settlers' reserve supplies were all exhausted, it meant starvation and death for them if the grasshoppers had their way.

"The Mormons prayed.

"Suddenly, out of a clear sky came huge flocks of gulls. Settling down on the grasshopper-infested fields, the gulls went to work devouring the pests. Working from dawn until darkness, they saved the Mormons' wheat."

A Mormon friend of ours adds that the legend goes further than the Colonel. According to this Utah tradition, as soon as those gulls were gorged with grasshoppers they would dart to the lake, vomit their gulped insects into its saline waters and then, with empty stomachs and renewed appetites, return to their pleasant toil.

"From that time," writes the Colonel, "the sea-gulls became the sacred bird of the Latter Day Saints." It is much to their church what the eagle is to the Episcopal. "In 1898 a handsome marble shaft, surmounted by a golden sea-gull, the work of Sculptor Mahonri Young, son of Brigham Young, leader of the Mormons, was dedicated in Temple Square, at Salt Lake City."

* * *

We aren't proud of our geographic knowledge, and on such a morning as this we don't want to run upstairs and consult the office atlas. But we are laboring under an old impression that Salt Lake City is just as far from the Pacific as Pueblo is.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

Mrs. Roosevelt's Influence.

BARGERON

WELL, sir, I have finally found out after these many months what is wrong with me. It eased up on me in a most subtle way. Not once did I suspect its slowly tightening grasp. The first symptoms were a feeling of uncertainty, a lessening of the poise with which I had theretofore faced the world. Then I gradually began to feel a slow undermining of my steadfastness. Something was wrong, I well knew, but for the life of me I couldn't tell what it was.

There I was, at the advent of the present Administration, what might be called and probably would, a substantial citizen. At peace with my creditors and content in my home. It was my wont, or rather it was my routine, to go home of an afternoon and feed the chickens and if there had been any cows about, to milk the cows. I was of that fast-waning type, I am afraid, that the capitalists would count on. They, at least, didn't have to fear me as one liable to spring up from his inertia and run away.

* * * *

I say I was in this state of bliss, what the brain trusters would undoubtedly call ignorant bliss, But a change has been effected. I know it now and I know the nature of the change. I am up and rearing to go. The truth is that I have been up and rearing to go for some time, but I didn't know that that was what had come over me.

I felt this dissatisfaction creeping into me without recognizing it as such. The first to suffer were the chickens. No longer did I get any contentment out of feeding them and so I quit feeding them; that's what I did.

However, not being good at self-analysis, I didn't realize then what was happening. I thought simply that I had tired of feeding chickens and that my malady was no worse than that.

* * * *

It is hard to describe these months of darkness, most difficult to put my emotions into words. All I can say is that indescribable things came over me, that my innumerable emotions were ineffable.

So slowly did this thing of which I speak encompass me that there was no time in its progress when I could have defined it or recognized it for what it was. Many episodes came up in this period which, in search of understanding, I tried to apply to my case. But none of them fit. There was, for example, the contention of Mr. Hearst that we had so degenerated in morals as not to be the Americans of old.

* * * *

I thought seriously of this but it did not stick. I had not dropped in morals. As a matter of plain fact, I had lifted. Thoughts of lust and debauchery had long since given way to a very plain desire to take a shower in a golf club and lie down with a towel around me while I sipped a gin rickey. No more harmless pleasure could a man enjoy.

It was just by chance that light came to me. A friend complained rather feelingly that something had come over his wife. She insisted periodically, he said, upon getting into the family car and driving it to Baltimore. Just why she should want to do this he could not possibly imagine. He asked her. She explained:

"Mrs. Roosevelt gets out and goes places, why shouldn't I?"

It came upon me with a suddenness which admitted no possibility of mistake that that was what was wrong with me. I was restless. I wanted to go places. As my world the old homestead had come to be too small. It is, for better or worse, what Mrs. Roosevelt has done to me. Without my knowing it she has been a pronounced influence on my life.

So I am off for places—far, far away, off for Europe. When I get restless I go all the way.

Deacons' Parley Speakers Named

Wardensville, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Speakers for the Deacons' Conference of the Winchester Presbytery here July 26 were announced today.

Included are Dr. J. Eggleston, president of Hampden-Sydney College; the Rev. J. W. Hogshead, of Petersburg, W. Va.; the Rev. E. B. McGukin and Dr. C. D. Gilkeson, of Winchester, Va. An open forum on "Church Rolls as a Means for Personal Work" will be conducted by J. H. Moling, jr., of Winchester.

At least 500 delegates will attend. During the lunch hour time will be given to visit the Reyman Memorial Farm, Capon Springs, the place where Lost River flows under the mountain, and other points.

Loudoun Corn-Hog Share Is $40,000

Leesburg, Va., July 19 (Spl.). The corn-hog reduction contracts being prepared for the last signing will bring to Loudoun County approximately $40,000, according to J. R. Lintner, county farm agent.

About $15,000 of this money will be received for the first payment, as soon as the corn-hog section of the AAA can approve contracts and issue checks. This will necessarily be later than originally expected.

The wheat program has already brought about $25,000 to the county. About $8,000 balance on the 1933 crop will be received as soon as compliance forms have been approved by the wheat section. First payment on the 1934 crop will soon follow and will amount to about $25,000.

The Master Still Lives at the Mercy of His Servants

By Robert Quillen

For some reason beyond understanding, nature is so organized that the bad always overcomes the good.

One drop of poison will contaminate a glass of pure water, but one drop of water doesn't purify a glass of poison. And we are so accustomed to this inequality of good and bad that mere statement of the fact seems an absurdity.

One evil act may destroy a good reputation, but one virtuous act doesn't redeem a bad one.

The same law, if it is a law, controls the circulation of money.

Experience has shown that paper money not backed by gold soon drives gold money out of circulation. The two can not function together as equals. The bad money triumphs over the good. The good is hoarded and the other spent, and soon there is no money in sight except the bad.

The rule also applies to people.

It isn't an uncommon thing for a man to marry to pretty woman socially and intellectually inferior to him and promptly descend to her level. Nor is it uncommon for a superior woman to be dragged down by a drunken and worthless husband.

But who has seen a wife or husband without intelligence or pride or character transformed and lifted to the level of a superior mate?

Such things don't happen, except in story books. When a nation determines to make all men equal, the common level established is the one lower down.

Ideas suffer the same fate.

Each individual has ideas of two kinds—those developed and supported by reason and those less respectable and often mysterious opinions called prejudices.

One kind is good and the other bad, and the bad, as usual, dominates. When reason suggests one course and prejudice urges another, not one person in ten can reject the advice of prejudice.

The moral needs no diagram. If you can't lie down with dogs without getting fleas, the obvious way to escape fleas is to keep away from dogs.

Greif Workers Petition NRA To Retain Jobs

Employes at Eight Plants Ask End of Attempt to Remove Eagle.

Baltimore, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—With the L. Greif & Bros., Inc., clothing manufacturing firm, holding a temporary injunction forbidding Gen. Hugh S. Johnson from taking away its Blue Eagle, employes of eight of the firm's plantss today sent petitions to Washington expressing satisfaction with wages, hours and working conditions and requesting that they be left alone.

The action of the employes at all the plants was said to be a majority and in some cases a unanimous plea that they be "left alone" by NRA, which, through Gen. Johnson, has ordered that the Greif company's Blue Eagle be forfeited unless $100,000 in back wages is paid to employes.

The temporary restraining order granted the firm by United States District Judge W. Calvin Chestnut in Baltimore Thursday was allowed after representation by the firm that the NRA violates the Constitution and that Johnson seeks to establish a boycott against the firm. A hearing of the case is set for Tuesday.

Sentiment Widespread.

Petitions asking "hands off" have been sent by workers of the firm's plants at Westminster, Mount Union, Middleburg and Crisfield, Md.; at Hanover, York and Waynesboro, Pa., and Staunton, Va. Similar action was expected by Fredericksburg, Va., employes.

Officials of the Fredericksburg plant, the G and H Manufacturing Co., declared that its 500 workers, idle since last Wednesday, will return to work tomorrow.

The petition sent to the NRA by the Carroll Mutual Association, an organization of employes of the Carroll Manufacturing Co., Greif subsidiary at Westminster, Md., was typical of those sent by all groups. Signed by 550 workers, it read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby petition Gen. Johnson, NRA administrator, to consider the welfare of employes at the Carroll Manufacturing Co. since we are thoroughly satisfied with wages and hours and working conditions in general.

Staunton Chamber Aid.

"And it is our desire not to be bothered or molested by anyone, but that we be left alone so that we may continue working as before."

The Chamber of Commerce of Staunton, Va., lined up solidly behind other protestants against any move by the Federal Government which might lead to the closing of the two plants of the Staunton manufacturing company, a Greif affiliate.

Chamber of Commerce directors unanimously adopted a resolution setting forth that they are opposed to "any action on the part of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, or other officers of NRA," which would cause the closing of the Staunton manufacturing company plants. These plants employ all American-born labor and natives of Staunton and vicinity, and a recent survey shows that the young women employed by Greif & Brothers in their Staunton plants are the sole support of over 350 families.

The judges will be Mrs. Fleming B. Shaw, Dr. and Mrs. Ned O. Bowen and Dr. Francis Cohen. The event is sponsored by William T. Needham and Miss Jane Hill, playground directors.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

The Great Secretary.

THEO. HALL.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, to most of us, is little more than a rhetorical measuring-rod with which they used to compare Andrew Mellon. Yet even if we know the brilliant and aristocratic first Secretary of the Treasury through such an able work, say as Claude G. Bowers' "Jefferson and Hamilton" (Houghton Mifflin, 1925), that standard acquaintance is only at second or third hand. Few attempt or get very far with the standard twelve volume "Works of Alexander Hamilton" (Putnam, edited by Henry Cabot Lodge). Scarcely anyone clarifies the fine, round phrase, "Wisdom of the fathers" with a direct reference to and reading of the written wisdom itself.

Thus, the publication of "Papers of Public Credit, Commerce, and Finance" (Columbia University Press, $3) is an invaluable service to a wide and just estimate of Hamilton. Edited by Samuel McKee, jr., instructor of history at Columbia, and with a foreword by Elihu Root, the volume reprints Hamilton's first report on the public credit (1790), report on a National bank (1790), letter to Washington on Constitutionality of the bank (1791), second report on public credit (1795), and report on manufactures (1791). These papers constitute the classic expression of the Hamiltonian doctrine.

* * * *

When we dip into that doctrine, a number of things come to light which are little suspected by those who refer most frequently to the founding statesman. It would seem that their writings can, like Scripture, be quoted with a purpose. For some of our most usual and cherished notions about their heritage to us are contradicted in the writings themselves, flatly, in black and white. Let me give some examples.

We frequently hear that the Constitution, in its strict interpretation, was intended to provide for all future problems. Said Hamilton: "Constitutions should consist only of general provisions; the reason is that they must necessarily be permanent, and that they can not calculate for the possible change of things."

Hamilton is often considered a defender of high protective tariffs. Yet he wrote: "The manufacturing nations abridge the natural advantages of their situation, through an unwillingness to permit the agricultural countries to enjoy the advantages of theirs, and sacrifice the benefits of a mutually beneficial intercourse to the vain project of selling everything and buying nothing."

* * * *

Proponents of the New Deal may find a text: "Experience teaches that men are often so much governed by what they are accustomed to see and practice that the simplest and most obvious improvements * * * are adopted with hesitation. * * * When former occupations ceased to yield a profit * * * or when there was an absolute deficiency of employment in them, owing to the superabundance of hands, changes would ensue, but these changes would be likely to be more tardy than might consist with the interest either of individuals or of society. * * * To produce the desirable changes as early as may be expedient may therefore require the incitement and patronage of government."

People and corporations who groan at income taxes have a champion in Hamilton: "All such taxes (including all taxes on occupations) which proceed according to the amount of capital supposed to be employed in a business or of profits supposed to be made in it, are unavoidably hurtful to industry."

Likewise defended are gentlemen called upon by Senate committees to reveal their financial balance sheets: "Men engaged in any trade or business have commonly weighty reasons to avoid disclosure which would expose, with anything like accuracy, the real state of their affairs."

And this might well be a good word for the Tugwell food and drug act: "Judicious regulations for the inspection of manfactured commodities—this is not among the least important of the means by which the prosperity of manufactures may be promoted. It is, indeed, in many cases, one of the most essential. Contributing to prevent frauds upon consumers at home, to improve the quality and preserve the character of the National manufactures, it can not fail to aid the expeditious and advantageous sale of them, and to serve as a guard against successful competition from other quarters."

* * * *

But in all of Hamilton, in spite of his clarity of principle, there appears a blindness to the grubby practicalities of actual economic life. He is nearly at his most vulnerable when he writes of the free manufacture of commodities: "The internal competition which takes place soon does away with everything like monopoly, and by degrees reduces the price of an article to the minimum of a reasonable profit on the capital employed. This accords with the reason of things, and with experience." He was writing, of course, a hundred years before Rockefeller and Carnegie.

It must be plain that the "wisdom of the fathers" can not be swallowed whole. Yet if you still disagree, consider what the great secretary, in all seriousness, called one of the especial benefits of manufacturing: "It is worthy of particular remark that, in general, women and children are rendered more useful, and the latter more early useful, by manufacturing establishments, than they would otherwise be." And he points, with the greatest satisfaction in the world, at the English cotton factories, where "it is computed that four-sevenths nearly are women and children, of whom the greatest proportion are children, and many of them of a tender age."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The New Tammany Hall.

Tammany Hall has gone streamline. It has picked a leader who has youth, a Hollywood figure and no double chin.

* * * *

The newly chosen leader of Tammany, James J. Dooling, violates all traditions by looking young, alert, quick-on-the-trigger and with no heavy secrets on his mind.

* * * *

* * * *

In the past Tammany has looked upon men of 41 as mere collegiates who might do very well at amateur theatricals or tennis, but who could never inspire confidence at a meeting of sachems.

* * * *

It has judged its candidates by their stomachs and has assumed that wisdom was largely abdominal.

* * * *

The Old Guard believed that sagacity was necessarily linked up with a 48-inch belt, flat feet, red flannel underwear and a habit of talking out of the corners of the mouth.

* * * *

It never thought a man could be sage and dependable and at the same time young, thin and physically fit.

* * * *

Mr. Dooling's election violates the Tiger tradition that a Tammany boss must be a man who has to go to an awning maker to get fitted to a three-piece suit.

* * * *

* * * *

What makes the old-timers shake their heads is that he wears a wrist watch, generally has a flower in his buttonhole and has taste in the matter of shirts and neckties.

* * * *

In his opening announcement, Mr. Dooling said: "I conceive it to be the duty of a political leader to work for good government. He should do his utmost to see that the men and women selected for public trust are fit and qualified, and that they remain so!"

* * * *

That just gives you an idea how young he is.

* * * *

The rise of youth and the fall of double chins is taken as a victory for President Roosevelt, Jim Farley and the boyish form movement in the Democratic party.

* * * *

We shall see what we shall see. And whatever happens, it will make a better movie.

No matter what I do in making the bed
I never can arrange the blasted spread;
I measure it the short way and the long,
But when I get it on it's still all wrong;

But one side's always high, the other low.

PWA to Spend $1,500 On Danville Airport

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—A. H. Petticrew, State airport adviser, has approved improvements at the municipal airport at a cost of $1,500 to be furnished by the PWA.

The runways will be broadened and the field graded, giving work to 100 men and costing the city nothing. Additional funds are being sought for a new runway, and eventually it is proposed to provide the port with ground lights for night landing.

Mail Plane Service Starts at Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., July 19 (AP).—Roanoke is now a stop on the American Airlines, Inc., transcontinental air mail route via Fort Worth. A southbound plane landed here shortly before 2 p. m. yesterday to inaugurate the service.

More than 1,500 persons, including postoffice, city and Chamber of Commerce officials, greeted Pilot A. R. Perkins.

Hagerstown Considers New One-Way Streets

Hagerstown, Md., July 19 (Spl.). The Board of Street Commissioners is considering making all thoroughfares within two blocks of the Public Square one way to relieve congested traffic.

One meeting has been held and the matter discussed, but action will probably await a visit to Lancaster, Pa., and several other cities, where one-way traffic in the business section is in force.

Some Famous Gentlemen.

The Prince of Troy, Hector, is the greatest gentleman in Homer; he never used a discourteous or reproachful or complaining word to Helen, though he knew she was the cause of the war and the reason for his own coming destruction. The Three Musketeers and D'Artagnan were all four gentlemen, because they would gladly die rather than do what they thought were dishonorable.

Manners play an important part in determining whether a man is a gentleman or not; in this sense, most of the followers of King Charles were gentlemen, most of the followers of Cromwell were not. In a half-humorous poem, Robert Louis Stevenson said God was not a gentleman, because He showed such a lack of consideration for men and women; whereas Shakespeare said the Devil was a gentleman, because his manners were so attractive. "The Prince of Darkness is a gentleman."

Manners alone will not suffice; veneer may be the surface that conceals putrefaction. It is interesting that Shakespeare made one of his characters call the Devil a gentleman, whereas Shakespeare's contemporary, Dekker, made one of his characters call Jesus Christ a gentleman. Dekker placed in the mouth of his shop-keeper Candido, this beautiful speech:

"The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him was a sufferer;
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit,
The first true gentleman that ever breathed."

Thackeray knew exactly what a gentleman was, as is seen by his famous lines: first in verse, then in prose:

"Who misses or who wins the prize,
Go, lose or conquer as you can;
But if you fail, or if you rise,
Be each, pray God, a gentleman."

"To be a gentleman is to be honest, to be gentle, to be generous, to be brave, to be wise, and possessing all these qualities to exercise them in the most graceful outward manner."

Emerson showed that a man could be at once a great philosopher and a gentleman. In the midst of a composition of an immortal work, if the dinner-bell rang, he stopped in the middle of a sentence. He said "it is not right to keep any one else waiting." When a crank called on him and kept his hat on Emerson asked him if he would not take off his hat. The man replied, "No, I uncover only before God." Emerson said, "Then let us go out in the garden."

Cool Caverns Reveal Many Freak, Beautiful Formations

Two-Hundred-Mile Jaunt Takes D. C. Motorists Over Mountain Range Into Shenandoah Valley; River Baptism Typifies Wayside Scenes.

The chronic complainer who mourns that the picturesque quality has vanished from the American scene has not considered Virginia, where the Sunday driver may cross the Potomac in a primitive craft that well might have been on hand to ferry the first white man over the river. There, too, the Sunday driver's wife will thrill to the discovery of a roadside stand displaying chairs made with pegs and rush bottoms exactly as they were made a century ago. And the casual tourist may chance upon a baptism in the river, more compelling in simplicity and dignity than the ceremony ever has been portrayed by masters of literature or drama. Yet these are only incidents in a day's drive crowded with scenic grandeur, below the earth and far above it, and dotted with milestones of historic significance.

Though it may bear the earmarks of the press agent's hysterical enthusiasm, this is the bona fide chronicle of a 200-mile trip from the Nation's Capital to the Shenandoah Valley and back again. Not precisely from the Capital, or we should have missed that rare trip across the Potomac, but from the suburban area northwest of Washington.

"Ferry," the map indicated at Whites Corners, but it gave no hint of the adventure to be encountered there. No wharf is in sight, for the scow which is to take passengers across simply noses up to the shore and drops a rude gangplank onto the sand. Two cars drive on board; the water laps perilously close to the gunwales; the ferryman pushes off with his pikestaff and you're on your way. Power is supplied by an automobile motor, its duty on the road long since done, installed in a punt that noses alongside. To calm the fears of the timid, this strange craft is leashed to an overhead cable, forestalling the danger of drifting downstream!

"Explore" Cave by Elevator.

Back roads, pleasantly free of traffic even on a Sunday, led, after a half-hour of driving, to the historic Lee highway, where frequent markers transform history, that may have seemed dull in school text books, to a vivid drama of the battles in the Manassas campaigns.

Where the road bridges the Rappahanock, a curious crowd gathered last Sunday to watch a baptism in the river. Worshipers gathered at the water's edge; watchers above, and among the latter was the silence inspired by an impressive ceremony.

At Warrenton, rolling hills and pastoral scenes begin to give way to more rugged country, with glimpses of the Blue Ridge Mountains in the distance. The smooth, broad highway, curved and banked, makes the trip over difficult grades easy for the modern mountain climber in his motor vehicle. Then down into the Shenandoah Valley and its caverns.

The caves of Virginia show the rare spectacle of stalactites and stalagmites in the making. Also, they boast temperatures that no artificial air-cooling system can rival. Water still drips through 200 feet of rock to form curious pillars and hanging formations. The guide will insist on pointing out eagles, both American and bald, sculptured naturally in the stone; he will exhort the imagination of his audience to see fried eggs, Turkish towels and Paisley shawls in the formation. But the visitor is most likely to be impressed by the immensity of the caverns, and the maze of passages that comprise a single network. All the caverns open to tourists are lighted and one even boasts an elevator for the comfort of its guests.

Roadside Furniture Fair.

Wayside stands prove that handwork is not a lost art in Virginia. Unfinished chairs, in sizes for household use, for children and for dolls, and reed baskets of varied sizes and shapes tempt the bargain hunter. Another stand is headquarters for beautifully finished walnut chairs, comfortable rockers and quaint ladder-backs, made with wooden pegs instead of nails and strongly strung with rush bottoms. No return to native industry, as a protest to the machine age, are these products, but the work of a family which has been engaged in this specialty for more than a century.

From Luray up the Stoney Man trail and over the mountain is a hazardous trip on a narrow, dirt road abounding in hair-pin curves and not to be recommended unless nerves are stanch and motor functioning perfectly, but the summit provides a view that an airplane flight can not improve upon. Four thousand feet below stretches the Shenandoah Valley, a checkerboard of farms dotted with dolls' houses.

Better wait for the thrill of this view, until the Skyline drive is opened to the public. Riding the crest of the ridge, the motorist will enjoy miles of a road that afford a bird's-eye view of the country-side adjacent and distant mountains. Within five miles of the Eastern terminus of the drive is "The Saddle," a stretch of road built atop a sheer cliff, affording a view for miles on both sides. Under present plans, the drive will be open to the public in September.

The eastern approach to the drive is tunneled through the rocky mountainside, a project that takes is place beside other engineering feats of international renown. Thus has man contrived with nature to make Virginia a land to marvel at and enjoy.

Second Hand Low.

In the game of Whist they used to say that Second Hand should always play low and Third Hand should play high. In Contract you will hear this ancient adage quoted without a full understanding of what it means or should mean. As a matter of fact, this is another instance of the many cases where the word "always" does not apply at the Contract Bridge table. There are frequent occasions when a defending player should play not low, but high, Second Hand, but in doing so he must, as in all other phases of the game, have a sound and sufficient reason. Generally, the sound reason for Second Hand's playing high against Declarer's lead from either his own hand or Dummy is a desire to conserve his partner's entry card so that it may be used after the defending side's long suit has been established.

It was a misapprehension of this wise variation of the rule of Second Hand high that brought disaster in a Duplicate game to the East and West pair on the hand below:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT(1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A bad bid with an almost worthless hand. South should have passed.

The hand itself is of little interest. It is just another one of those seemingly pointless collections of cards which are neither fish, fowl nor good red herring, but it is a hand of the type which produces in Duplicate Bridge much greater swings than do those which justify the bidding of Slams. The partscore hands in games scored on the match point basis are, contrary to general belief, the "swing" hands, and it was the East and West defense which produced a tremendous swing for North and South here.

West's Opening lead was the club 7, which was won in Dummy with the Jack. When the Declarer surveyed his meager holdings he saw that he must be fortunate indeed if he was to fulfill his contract. His own hand contained but a single entry, the club Ace, and his hope of fulfilling his contract hung by the slenderest of threads. Every good Bridge player knows that when you can not achieve anything will, you still have one chance remaining and that is that opponents may make mistakes. South, in this instance, decided to bank on that one slender possibility.

From Dummy he led the eight of diamonds, on which to his pleasure, as well, it might be said, as to his surprise, East immediately played the Ace. A club was returned, which South won perforce, and now led a small diamond, upon which West played the Queen and North the King, and again the Declarer was delighted to see the Jack drop. Now three more rounds of diamonds were taken, South having conserved the seven as a possible entry by the lead of the eight to the second trick. Upon this diamond West discarded one club and the three and two of hearts. East discarded one club, one spade and the heart Ten. South now decided to become greedy and led the spade 10, which East won with the Queen. East returned his last club, and West cashed three club tricks, but at the end was forced to lead a spade, on which Dummy's Jack was played, permitting the Declarer not only to fulfill his contract but to make an overtrick. It is, perhaps, needless to add that the postmortem which followed when East and West scanned the score was heated, and hardly polite.

Tomorrow's Hand.

Senor Quiros Plies Brush For Gilberts

Starts New Canvas Next Week at New York Summer Estate.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The Argentine artist, Senor Don Cesare Bernaldo Quiros, who has become one of the most popular members of Capital society during the two seasons he has made his home in Washington, is about to absent himself from the city for several months.

Senor Quiros occupied a handsome house on Sheridan Circle last year, but for several weeks has been making his home in the apartment of the former Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Zaldumbide, on Sixteenth street. The Minister and Senora de Zaldumbide are in Geneva where the former is accredited to Switzerland. He is also a delegate to the League of Nations, and Minister of Ecuador to Rome.

The artist has found the apartment ideal for studio use. The house, formerly the home of Mrs. Benjamin Warder on K street, was moved several years ago to Sixteenth street. The high ceilings and long windows give advantageous light for his work.

Portrait of Mrs. Legare.

Since he moved there, Senor Quiros has painted the handsome portrait of Mrs. S. Kent Legare, depicting her as she appeared at the Italian Embassy costume ball early in the spring, wearing a Venetian ball gown of shimmering gold with heavy flounces of gold lace, a jaunty tricorne hat of gold with a Venetian veil of shadowy gilt lace falling under her chin and over bare shoulders. The striking coloring of Mrs. Legare—rich brown hair, magnolia skin, and deep red lips, is admirably portrayed.

Next week Senor Quiros will be established at the Apple Trees, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parker Gilbert, at Locust Valley, N. Y.

One of the first portraits that Senor Quiros did in Washington was one of Mrs. Gilbert, who visited Washington frequently as the guest of the former Ambassador of Spain and Senora de Cardenas. At the Apple Trees the artist will start a portrait of the very small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert. Little Louise is only a few months old, and it will be the first study that Senor Quiros has attempted with such a young subject.

Plans Argentine Trip.

When his work on Long Island is finished, Senor Quiros will sail for Argentina to spend two months in Buenos Aires. He will visit his father's famous ranch near the Argentine capital, and fraternize again with the gauchos, among whom he lived for several years, and whom he has immortalized in his paintings.

Senor Quiros has been much interested in the American colored race, finding among its members excellent subjects for painting. He says that the color of their skin interests him beyond that of any people he has seen. He is working on a large canvas portraying five colored subjects in intense color.

The artist will return to this country the end of October and will again come to Washington for the winter.

Yacht Club Party Honors Nicklaws

Misses Atchison and Leib Fete Newlyweds.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nicklaw, who were married July 9 in Rockville, Md., have returned from a wedding trip.

Last evening Miss Peggy Atchison and Miss Marion Lieb entertained at a large party for the Nicklaws aboard the smart cabin cruiser, the Christine, at the Columbia Yacht Club.

Mrs. Nicklaw, before her marriage, was Miss Christobel Bicksler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Bicksler.

There were about 30 guests in the party, including Mrs. Bernard McMahon, Miss Margaret Tobin, Miss Margaret Walsh, Miss Nora Walsh, Mrs. Dorothy Atchison, Miss Catherine Cleary, Miss Marie Russell, Mrs. Richard McMahon, Miss Virginia Offutt, Miss Beatrice Deeds, Miss Elizabeth Scanlon, Miss Eileen Finneran, Miss Alma Esmer, Miss Ethel Roddy, Miss Madeleine Sullivan, Mrs. Edward Finneran, Mr. and Mrs. George Slater, Miss Mary Cavenner, Mr. and Mrs. C. Miss Elizabeth Johnston Forbushes House Guest

Deputy Administrator of the NRA and Mrs. Arthur R. Forbush will have as their house guest over the week-end their cousin, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Johnston, of New York, both native Washingtonians. Several informal midsummer entertainments have been planned in honor of Miss Johnston, among them a cocktail party by Mr. and Mrs. Forbush at their home at 1310 New Hampshire avenue, this afternoon.

Miss Johnston is a graduate of Vassar and a specialist in home decoration. Her father is a distinguished attorney, whose practice before the Supreme Court frequently brings him to Washington.

Chilean Envoy Host at Picnic For Diplomats

The Charge d'Affaires of Chile, Senor Don Emilio Edwards Bello, and Senora de Edwards entertained at a large picnic party Wednesday evening.

The guests, about 25 members of the Diplomatic Corps and resident society, gathered at the Chilean Embassy at 6 o'clock fortified with packages of sandwiches and other delicious things. Senor and Senora de Edwards took a large box of the famous Chilean empanados, deliciously hot and spicy. The picnickers motored far down the Mount Vernon boulevard to a wooded knoll overlooking the river. It was a de luxe picnic, with servants spreading rugs on the ground, arranging the paper table cloth and laying out the food.

Among the guests was Senorita Maria Edwards Bello, sister of the Minister, who has been visiting at the Embassy since her brother came from his post in Havana to assume charge of the Embassy here. Senorita Edwards will leave Washington today for New York and will sail tomorrow aboard the Santa Maria to return to her home in Santiago. Senor Don Emilio Edwards, jr., son of the Minister and Senora de Edwards, will sail with his aunt.

Senor Edwards will go to New York Sunday to spend several days, returning here the middle of next week to join Senora de Edwards and their daughters, with whom he will sail for Havana at the end of the month. The Minister will continue his trip to Haiti and Santo Domingo to present his credentials to the governments of Haiti and the Dominican Republic, and after a short stay will go to Cuba to resume his duties as Chilean Minister.

Sacketts to Spend Season in Canada

Mrs. Taft Also Sojourns at Murray Bay.

The former United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett, who have been at their home in Louisville, Ky., since their return from Europe, have gone to Murray Bay, Canada, for the remainder of the summer. They stopped in New York for a few days en route to the North.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of Chief Justice Taft, is at her summer home in Murray Bay, where she will have her sons and daughter and their families visiting her throughout the season. Mrs. Taft has been among the summer colony at the Canadian resort for many years, the late Chief Justice having built their home there years ago.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who are motoring North through New England, will spend some time at Murray Bay before starting home to Washington the end of September.

Forum Organizes Art Museum Trip

View of Cone Collection Goal at Baltimore.

The International Art Forum is organizing a group of art lovers under the direction of Mr. Francis J. Reuter, to visit the Baltimore Museum of Art early in August to view the Cone collection, one of the most important private collections of modern art in this country.

The dominating note of the collection is the unique selection of canvases by Henri Matisse, tracing his development from the Chardin period up to the present. In this group alone are 34 paintings and 9 important bronzes by the same artist. Other artists represented are Courbet, Cezanne, Derain, Degas, Pissaro, Picasso, Redon, Renoir, Sisley, Van Gogh, Vlaminck, Dalou, Rodin, Monet, Coubine, Friesz, Stevens and Boudin.

A member of the museum staff will escort the party. Information may be obtained from the secretary, International Art Forum, Carlton Hotel.

Counselor to Join Family in Mexico

Senor Irujo Leaves Today for Month's Visit.

The Minister Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Luis Irujo, will leave Washington today for Mexico City, where he will join Senora de Irujo and their two young daughters.

Senora de Irujo left several weeks ago with her daughters to visit her family in Mexico for the summer.

Senor Irujo will remain there for about a month, returning to Washington in September. Senora de Irujo will remain until later in the autumn, returning only in time for their daughters to resume their studies.

Sewing is recreation for children; it also encourages the creative impulse, say play authorities. These little girls at Rosedale Playground are making school dresses for next year.

Fashion Toys, Sew Costumes For Festivals

Assistant Supervisor Says This Recreation Most Valuable.

How are the 25,000 children who daily visit Washington's playgrounds kept busy and happy? This, the third of a series of articles dealing with child recreation, tells of the many forms of amusement provided for them.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

WHEN the afternoon sun makes even green grass burn through the soles of thin play shoes, and the sturdiest youngsters are too hot and tired to play games, the hour for handicraft work has arrived in Washington's playgrounds.

Then the boys and girls hurry to their work benches and begin their day's "busy work." And as they work swiftly and carefully, they talk excitedly of the dramatic and sporting events that will take place in the latter part of the playground's summer season.

The costume the little girl is working on will grace a star performer in the folk dance festival, the tiny marionette another is fashioning so carefully will act in a puppet show, perhaps the model airplane Jimmy is making will win the annual endurance flight.

"We feel the handicraft work is even more important than the games children learn in the playgrounds," Richard Tennyson, assistant supervisor of District playgrounds, said yesterday.

Scheduled Play.

"For while the games build up the children's bodies and teach them to work together, the handicraft is creative and has a definite carry-over value. For instance, the little girls love sewing; it is recreation for them; it is also useful. Too often their mothers can not sew or do not have the time to teach them, and it is something they will need in after life. And many of these little girls make dresses the younger members of the family can wear to school in the winter."

The playground day is divided into a definite schedule, and the handicraft comes in the afternoon, when the children are tired of vigorous games.

"They need different kinds of recreation," pointed out Mr. Tennyson, "and we try to provide creative work and physical exercise. We have something to interest every type of child.

"Basket weaving is popular with both boys and girls. Every playground supervisor must have a course in basket weaving before starting to work. The children work very fast, and it is not unusal for one child to make as many as 150 or 200 baskets and trays during the summer. At the end of the year we have an exhibit."

Make Costumes.

The children are especially interested in making costumes for the festivals, according to Mr. Tennyson, and also like to make track suits for the contestants to wear at the meet each year.

"Aircraft modeling is the most popular handicraft work with the boys," he said. "We have excellent instructors who teach them to make everything to scale. The boys fly the airplanes, using a rubber band for an engine, and every year they have an endurance flight. Last year a boy built a plane that stayed up 24 minutes.

"These planes are not only made because it is fun. They are very valuable to the airplane manufacturer, who can take a model built perfectly to scale, and tell if a large one will be a success."

The newest handicraft work for boys is making small yachts, according to Mr. Tennyson.

"This has never been done on District playgrounds before," he said, "and all the boys are very much interested. We have 12 wading pools in the city playgrounds, and the boys will conduct yacht races on these."

Manipulate Figures.

"They both make the figures," said Mr. Tennyson. "The girls make the costumes and design the stage sets. When the show is produced, the children manipulate the figures.

"The children also design and make all the posters used on the playgrounds. They have contests. Those who are talented, draw and color their own, while others cut out pictures from magazines and paste them on. We always have a slogan contest to see who can write the best slogan for a poster. The posters sometimes are intended to teach lessons in civic pride, such as those urging playgrounds be kept clean. Sometimes they advertise the important events in playground life.

"Very few people know what interesting things children do in handicraft work. But the interest is constantly growing, for classes are getting larger."

Miss Maude N. Parker, director of girl's and women's activities in District playgrounds, was credited by Mr. Tennyson for much of the increased interest now being shown in handicraft.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: What are a second wife's chances for happiness when there are already children? The man is a widower and I know if the two of us were alone in the world we could make a go of it. But he has children and I can't help considering what their attitude will be, and whether this will be detrimental to our happiness.

* * * *

Will they consider me an intruder? Is the stepmother always the traditional ogre, so much so that odds are against her even if she tries to do what is right? And if I should marry this man and the children resent it, will it raise a barrier between us?

* * * *

Apparently, from the divorce records, marriage is a difficult enough proposition even without undercurrents such as this. When I marry, I want it to be forever. Dare I risk it under the circumstances?

J. D. W.

Up to Individual.

MY DEAR J. D. W.: I believe with time, patience and tact, a sincerely warm-hearted and unselfish woman can write her own ticket as to whether stepchildren look upon her as the traditional ogre or accept her as a sympathetic and satisfactory foster mother.

* * * *

Naturally, the problem of creating an understanding relationship with your husband's children will not make easier the early days of your marriage.

* * * *

On the other hand, you have an opportunity for making yourself doubly dear and indispensable to this man and of winning his everlasting respect, admiration and gratitude, by ably discharging the difficult dual role of wife and foster mother.

When a man with children marries he usually does so for two carefully considered reasons: First, because he finds a woman he loves, and almost equally first, because he thinks he has found a gentle mother for his flock.

* * * *

Without knowing the children, it is impossible to say whether they may consider you an intruder. If they are very young they probably won't. If you are kind and friendly and helpful to them they will soon come to regard you as a welcome and pleasant addition to their life. If they are in their teens they may be either resentful or glad to have stability restored to their rooftree.

* * * *

There's Little Risk.

If they are old enough to be on their own they may be glad to have a certain reluctant responsibility for their father's welfare taken off their minds.

In any case, let your husband take the initiative in establishing an entente cordiale. But don't be aloof, self-conscious or too uncertain of yourself in your new role. Whatever their ages, from 2 years to 20, greet them as friends rather than as a potential mother.

* * * *

In the beginning, it will probably be best to let the father hand down decisions and administer discipline, if such are necessary. After all, they are his children. As his helpmeet, you can sustain his decisions, if in your opinion they are fair.

* * * *

I don't think the children's possible resentment of your new place in their father's life will necessarily raise a barrier between you. A man of his age is capable of making decisions for himself, and to challenge his opinion is usually to confirm him in it.

Dare you risk marriage with this man under the circumstances? Yes. The risk is really no greater than the risk of any marriage.

Nazi Marriage Bug Attacks Berlin's Lovely Mannequins

The Lissom Frauleins Who Pose for German Advertisements May Appear Glamorous but their Aspirations Are Exceedingly Domestic.

In this, the third of a series on mannequins of Europe, you read of the beautiful models of Berlin—collectively known as Fraulein Inge.

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—In smart modiste shops, in cluttered artists' studios, and in front of impersonal cameras, Fraulein Inge shrugs her slender, shapely shoulders, lifts her carefully cultivated eyebrows—and hopes for marriage.

"Ach!" she cries, and her voice is honest, "I want to marry, of course!"

Speaking is Germany's mannequin model. She is, as a composite person, Germany's contribution to the international sales value of a pretty face and an attractive, flowing, uninterrupted sort of figure.

Like her fellow-workers throughout the world, Fraulein Inge has her particular talents.

She can progress swayingly across a gilded salon, shimmering like a burnished peacock. She can strap a bathing suit around her perfect hips with deft conviction. She can smile a wide variety of smiles, on cash provocation. She can wear a hat, ach, just so!

Caught by Nazi Influence.

She does any and all of these things in order that someone else may be lured to buy what they need, want, or can't afford.

But Fraulein Inge, however, glamorous she may appear in newspaper, magazine advertisements and fashion shows, is not really so glamorous at heart. Throughout Germany she parades her natural charms, but always hoping that the parade will be blocked and canceled by a good, solid set of marriage chains.

German mannequins and models have been caught, and definitely so, it seems, by the Nazi encouragement toward marriage.

The answer is almost disturbingly prompt.

"Oh—a man of good character, good looking, of good position * * * with, of course"—and Fraulein Inge smiles an intelligent little smile—"a little money somewhere around."

"A German?"

"Of course!" There is a mild note of protestation in Fraulein Inge's voice, although she adds, as an afterthought, that American men aren't so bad.

All told, there are several ways in which Germany's mannequin models may differ from those of other countries.

They are, it would seem, less professional as a group, since Berlin does not rank as a great style center. They do not have as much lush and velvet background. And they can entertain no great hopes for a theatrical career, although some do, since German film production is limited at the present time in the way of such opportunities.

Fraulein Inge likes her work, but insists it is chiefly a step toward learning business or a process of marking time until Prince Charming suggests marriage might be arranged.

Fraulein Inge originates, for the most part, from the poorer stratum, but soon acquires silk stocking habits. She has no particular training for her work. She is inclined toward having a rich friend of the opposite sex within hailing distance, but her opportunities for meeting rich men through her work are somewhat limited.

Pay Not Too High.

"That happens only in America," is her quick declaration.

In an exclusive style shop such as that of Frau Johanna Marbach, who has catered to such celebrities as Greta Garbo, or in a large establishment such as that of Hermann Gerson, she can earn possibly 200 marks a month (about $55 par exchange). Posing for advertising copy she can earn from 15 to 35 marks a sitting, providing the photographs turn out well.

Tomorrow.
Glorious Gloria, of London.

She is typical of the German models to be seen swaying glamorously through Berlin dress shops or posing carefully for photographers and artists. Models meet rich men only in America, she and her working sisters say with conviction.

PILLAR TO POST

SENATOR and Mrs. William H. King's 11-year-old twins are fraternal twins; they present a different problem from the identical twins of Senator Clark, mentioned recently in this column.

Jack and Eleanor King are contrasts in temperament and appearance. Jack is sturdy and blond, while his pretty sister has brown eyes and dark brown hair parted in the middle with two quaint braids, hanging down her back. In temperament they differ even more. Eleanor is somewhat aggressive in a way that is quite captivating. Jack finds her irresistible and is apt to follow where she leads.

* * * *

"His attachment for her is extreme," explained Mrs. King. "Away from her influence he is quite the dominant male, but because he does not enjoy doing anything without her, he plays with her little girl friends, perhaps too much. For that reason we have separated them this summer. Eleanor was sent to a girls' camp and Jack to a camp where boys would be his only companions."

* * * *

This habit of deferring to his sister began when they were babies. He learned to walk while Eleanor was still crawling, and the chivalrous infant would always wait for her to catch up with him.

A Turtle Goes.

Knowing he'd defend her to the last ditch from whatever enemy might appear, Eleanor accepts his devotions complacently. Her attitude was illustrated once when they each possessed a pet turtle. A little girl friend became ill and they took their turtles to see her. When they returned one of the turtles was missing.

* * * *

"We gave her Jackie's turtle," announced Eleanor, as though conscious of a deed well done.

Jack is instinctively chivalrous and though he has never been given specific instructions to do so, he always gives up his seat in a street car to a woman. When he was not more than six years old he performed this courtesy. After getting up he asked in a loud voice, "Why is it that all men aren't polite?"

One time their nurse took them to the Arlington Memorial and they noticed a sentry pacing back and forth shouldering a gun.

"Why does he carry that gun?" asked Jackie.

"To shoot people with when they disobey," answered the nurse solemnly.

Eleanor stepped up to the sentry with a swish of her little skirts and an impish gleam in her eye.

"Shoot me," she dared him, "I'm bad."

The nurse, Miss Carry B. Lincoln, a sweet and white-haired New Englander, likes to tell of their many pranks.

Once they hid her glasses and then pretended to help in the frantis search, rummaging in bureau drawers, looking in corners. All the time they knew the lost spectacles were reposing under the bed.

* * * *

She tells another story on herself that has to do with chewing gum. They liked gum, but she had forbidden them to have it, although she herself chewed it occasionally. She had a piece in her mouth one evening when she put the children to bed. When she was about to turn out the light Jackie called her.

* * * *

"Come here, Linky, and tell me good night."

"But I have, Jackie," she said after humoring him with another hug. "Why did you want me to do it again?"

"I wanted to smell the gum," giggled Jackie.

Choir to Sing in Russia, But No Church Music

The Westminster Choir, which sang here last spring, will sail August 25 for a European tour, which will include Russia. Concerts will be given in Moscow and Leningrad at the invitation of the Soviet government. At request of the government the program will be confined to secular music, with stress on American folk songs.

English Wives Held Contented In Dependency

They Don't Manage Husbands as U. S. Women Do, Says Visitor.

THE American husband, generous, indulgent, lets his wife manage him as well as their home and children. Exactly the reverse is true in England, according to an American woman who returned to Washington this week from a three years' visit in London.

"While most American women take advantage of their husbands' generosity, English wives seem fairly content to remain subordinate to their husbands," said Mrs. Anne T. Beadle yesterday at the home of her sister-in-law, Miss Mary A. Beadle, in Georgetown. After a few days' stay in the Capital, Mrs. Beadle will proceed to her home on the Pacific Coast.

The English woman is satisfied with her place in the home because tradition and custom decree the man should rule the household, believes the American.

Youth in England.

"Everybody, everything over there is hemmed in with tradition," she declared. "Young people of today are forced to conform to customs that were established centuries ago. They make a few feeble attempts at rebellion, but custom and tradition are too strong for them."

Youth is a handicap in England, Mrs. Beadle reports.

"In the United States," she said, "we expect boys to become independent and to look after themselves as soon as they have finished college. But not in England. Over there a man of 30 is considered little more than a child. He must consult his father on all business matters. And his father sees to it his son does exactly as his great-great-grandfather did."

The most famous of all English customs, afternoon tea, has the unqualified approval of the American.

The Calling Hour.

"It simplifies things so," she smiled. "An English woman is never annoyed by unexpected guests dropping in at noon. She is never disturbed in the early afternoon. But at 4:30 she is 'at home.' She is dressed and ready to receive any acquaintances who care to chat over the tea cups. Or, if she wants to call upon some friends, she knows can be sure of finding them home at tea time."

Eating fills a big part of the English family's life, according to Mrs. Beadle. After breakfast at 8 there is coffee at 11, then luncheon at 1, tea at 4:30, and dinner some time between 7 and 9.

Keeping house in London takes a lot more time than it does in the United States, she observed, because English servants, like their masters and mistresses, are slaves to custom. They refuse to have anything to do with newfangled labor-saving devices.

Distrust Conveniences.

"They're afraid of electricity. And because they fear change in any form, they distrust all modern conveniences," she said.

The American admitted she was disappointed in the appearance of English women. She failed to see any of those famed wild-rose complexions.

"They don't wear their clothes with as much style as American women. And they choose such uninteresting things."

In addition to a rigorous observance of the tea hour, Mrs. Beadle thinks the United States would do well to copy England's police system.

"Their policemen are no more noble at heart than ours," she declared. "It's the system that keeps them from ever being corrupted. Officers are constantly transferred, so it would be foolish for anybody to buy one off. Within a few days he'd have to buy another one, and then still another one."

Aged Mother Takes to Pulpit

Lived for Three Quarters of a Century and Still Played Leap Frog.

CHESHIRE, Conn., July 19 (Spl.). At the age when most women are looking around for chimney corners and comfortable rockers, Mrs. George Aldridge, of Toronto, 75-year-old mother of the Rev. Wilfred G. Aldridge, pastor of the Cheshire Methodist Episcopal Church, is making a name for herself in the pulpit.

In her son's absence Sunday she preached a highly impressive sermon on "What Is Your Life?" to more than 200 persons in the little century-old brick church on the State highway.

Her ability as a preacher won acclaim before this episode. As grand chaplain of the Universal Craftsmen, then in convention in Rochester, she preached a memorial oration for President Warren G. Harding when word of his death was received there. On Mother's Day of this year she delivered three sermons in Toronto before large congregations.

A native of England, Mrs. Aldridge was ordained as a replacement preacher more than 50 years ago. Most of her time, however, has been devoted to organization work.

She has been prominent in the work of the W. C. T. U., having helped Lady Frances Somerset to found the English branch. In addition to her activity in church and social work, Mrs. Aldridge seeks further outlets for her boundless vitality in sports.

According to her son, she recently went swimming. After staying in the water for more than an hour, she emerged to play leapfrog with boys on the beach.

Strictly Speaking

Answer These.

1. Where is the accent in Esquire, the title of a popular magazine for men?
2. Define the italicized word in this sentence: "'If you do this the way I tell you, you will succeed,' he added didactically."
3. What is the correct pronunciation for the final word of a prayer?
4. What noted German composer gave us "Lohengrin" and "Tannhauser?"
5. What is the difference between a provincialism and a colloquialism?

Check Here.

1. According to the editors of this magazine the accent is on the last syllable—Es-QUIRE.
2. Didactically, pronounced di-DACK-ti-kal-ly, means instructively.
3. Amen is correctly pronounced ay-MEN, except in singing when it is always ah-MEN.
4. Wilhelm Richard Wagner—pronounced VAHG-ner.
5. A provincialism is a word peculiar to one section of the country. Common provincialisms are "gallery" for "porch," "poke" for "sack," and "spud" for "potato." A colloquialism is a word or expression commonly used in talking but not correct in formal writing. All contractions are colloquialisms. So is the italicized word in the following sentence: "She was anxious to go."

Small Details, Five of Them, Aids to Beauty

What Make-up Should Be Applied First? Read and Learn.

By Frances Mangum.

THERE are five small details that control a lot of beauty, but strangely enough they're details that many women ignore.

For instance—

A cream rouge should never be applied over powder. It should be smoothed on the bare skin and blended in with a gentle rotary movement of the fingers. When it is put on last it cakes and causes the skin to appear rough and streaked. Besides, the true rich color, which its manufacturer doubtless took months to perfect, is clouded and changed when it becomes an aftermath to powder.

Dry Rouge After Powder.

On the other hand, dry rouge should be applied after powder and toned down by another powder film. When smoothing it on be careful to blend the edges so it is not apparent where rouge leaves off and powder begins.

Lipstick should always be applied well inside to prevent a glaring dividing line when the lips are parted.

The lashes should be brushed after the make-up is completed. In this way, bits of powder, rouge and cream are removed. To keep lashes glossy and groomed, brush them at least once every day. The proper way to brush them is, first, in the opposite direction from that in which they grow. Then in the right direction. This stimulates circulation and improves the lash growth. Brushing them both in the morning and at night with an eyelash grower or just plain castor oil will give them a tendency to curl. Be sure to brush the lower ones down and upper ones up.

Cream, Then Tonic.

Liquefying cleansing cream should be followed by a good skin tonic. The tonic removes excess grease, freshens the skin and closes the pores. If it isn't used, the oily surface of the skin is apt to attract fine grains of dust, which lodge in the pores and enlarge them.

An astringent should never be used on the skin unless thorough cleaning has been effected. Otherwise every pat that presses in the astringent also grinds in dirt and foreign matter.

A Book Club For 1 Serves Member Well

By Ruth Anne Davis.

EVERYBODY in Washington has an opportunity to join a unique club.

It's a book club, and each club is made up of one person. Ever so often the store which sponsors the club sends out a book along any prescribed type. Not one of the so-called best books of the month, mind you, but the kind of book you like. All you do is leave your name and address and the type of book you prefer. Then you sit back and wait for the book to be delivered at you door. If it isn't exactly what you want the store will exchange it for another. As a result, satisfaction is guaranteed.

How often the books are to be sent, and how many sent at a time is a matter of choice. Each club member draws up her own regulations and the store follows them.

Soap Sale, 7 Varieties.

If some all-seeing eye could peer in the windows of all the homes in town it would doubtless discover that 99 out of 100 housewives use 1 of 7 popular brands of soap. And, furthermore, it might find supplies running low, a good time to proclaim a soap sale.

Seven kinds of soap, hard cakes for the tub or sink and flakes and grains for the wash tub, are all reduced. In a case of this kind the more one buys the more one saves, so start now and call in an order. Then count up the money saved and buy yourself a luxury present.

Another Cream.

Another cream! There must be hundreds of thousands of them by now, and each one with some properties that warrant its mention in this column.

This one is interesting because it does three things all at once. It cleanses, nourishes, and acts as a powder foundation. The large 1 pound jar is covered with a pastel fabric easily washable.

Remember, the most charming hostess is the one who provides the needs of her guests before they're asked for. Here is a cream sure to suit the week-end guest who might have forgotten to bring her own. It is fine to keep at hand for dinner and bridge guests. And speaking of bridge, it would be a grand bridge prize.

Hose Protection.

Rubber is being put to so many varied uses now it isn't surprising to find it in the shape of small, round disks for protecting hose.

These queer-looking gadgets would confuse the most intrepid shopper save for their direction card. It seems they fasten to the garters without pinning or sewing, and once on they make it virtually impossible for garters to tear the sheerest hose.

A card of 16 for 15 cents.

Pedicure Polish.

Thanks to the open sandals and stockingless vogue the pedicure is almost as popular as the manicure. Manufacturers of nail polishes are realizing toe-nail polish is as essential as finger-nail polish.

Women usually use the same polish for both purposes, but they find that although it looks well on the fingers it lacks gloss and smoothness on the toes, because it isn't of the right consistency to cover up the coarser ridges.

A company whose name is associated with a fine grade finger-nail polish is sponsoring a pedicure polish. It comes in a package with remover.

* * * *

French Prints.

It simply couldn't be helped! Those French print handkerchiefs were entirely too attractive not to have a wide appeal. And they were entirely too expensive for most purchasers.

So what happened? The usual thing. A handkerchief company put out inexpensive linens and cotton in the same French designs. It is almost impossible to tell the dollar hankies from these 10-cent ones.

Black and white prints, black with colored flowers, blues, tans, green and yellows all intermixed. There are plain ones and fancy, all with hand-turned hems.

For Indoor Plants.

Now the sun is doing such a successful job of scorching gardens, many frail plants are being potted and moved indoors. But no proud housewife cares to have her sun room or porch cluttered with unsightly pots. Nor does she have to.

An F street shop has some fluted flower containers of pottery colored green, white and orange. These come on graceful iron holders. Two curving handles on each side make them conveniently portable. There are three sizes and three prices.

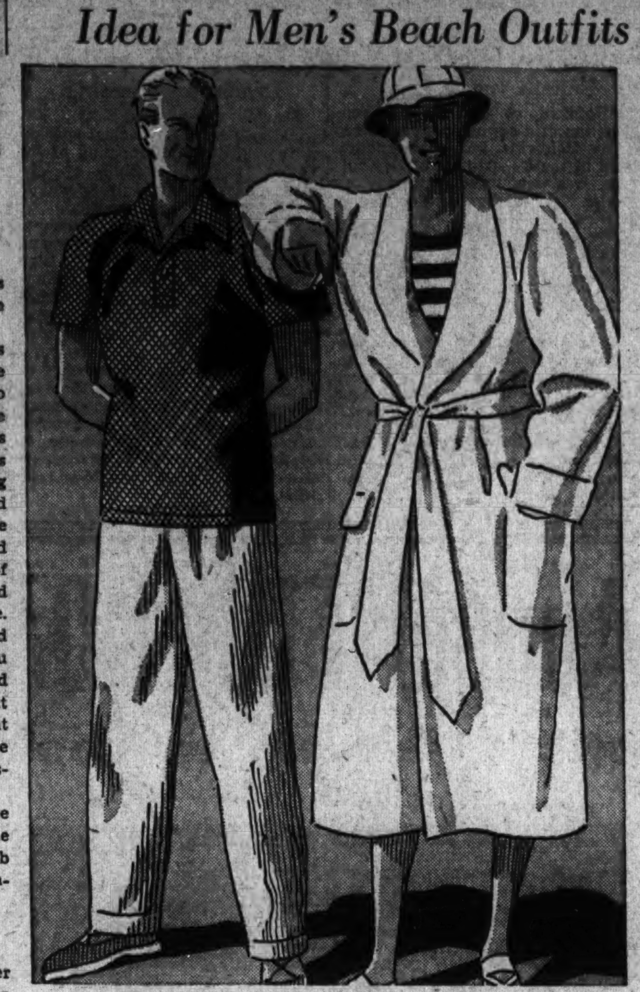
Less Suit, More Accessories, Idea for Men's Beach Outfits



By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Less bathing suit but more beach accessories seems to be the idea among men on popular beaches this season. And for every bathing shirt taken off, and more and more beaches are allowing it, there are several items ready to put on. Which should even things up with stern authorities.

The beach robe is one of these items being seen on more and more men as protection from both over-sunning and from chill.

Outstanding is the terry cloth robe, generally in plain colors of white, light blue, canary or tan, but occasionally in regatta stripes, broad bands of color graduated from a dark to a light blue or brown to yellow. The most popular of these robes is a wrap-around with shawl collar, similar to the one illustrated.

Other comfortable cotton robes include seersucker, ratine and waffle weaves, most of them with shawl collars, some with notch collars which unfold to cover the chest and some with a muffler device attached to the inside of the collar.

In addition there are good-looking foulard silk robes which appeal to men desirous of minimum weight and maximum coolness.

Beach shirts are another item going on when the bathing shirt comes off. Ranging from lightweight knit wools to terry cloth, there is a variety of models.

The hip-length shirt with short sleeves and crew neck, is one of the most popular. Another important one is the half-sleeved shirt with polo collar. This is made of knitted wool or cotton while the first shirt is usually terry or cotton.

Then there's the navy blue polo shirt in lightweight wool which can go over the golf course as well as the beach. This is illustrated. And for a combination of coverage and exposure, you have the "dish rag" shirt, made of an open mesh fabric which formerly knew the water only through the medium of the dish pan.

Men who go in for beach shorts usually have a pair of beach slacks, too. Generally made of duck, sail cloth, corduroy and various cotton weaves, they are cut full and casual.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

While You're Presrving, Try These Unusual Jam Recipes.

By Susan Mills.

BOTHERING to pun, jam is the best thing to help you out of one. A winter evening with a few unexpected guests will deplete the larder. A few extra picnic lunches in the fall will play havoc with your neatly labeled jars, unless you have a large quantity.

While you're canning and jellying, try a few unusual recipes. Variety is the spice of life and the interest in the jam.

Ginger Pear Jam.

(Using crystallized ginger)

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit

½ to 1 cup diced crystallized ginger

7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar

1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel, core and crush completely or grind about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. Dice about ½ pound crystallized ginger.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit, tightly packed, into large kettle. Add ginger, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses ([illegible]d ounces each).

This product may take a week to reach a usable set.

Relish Dressing.

(For Vegetable Salads.)

1/3 cup French dressing
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 tablespoon chili sauce
3 olives, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Mix and chill ingredients.

How to Keep Well

Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Prevent Rickets Now.

Every sunny day must be used for its therapeutic value in the treatment of rickets in children. Although the disease has been known for centuries it is only in recent years that a clear conception of the cause of rickets has been obtained. We now know that sunlight, exercise, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D are the underlying factors in the prevention of this disease. Sunlight probably is the chief factor, as most diets will contain a fair amount of calcium and phosphorus.

The symptoms of rickets are easily recognized. There is usually restlessness, loss of appetite, and increased irritability, ofttimes noted by the rolling of the head from side to side. As the child grows the abdomen may be noticeably prominent. When the child begins to walk, bowing of the legs may be the most distinctive sign noted by the parents. The infant may appear to be well nourished, but on X-ray examination of the bones of the head, areas that should be fully calcified are shown to be soft.

Breast-fed children are in no sense immune from rickets should the mother be deprived of an adequate amount of outdoor exercise and sunlight.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m.

Be careful on this date that by a sharp reply you do not offend one who has now a great feeling of friendship, which might be turned into deep resentment. Many a thoughtlessly spoken rude comment has resulted in a costly conclusion. Business should prove fairly active and money should jingle in many a pocket. A supposed-to-be friend may try to deliberately lead you astray from the straight and narrow path by suggestive whisperings, to which it might be advisable to turn a deaf ear. In this case "let your conscience be your guide"—for good. There is a possibility of your receiving an important communication, the ignoring of which might lead to complications. If you wish to make any engagements of a social nature for the week-end, they should be made immediately, otherwise you may be disappointed.

If a woman and July 20 is your natal day, anticipate it being a very pleasant birthday, made brighter by the evidence of good wishes, providing you have not kept it a secret. It might be advisable for you to exercise more independence of thought where your own personal affairs are concerned, not allowing other people to sway your opinion. You might be happier, if you learn to be more tolerant of the faults of one you think a great deal of, and realize we all have faults of our own which need correcting. If engaged in commercial life or a career, develop more self-assertiveness and consideration for your associates. Do not allow others to be too dictatorial to you nor allow yourself to be too much so to others.

Children born on July 20, as they grow up, display an unusual amount of intelligence and physical fitness. They generally occasion little trouble or worry.

If a man and July 20 is your birthday, if you will depend on yourself and not, on others, your results will be gratifying. Get the habit of thinking clearly and optimistically, and nothing can stop your meeting with success and making money.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin and her husband, Russian intellectuals, were imprisoned by the Soviets on falsified charges, leaving their small son to fend for himself. Past installments have revealed stories of suffering and privation within prison walls; this chronicle of misery continues in today's chapter.

"LOUD speaking, singing and tears are forbidden," was one of the prison rules.

In their anxiety to reduce our inner life to nothing, the OGPU went so far as to forbid us to cry, although in our state of nervous exhaustion many found it impossible to refrain from tears. Of course one could cry quietly, closing the eyes or pretending a headache, but as soon as the wardress noticed it through the peephole, the slot in the door went up and there followed rude remonstrances that there was nothing to cry for, that we musn't, that it was forbidden.

When old wardresses shouted in their rough but simple-hearted way, "What's the good of blubbering, stop it, now!" it did not sound half so offensive as the remarks of the young Communists with painted lips and plucked eyebrows, who had just been promoted to the rank of wardresses. They said with a sort of contempt, "For shame! You should have more self-respect. Stop, or I'll tell the chief warder."

But some of the prisoners were too ill and nervous to control themselves, and then there was trouble.

Dusk Was Worst.

At dusk, when darkness gathered in the cells, but for the sake of economy no lights were lit, one felt particularly miserable. Nothing could be more depressing than that cold sepulchral darkness; the cell seemed like the grave. Everyone felt wretched during that last half hour before the lights were turned on. I remember I said once to the old wardress:

"If ever I hang myself, it will be at dusk."

"Oh, don't say such things!" she said in genuine alarm. "I should be pleased to turn the light on, but it's not allowed," she added apologetically. "We have to save on lighting. As it is, I light up five minutes earlier than I ought. If only No. 2 doesn't begin to cry! That will be more trouble than it is worth."

In prison we were known by ouh numbers, not by names. We never saw Number Two, because she was not let out for walks, but we knew her voice very well—she could not endure the dusk and often wept.

She wept quietly, though sometimes a sob escaped her, and if she was left in peace she gradually calmed down. But prision discipline demanded that measures should be taken at once, and then there was a scene. It began with the wardress' running up and down the iron, stairs, opening the slot in her door and speaking to her in a menacing voice, which was answered by bitter sobs. Then the chief warder's boots were heard thundering up the stairs, and he roared threateningly:

"I'll put you in a punishment cell!"

She cried more bitterly, like a child who can not stop. In the dead stillness disturbed only by the rattle of keys and the steps of the warders, the sound of this unfortunate woman weeping in her solitary cell made us feel as though she were lamenting over all of us, buried alive in the prison.

The chief warder went to fetch two heavy-footed assistants.

Horrible Scene.

"To the punishment cell!"

The woman's weeping became a wail; the key rattled, the door opened with a sinister noise and the place rang with heartrending screams:

"Leave me, let me be! There are rats there! I'm afraid of them! Don't take me there!"

They dragged her by force, pulling her along the floor, while she struggled and screamed, wild with despair, choking with tears and the horror of the rat-infested punishment cell. All of the five stories of the prison resounded with her cries, and then came a stillness that was even more terrible. No one ever heard how she came back to her cell. Intimidated by the punishment, she would sometimes control herself for a week or ten days, but sometimes the fits of weeping recurred almost every day and with the same results.

One evening when I was led back to my cell after a cross-examination I saw a dreadful scene: in the narrow corridor on the ground floor this woman, worn out by sobbing and struggling, was being pushed into the door of the punishment cell.

Rats Abounded.

The broad back of one of the warders shut her off from my view, and I only saw her head, with lovely fair hair that fell in disorder on her deadly pale, tear-stained face. She was groaning but still trying to resist, though her arms were held by two burly men.

"A rat!" she screamed, panic-stricken, and the heavy iron door shut her in.

There were huge rats in the prison. At one time the authorities tried to exterminate them and put down poison; the rats came out of their holes to die in the courtyard, and their hideous reddish corpses with bare tails could be seen by the walls, on the half-basement window-sills and in the middle of the yard.

It may be very foolish and feminine, but the sight of a dead rat spoiled all the pleasure of the walk in the courtyard. I dread to think what it must have been like in the punishment cell, the ceiling of which was said to be so low that one could not stand up, and where the warders could put out the light, leaving their victim in darkness alone with the rats.

Forbidden to Sing.

Another prisoner who was constantly punished for weeping was probably half-insane. She often began by singing, which was strictly forbidden. She had a beautiful voice and had obviously been trained for operatic singing, but her style was very peculiar: she sang the most cheerful songs to funeral tunes, and sad ones—such as Lisa's aria in the "Queen of Spades"—like a chansonette. She did it admirably, and her voice grew louder and louder; the wardress interposed and threatened her, then she cried and sobbed hysterically. Sometimes she began by crying, but she did it in her own way: she cooed in a sad little voice like a turtle dove, then the sound grew stronger, and she wailed in a sing-song voice louder and louder, but always very musically.

Then we heard the wardress' remonstrances and the chief warder's threats, which she answered by wild screaming and cursing. But evidently she was regarded as insane, because instead of locking her in the punishment cell they put her in a strait waistcoat and tied her to her bed. Worn out by crying and struggling, she gradually subsided.

Hated by Authorities.

The prison authorities hated her, probably because they could not deal with her in their own way; they kept her in one of the darkest and dampest cells on the ground floor, and did not allow her out for walks; only once in the summer she was taken out into the courtyard. She proved to be a young woman, tall and well-made, with charming manners; she stepped along the yard as though it were a ballroom, spoke pleasantly to the warder in charge of her, and burst into song as soon as she was brought back to her cell. She was not let out any more.

It was a mystery what the OGPU wanted with this poor mad woman, whom they kept for nearly a year in prison; they do not hesitate to fake evidence, and could have done so in her case instead of driving her to hopeless insanity. We were, of course, unable to do or say anything; we did not even know her name, and could never discover what was finally done to her.

The third woman who attracted attention by her weeping was the common criminal who at one time shared my cell. With her, tears were a means of obtaining favors from prision authorities. It generally happened when she was short of cigarettes. Longing for tobacco she wandered aimlessly about the cell, killed flies, scratched the paint on the walls, and then announced to me:

"I am going to set up a concert and get some cigarettes." She sat down on her bed and began rocking herself to and fro, wailing piteously:

"My poor, poor mother! What are they doing to me! Mother, mother! Why did you bring me into the world Poor, unhappy me!"

Upset by her own words, she began shedding real tears, entering into her part more and more thoroughly.

"I shall die, I shall die, never see you again!"

She put in a line from a popular song and broke into loud sobs.

She Gets Cigarettes.

The wardress' remonstrations were of no avail, because only the chief warder could get cigarettes from the OGPU buffet. When he appeared and sternly asked, "What is it now? What do you want, citizen?" she calmed down, gave him a sad, appealing look—which suited her young and pretty face very well—and whispered, "A cigarette!"

Surprised by such an easy solution of the trouble, he grinned and, pulling out a smart cigarette case adorned with monograms, provided her with cigarettes.

"Don't you receive any parcels?" he asked sympathetically.

"Yes, but I never have enough," she complained. "It's so dull here. Send to buy me some more, dear!"

She begged a rouble of me on the spot and made the chief warder promise that he would have some cigarettes bought for her—an unheard-of concession, which only she knew how to obtain.

Scenic Park Route In South Sleceted

Highway Will Connect Va. and N. C. Mountains.

The route of a portion of the scenic parkway which will connect the Shenandoah and Great Smoky Mountains National parks was announced yesterday by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes.

The sections which will be constructed with PWA funds will be from the southern boundary of the Shenandoah National Park to James River and from Adney Gap, just south of Roanoke, to Blowing Rock, N. C.

The route from Blowing Rock to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park has not yet been determined.

War Veteran's Bond Forfeited at Danville

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.). The $2,500 bond of George Washington Setliff, World War veteran, convicted of murdering his wife two years ago and sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary, was ordered forfeited today by Judge H. C. Leigh.

Upon his conviction recently he noted an appeal and was released. The time limit for the appeal passed without action being taken. His failure to surrender resulted in the forfeiture and the issuance of a warrant for his arrest.

Funeral Will Be Held Today for W. L. Hellane

Greencastle, Pa., July 19 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for William L. Hellane, 53, who died here Tuesday.

Mr. Hellane's death came only a few hours after the funeral services of his nephew, B. F. Hellane, who died suddenly in Waynesboro Saturday. Surviving William Hellane are his widow, his mother, Mrs. Anna Hellane, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Knode, all of Greencastle.

68 Berkeley County Children to Get Outing

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jly 19 (Spl.). Saturday afternoon 68 boys and girls in charge of Dr. Edwin Cameron, health director, and assistants, will leave for Camp Frame to spend approximately six weeks.

The youngsters were selected from about 150 applicants for the outing, sponsored for underprivileged children by the Berkeley County Welfare Board.

The famous Molly Pitcher of the Battle of Monmouth in the Revolutionary War was in real life Mary Ludwig Hays, wife of an American gunner. During the battle at which she won fame she was carrying water to the troops when her husband fell unconscious at his gun, overcome by heat. As there was no one to take his place, the wife worked in his stead. For this she became an American heroine, known variously as "Molly Pitcher" and "Sergeant Mary"—the latter name being accorded her when she was made an honorary sergeant in the company.

The story, often repeated, that her husband was killed at his gun, and that she took his place to avenge his death, is error. Hays did not die until about ten years later, after which his widow married a George McCauley.

Forty-four years after her famous heroism on the battlefield she was earning her living as a scrubwoman—a fact which was brought to the attention of the Pennsylvania General Assembly. Thereafter Molly Pitcher was given a pension of $40 a year—about 11 cents a day.

Doctor Authorized To Examine Krol

Chicago Physician Certifes Condition for Travel.

Winchester, Va., July 19 (AP).—An order has been issued in Corporation Court authorizing appointment of a reputable physician in Chicago to examine Max Krol, convicted here of embezzling funds of the now defunct Arthur G. Jones Woolen Mills Corporation, to determine whether the former treasurer and selling agent of the company is physically able to come here to show cause why his cash bail of $5,000 should not be forfeited.

An attorney for Krol appeared this week and presented affidavits by several physicians to the effect that Krol, suffering from paralysis, was in no condition to come here.

Krol was recently convicted and sentenced to six years' imprisonment. While an appeal was pending, he obtained release on $5,000 cash bond, and went to the home of a relative in Chicago. The Virginia Supreme Court refused a write of error, and Krol's bond was immediately called. Instead of appearing to begin serving sentence, Krol sent an attorney to present evidence that he was too ill to travel.

Roanoke Files Show Increase in Accidents

Roanoke, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Police records show that automobile accidents increased 6.2 per cent during the first six months of the year compared with 1933, while personal injuries jumped 10.3 per cent.

Three deaths from motor vehicle accidents in the city limits have occurred this year. Figures since 1924 show that deaths for the first six-month period of any year have ranged from one to five.

PWA Fund Granted For Sewage Plant

Beltsville, Md., Farm Will Benefit by Project.

Allotment of $195,000 for construction of a sewage disposal plant at the Beltsville, Md., experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture, was announced yesterday by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The allotment carries on a PWA project already started. The Beltsville farm is being expanded into the world's largest experimental station by the Agricultural Department.

Installation of the sewage disposal plant will eliminate pollution at Beaver Dam Creek. The project is expected to take six months and will employ an average of 40 men.

Senator to Be Speaker at Lynchburg Meeting.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, will be the principal speaker at the third annual meeting of the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia at Lynchburg, July 27 and 28 the Associated Press reported.

The Senator's address, which is scheduled for the second day and will be broadcast, will be a high light of the speaking program, since he has avoided public speaking nearly two years. He recently has been unsympathetic with the Administration's New Deal program.

The speaker the opening day of the meeting will be State Senator John J. Wicker, of Richmond, manager of the State's home owners' loan corporation. John Galleher, of Leesburg, president of the organization, estimated more than 1,000 delegates will attend.

Londos Here Tonight for Marshall

Super-Wrestling Card Headed by Struggle for Greek's Title.

Record Crowd for Mat Game Here Expected; Challenger Primed.

By Frank H. Young.

WASHINGTON'S greatest leering contest of history is due on the Griffith Stadium mat tonight when Everett Marshall, the Colorado Cowboy, challenges Jimmy Londos, the Greek idol, for his share of claims as titular head of the Cauliflower Industry, one of the few businesses which Gen. Johnson has been unable to bring into the NRA fold.

In the past, the grunting and bone-breaking pachyderms have seen to it themselves that John Public has not gotten too long a run for its money, but there have been many changes of late and, with State commissions taking the supervision under their collective wings, it is suspected that actual competition is reentering the game.

Londos Goes to Work.

Within the month, Londos has taken on the only other two title claimants. A few weeks ago, he knocked Jim Browning out of the running, adding the airplane leg-scissors expert's 24 titles to the 14 he already owned and Wednesday night, in Boston, he attempted to make it a clean sweep by downing Ed Don George for all of the crowns of the New England States. This latter bout, however, ended in the wee, small hours of yesterday morning, with each getting a fall and the deciding bout halted when both were all in after 2 hours and 12 minutes of brawling.

As a result of his failure to nail George, Londos comes here tonight as half-champion. If Marshall drops him, he will eliminate the Greek from the chase and will still have to dispose of George. Londos, however, has all to lose and nothing to gain except the cash.

Needed Extra Day.

It is a good thing for Londos that he had this Marshall fracas moved back from last night, for he toiled—and toiled hard—for a total of 3 hours 15 minutes and 13 seconds in the Boston ring Wednesday and, even with yesterday's rest, which included a long train-ride from the City of Culture, he likely will be far from fresh when he tackles Marshall. And any rassler tackling Marshall in his present form should be at his best.

The Colorado cowboy has been training hard, pointing for this particular bout, for a week and was chock full of confidence last night. In the recent past, he has been Londos' nemsis. Five times have this pair met and four times has a draw resulted. On the last occasion, the two tugged at each other for nearly three hours before Londos won. Even then, he had to toss Everett out of the ring on his head, injuring him, to gain the verdict.

Rough Battle Expected.

Knowing each other's style, indications are that the two will throw science to the winds and that it will be a knockdown, dragout affair. Marshall recently has specialized on an arm stretch and shoulder jolt, which was effective enough to halk kill Dusek here recently, and he is planning to give the Greek punishing doses of this medicine. Londos, between his back-pedaling, is expected to try to wear his foe down with plain and fancy thor-hammers and all-around roughing, then to make the kill, if he can, with his famed airplane spin and body slams.

Indications are that the largest crowd since the Londos-Rudy Dusek melee of 1931 will batttle its way through the turnstiles, this bout drawing 12,000 and a $15,000 gate.

Easterbrook Is Victor.

Portmarnock, Ireland, July 19 (U.P.).—Sid Easterbrook, British Ryder Cup player, captured the Irish Open Gold Championship with an aggregate of 284 for the 72-hole test. In his fourth round, Easterbrook established a new course record of 68.

DIZZY DEAN,

Cards Win, 4-2, As J. Dean Stars

Boston, July 19 (AP).—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, the St. Louis Cardinals' eccentric but effective hurler, today led his team to a 4 to 2 win in the first game of their series with the Boston Braves.

The tall right-hander, in winning his ninth straight victory, his seventeenth of the season, registered his first triumph in more than two seasons against a team in Boston.

Jordan doubled in the first inning and opened the scoring for the Braves on singles by Berger and Lee.

The Cards equalled this count in the fourth when Collins scored on Orsatti's single after he had doubled.

Moore singled in the fifth and a triple by Berger sent the Braves ahead once more.

Successive singles by Davis, Orsatti and Durocher and a long fly by Dean gave the Cards a 3 to 2 margin in the sixth. Pepper Martin's long homer into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning provided the visitors with their fourth run.

U. S. Net Aces 3-2 to Beat Australia

Crawford Shields' Foe, McGrath Faces Wood on Opening Day.

Both Teams Practicing Daily for Start of Play Saturday.

By Henry McLemore.

LONDON, July 19 (U.P.).—London bookmakers, willing, ready and eager to hold bets on anything, today made America's Davis Cup team a 3-to-2 favorite to beat Australia and thus earn the right to play Great Britain, holder of the historic racquet mug, in the final, or challenge round. They were offering 2 to 1 against America's chances of sweeping the first day's play.

The draw made today for the interzone final starting Saturday pitted Jack Crawford, the skidding No. 1 man of the Aussi forces, against Shields, big New Yorker, and Vivian McGrath, rising member of the down under squad, against the rejuvenated Sidney B. Wood, jr., also of New York.

Crawford Is Favored.

Crawford, despite his setback in the European zone final with Czechoslovakia on Sunday, was expected to have saved enough of his game to turn back the giant Shields. Wood, however, was a distinct favorite over McGrath, who saved Australia's tennis life on Sunday by defeating Ladislaus Hecht, of the Czech team, in the deciding match after Crawford had made his unexpected bow to Rod Menzel.

The remainder of the draw pitted Crawford and Adrian Quist against George Mott, of Chicago, and Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, in Monday's one doubles match. On Tuesday Crawford meets Wood and McGrath plays Shields. Play will be omitted Sunday.

Practising Daily.

Both teams are practising daily, although the Australians, somewhat spent after a campaign of more than one month, are conserving their strength.

The Americans seem to have rounded into excellent form and, barring unforseen developments, should go in against Australia in perfect condition. The Australians seem a bit worn.

Won't Make Prediction.

"I won't say a thing about the Australian matches," he said. "And even if I would I'd say less about our chances against the English, even if we are lucky enough to get to play them."

Williams also refused to discuss yesterday's precipitous departure of Wilmer Allison, of Texas, who made a hurried trip to England against the possibility of playing in either the Australian or English ties. When Allison, member of last year's unsuccessful team, found he was not needed against the Australians, he began packing his extra shirts and shoes.

Woodstock to Face Two Rivals in League

Woodstock, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The Woodstock Athletic Club will face two league teams next weekend, meeting Harrisonburg at Harrisonburg Saturday and Culpeper here Sunday.

It is believed Brewbaker will face Harrisonburg Saturday, and Bradshaw, ace southpaw who held Charlottesville to seven scattered hits, will get the hill duty against Culpeper Sunday.

Falling Waters on Top.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—The Falling Waters ball club defeated Hillville in a game at Falling Waters, 8 to 3. The winners piled up a big early inning lead and coasted in behind the four-hit pitching of Bowers. N. Wilt, losing hurler, was touched for an even dozen blows.

Yanks Down Chisox, Gain On Tigers

Murphy Wins 9th Game, 4-3; Chapman Star Despite Ailing Leg.

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP).—The Yankees broke the "jinx" that has beset them on their current Western tour to beat the cellar-dwelling White Sox, 4 to 3, today. The victory, while Detroit was idle, clipped a half-game off New York's deficit in the American League pennant race, leaving the Yanks an even two games behind.

With Babe Ruth still in Cleveland, recovering from yesterday's leg injury, Ben Chapman took over the job of getting the Yankee runs for young Johnny Murphy. He drove in three of them, including the winning tallies in the eighth, and scored the fourth. And he did all this in spite of a charley horse.

Chapman tripled in the first inning and scored on Lou Gehrig's single. In the third he smacked a single to bring home Jack Saltzgaver, who had reached second on the first of two doubles. Then, when the Sox had forged ahead in the sixth, Ben slashed a double after Earl Combs had beaten out a base hit and Saltzgaver had made his second twobagger to bring home the winning tallies.

Murphy Wins No. 9.

Murphy, winning his ninth victory against five defeats, pitched steadily except in the fourth, when he lost control and handed out four of his five passes to give the Sox two runs.

Chicago tied the score in that inning when Luke Appling walked and was forced by Hopkins. Eddie Madjeski followed with a single and Pitcher Milt Gaston drew a pass, filling the bases. Jocko Conlan's fly let Hopkins score. Murphy then walked Evar Swanson and Jimmy Dykes, forcing in the second tally.

In the sixth the Sox went ahead when Madjecki singled and stole second, then completed the circuit on Conlan's single and Swanson's fly.

Schumacher's Ninth Straight Beats Reds

Hurler Gives 12 Hits, but Rings Up Shutout for Giants, 4 to 0.

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP).—Hal Schumacher stretched his string of conservative mound victories to 9 and his list of successes over Cincinnati to 11 straight today as the Giants blanked the Reds, 4 to 0, to baintain their three-game lead. Schumacher never has lost to the Reds in his three-year major league career.

Prince Hal was touched for 12 hits in recording his fourteenth triumph of the season against 4 defeats, but seldom was in serious trouble. Snapp Fielding, featuring 4 double plays, helped him out of the tight spots. The Gians nicked Paul Derringer for 3 hits and 2 runs in the first and stayed out in front easily. Neither pitcher gave a pass.

Frey's Home Run Wins for Dodgers

Brooklyn, July 19 (AP).—Linus Frey, known as "junior" to his teammates, pulled a ball game out of the re for the Dodgers today when he rapped a last-minute home run to give Brooklyn a 4-to-2 victory over the Pirates.

With two out in the ninth and Ralph Boyle on first, following a walk, Frey hoisted one of Bill Swift's pitches over the right field screen for the winning tallies. Frey also knocked in the tying run with a long fly in the fifth after the Pirates had scored both their runs off Tom Zachary in the some inning.

Hurt Wanes, Babe Back Shortly

Doctor Will Try to Keep Him in Bed Couple of Days Longer.

"No, Sir," Ruth Replies, Adding He'll Go to Chicago Today.

CLEVELAND, July 19 (AP).—Babe Ruth's contusion started losing its beautiful luster today—which means that the Yankees' 40-year-old home run puncher will continue his punching "within a few days."

When the purple knot near the Babe's shin bone started lightening up from a fine, deep purple, Dr. M. L. Castle, club physician to the Cleveland Indians, revised his prediction of yesterday that the Yankee outfielder would be out at least two weeks.

Felled by Drive.

The physician's first prediction was made just shortly after one of Lou Gehrig's smashing drives had sent his patient sprawling on the base paths in the Yankee-Indian game here yesterday.

"I shall try to keep him in bed here a couple more days at least," Dr. Castle said.

Not so, the Babe.

"I'll be in Chicago tomorrow night," said he. "This is a hot scrap and I've got to get back in the line-up by Sunday."

Confronted with this piece of ugly mutiny, Dr. Castle merely said, "Yes, I know what he wants to do, but I shall try my best to keep him in bed."

Tests Leg Soreness.

It was early this morning that Ruth showed signs of returning vigor. He hopped out of his bed at a hotel and put the pressure to his injured right leg, for a second or two.

"It stung quite a bit," he said, "but it won't last long."

Both the pain and the swelling began subsiding this morning, thanks to Dr. Castle's orders and the way Mrs. Ruth carried them out.

The question now is, will Mrs. Ruth and the doctor be able to keep the Babe in bed longer than tomorrow?

Ask Babe, and the answer is "No."

Cubs, Aided by 4-Hit Pitching, Beat Phils, 2-1

Philadelphia, July 19 (AP).—Four-hit hurling in which Pat Malone and Lon Warneke collaborated gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-to-1 victory over the Phillies today.

Doubles by Grimm and Hack scored the Cubs' first run in the second, while Euel Moore's failure to touch first base when he took Camilli's assist on English's tap in the sixth paved the way for the winning run. Klein followed with a double off the scoreboard in center and English tallied.

Tribe Scores 5 in Ninth to Win, 6-5

Ostermuller, of Red Sox, Pounded Out; Werber Slams Home Run.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 18 (AP). Five runs in the ninth inning gave the Indians a 6-to-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox today in the first of a five-game series for possession of third place.

Fred Ostermueller, rookie southpaw, who had been given a four-run lead by the Sox, was chased from the mound in the ninth when Earl Averill, Cleveland center fielder, hit a single with the bases full, scoring Pytlak and Seeds. Joe Vosmik singled, scoring Knickerbocker, and then Trosky tripled, scoring Averill and Vosmik.

Webster's home run started the Boston scoring in the sixth inning, and in the eighth Willis Hudlin was chased from the box as the Sox started an attack that gave them three more runs.

Myer Fails With 2 On; Manush, Leg Injured, Hits in Pinch.

St. Louis' Four in Sixth and Two in Seventh Provide Margin.

By Lewis F. Atchison,
Post Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Washington's speed demons displayed their usual early innings' form this afternoon against St. Louis in the initial game of their series. They dashed away to a 5-1 lead in the first stanza, then suddenly turned utrtle and in true tortoise fashion crawled leisurely over the finish line—second best. The Browns won, 8-7.

The Nats lost by the narrowest of margins—one foot on the rightfield wall and two on the wrong side of the leftfield foul line.

Heinie Manush, whose only appearance on the field was in the guise of a pinch-hitter, wrapped one to the rightfield barrier in the eighth that missed being a homer by inches. Sewell, who had walked, was on first. Even so it should have been good for a double, at least, but, unable to slide because of his injured leg, Manush was tagged out going into second.

Wasted Motion.

Dave Harris, pinch-hitting for Bluege, who played left field in Manush's stead, drilled a long drive to left field that curved out of fair territory and landed foul in the bleacher seats. Eventually he walked, but Myer failed to deliver the necessary hit, so it was just wasted motion.

8he game developed into another one of those pitchers' battles, and both sides used an abundance of these gentlemen. Weaver, Burke, McColl and Thomas toiled for the Griffith A. C., and the Hornsby Hornets were represented by Wells, Andrews, McAfee and Coffman.

Wells was not going so well today and after giving the aNts five hits and five runs in the first inning he was tossed down the well into the locker room, Andrews replacing him.

Three Two-Baggers.

Wells' departure was hastened by two-baggers he pitched consecutively to Cronin, Schulte and Kress. These hits, together with Bluege's walk, Melillo's error on Travis' grounder, a wild pitch and singles off the bats of Gill and Sewell, accounted for Washington's runs.

Before going into the grewsome details of the slaughter, it may be well to mention that a young man tagged Harland Clift slapped a brace of homeruns into the leftfield bleachers to bag the day's long-distance clouting honors.

His first drive came in the initial inning, which he opened, and the second occurred in the sixth, and as it scored Andrews it turned out to be the run that topped the Nats.

The Browns got their second run in the second inning on West's double and Andrews' single, but it was in the sixth that they really got back in the ball game, scoring four times and cutting Washington's lead to a mere 7-6.

Open With Double.

Campbell opened with a double, but Melillio flied to second and Hemsley popped up to Travis. Strangely enough, it was a fellow tagged Strange who kept the rally alive with a single scoring Campbell. After that Weaver was as effective as a popgun in a bull fight. He cracked like a bent record and Bejma, batting for Andrews, belabored his fast ball for a triple, scoring this Strange person. And then came Clift. His second drive went after the first as though it were mating season. It was a real sock.

Weaver was yanked and Burke eased onto the mound only to be greeted by a lusty triple off Sam

Monk's Star Scores to Pay $209.50, Longest Odds in History of Rockingham

Plater Wins By Length And Half

Mynah Finishes Second, Foxy Quiller Third in Turf Upset.

SALEM, N. H., July 19 (AP).—The longest odds on a winner in the history of Rockingham Park were returned today when W. F. Axton's Monk's Star accounted for the second race and paid $209.50 for a $2 win ticket in the mutuels.

The plater, which had won only two races in 12 previous starts this year, showed a complete reversal of form to score by one and a half lengths over 5 furlongs. A $2 place ticket was good for $108, while a similar priced mutuel to show returned $35.40. Monk's Star was ridden by the little-known jockey, S. Vail.

In triumphing, Monk's Star ran the dsitance in 1:00 2-5. Mynah and Foxy Quiller, another pair of long shots, were second and third, respectively. Mynah paid $6.60 to place and $4.40 to show, while Foxy Quiller returned $5.70 for third.

The 5½-furlong feature went to Mrs. Edward McCuan's consistent 5-year-old daughter of Sir Gallahad III, Sobieha. Taking the lead at the head of the stretch, the speedy mare finished with three-quarters of a length to spare over F. A. Griffith's Cutie Face, with C. J. Meister's Cantersine three lengths back in third place. De Valera and Gold Step completed the small field.

Strongly backed in the mutuels, Sobieha returned only $3.90 after running the distance in 1:05 3-5.

Nats Nosed Out By Browns, 8 to 7

trobule. Snappy, featuring four West's bat, but he managed to make Pepper fly to Schulte after passing Burns.

Washington's last two runs were served in the first half of the sixth when Buddy Myer wrapped his war-club around a McAfee curve for a two-bagger, scoring Sewell, who had singled, and Bluege, occupying a base on his fielder's choice.

Bobby Burke was the fall guy in the seventh when the Browns wiped out the Nats' 1-run lead to win the ball game. Campbell reached first with the tying run when he beat out a hit off Burke's glove. Burke got Mellilo out on a line drive to Bluege, but Hemlsey caressed his next pitch for a triple to right, tying the score and putting the winning run on third. Strange was purposely passed and, with Hornsby batting for McAfee, McColl went in to pitch. Hemlsey scored the deciding run when Cronin took Hornsby's grounder and heaved wildly to Myer in an attempt for a double play. That, my friends, is how the Browns won the ball game and climbed to within three points of the Nats' fifth place berth.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DASH IN, $7.30, $4.80, $3.70; HAPPY SURPRISE, $21.70, $9; MORWAY, $3.70.

DASH IN improved position steadily, moved up stoutly in last quarter mile, wore down leader, drew out slowly in last furlong. HAPPY SURPRISE outbroke his field, was taken up, then moved up rapidly and held on gamely in the drive. MORWAY had speed from the start, but faltered in the last three sixteenths. SECULAR made up some ground. SHORT APPROACH faltered after displaying early speed. BUSTER MOON, well up early, dropped back fast approaching the stretch while racing on the inside. LADY BUCK refused to break.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:13¼. Winner, W. F. Axton's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONKS STAR, $209.50, $108, $35.40; MYNAH, $6.60, $4.40; FOXY QUILLER, $5.70.

MONKS STAR forced the early pace, came to outside near the stretch, wore down MYNAH and drew out in the last furlong. MYNAH had speed from the start, made a determined effort to keep pace when challenged by the winner, but was not good enough. FOXY QUILLER, on the outside all the way, closed stoutly in the drive and wore down LEBAM right at the end. LEBAM went well placed from the start. SUSPICIOUS, under urging from the start, saved ground, but was unable to keep up when the real racing began. LERACK was going gamely at the end.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:45. Winner, Mrs. S. H. Fairbank's c. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLD BALDY, $3.40, $2.40, $2.40; SILVERDALE, $2.70, $2.60; STAROGAN, $4.80.

OLD BALDY moved up fast after leaving the back stretch, wore down STAROGAN and drew out with speed in reserve. SILVERDALE, shuffled back at the start, came to the outside in the stretch and closed with good speed, but was unable to threaten the winner. STAROGAN had keen early speed, but faltered through the stretch. PADDOCK went prominently placed all the way. ONEILL, outrun early, was going stoutly at the close. LARISSA tired.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good for all but Slay Boy. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:14½. Off at 4:20. Winner, J. W. Walter's (jr.) b. or br. g. (2), by Carlaris—Pandora Girl. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 2-5.

STAR MARIE	107	2	9	11^{1}	$11^{1½}$	12	12	Baker	52.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARLIE DAWN, $19.20, $7.80, $6.40; PROSECUTOR, $4.40, $3.30; LEALETTE, $9.90.

CHARLIE DAWN, away fast, dropped back in the opening quarter mile, moved up gradually, came to the outside nearing the stretch, wore down PROSECUTOR and was going away slowly at the finish. PROSECUTOR had good speed, was hard ridden in disposing of WAX, but was unable to withstand the closing bid of the winner. LEALETTE, slow to settle into her best stride, closed a big gap and was going strongly at the end. WAX faltered in the last quarter mile. MAD BULL was unable to keep pace after breaking fast. OUR NURSE, well placed early, faltered. SLAY BOY was away poorly and had scant chance.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Shawsheen Claiming Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:50. Winner, Mrs. E. McCuan's b. m. (5), by Sir Gallahad III—Omniad. Trained by E. McCuan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:05 3-5.

SOBIEHA	106	4	2	$4^{1¼}$	3^{nk}	3^{1}	$1^{¾}$	Hughes	$0.95

GOLD STEP	107	2	5	3^{nk}	$4^{2¼}$	4^{2}	5	King	7.65

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOBIEHA, $3.90, $2.70, $2.20; CUTIE FACE, $3.30, $2.40; CANTERSINE, $2.40.

SOBIEHA kept within striking distance of the leaders from the start while racing on the outside, closed stoutly in the stretch and was going away slowly all the last 70 yards. CUTIE FACE, under slight restraint while forcing the pace, held on Willingly through the stretch but was unable to keep pace with the winner. CANTERSINE had speed from the start, but weakened through the last three sixteenths. DE VALERA, outrun early, was going stoutly at the eend. GOLD STEP faltered after rounding the far turn.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17½. Winner, J. D. Mikel's ch. or ro. c. (3), by Sir Greysteel—Anquice. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third $50; fourth, $25.

KHAMSEEN	104	7	5	2^{2}	$2^{1¼}$	1^{1}	$1^{1½}$	1^{3}	King	$4.85

ZIPALONG	109	2	1	3^{2}	3^{nk}	$5^{1¼}$	7^{3}	$7^{1¼}$	Saunders	28.70
YAP	104	6	6	$6^{1¼}$	$7^{1¼}$	8	8	8	Baker	43.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHAMSEEN, $11.70, $5.10, $3.70; PAR VALUE, $3.70, $2.80; OLD JUDGE, $3.20.

KHAMSEEN forced the early pace, took command after leaving the back stretch and drew out easily for the remainder of the way. PAR VALUE had speed from the start and continued gamely when passed by the winner. OLD JUDGE, a trailer early, closed with a rush on the inside through the stretch. GLORITONE restrained early, closed with good energy in the drive. TAUNTON moved up stoutly on the back stretch, but weakened in the closing drive. ERECH, well placed, lost ground racing wide and dropped back in the last furlong. ZIPALONG tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:49½. Winner, C. C. Miller's br. g. (4), by General Thatcher—Susan Grover. Trained by A. F. Dayton. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:53 3-5.

THATCH	112	2	1	1^{1}	$3^{½}$	$2^{2¼}$	$1^{1½}$	1^{3}	Fels	$2.40

FAIR BILLY	112	3	3	4^{1}	$6^{1½}$	$6^{1¼}$	7^{20}	7^{20}	Rollins	43.10
DEVONSHIRE	107	7	8	8	8	8	8	8	Sage	59.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THATCH, $6.80, $3.60, $3; POLLY CEE, $3.40, $2.80; PLUCKY LADY, $4.30.

THATCH had speed from the start, was taken back approaching the half-mile turn, permitting POLLY CEE to make the running, moved up when called upon, easily assumed the command and drew out steadily. POLLY CEE, away slowly, was made much use of gaining a prominent position and though hloding well, weakened from her early efforts and was unable to keep pace when challenged. PLUCKY LADY raced well and had no excuses. LAWLESS LADY was never able to enter into serious contention. WIRT G. BOWMAN was always far back. DEVONSHIRE had no chance with the start.

Rainey's .433 Leads Interstate Batters

Cumberland, Md., July 19 (Spl.).

Latest batting averages of the Interstate League show Sam Rainey and Joe Buskey, of Potomac Edison, as the only regulars hitting above the .400 mark and members of the P. E. holding first place in all departments but base stealing.

Rainey, the league's leading clubber, is batting .433 in 60 times at the plate while Manager Joe Buskey holds the runner-up position with an average of .406.

The race for stolen base honors is a spirited one and is headed by George Walters, of the Eagles, who has pilfered 12.

Play Hooky Victorious In Arlington Feature

Arlington Park, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Play Hooky, owned by Charles Bacharach, of New Orleans, galloped to an easy six-length victory in the top race over a mile and an eighth at Arlington Park today.

Given a well-judged ride by Jockey W. D. Wright, Play Hooky moved up quickly on the early pacemaker, Mrs. John D. Hertz' Saint, and won as he pleased. The Brookmeade Stable's Sleuth was third, with C. V. Whitney's Elf Lock, even-money favorite, last in the four-horse race. Play Hooky paid $10.42.

Dear Al: Rockingham Park, July 19.

If Clocker Mike comes near the pressbox tomorrow afternoon I'm going to put a twitch in his nose. I doubt very much if he timed any horses at sunrise today. He showed up this afternoon with a sleepy look in his eyes, trousers baggy at the knees and the skin off the knuckles of his right hand. But he was toting a roll of bills. When he left the track tonight he still had a sleepy look in his eyes, his trousers weer still baggy and those bruised knuckles were still in evidence. But thata banka rolla was gone. In its place was a thick quarter of my hard-earned cash with which he was to buy a paddock stew. Mike was poison today. He squirmed all over the pressbox trying to get Secular out of a tangle at the start of the first. He yelled himself hoarse, in the second, mistaking Monk's Star, the winner, for Washout, which was running last. He went down to the paddock while the third was being run and I had the winner, Old Baldy. But he came back in time to jinx the rest of my picks. I'd like to trade that guy for a show ticket on the seventh race at Marlboro.

BILL.

First race—The Heathen draws only a steadying 112 pounds and the ancient one seems to have found a field that will bow to his sort of speed. Oral will have the capable Hughes in the saddle and may turn in a better race than last. Paper Profits for the other award.

Second race—Happy Scott is not as dependable these days as he was some time back but seems to have an edge over what this field offers. Macadam and Merry Chatter for the place and show.

Third race—Morning Mail and Candy Prince shape up best in this group of juveniles and it looks like a close fit. Enthusiasm to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Gaillardia, Mumsie and Vote is the way I prefer them in this. All three are fit and ready and are partial to the route.

Fifth race—Rock Point has been knocking at the door and is primed for the winning end of a purse. Clocker Mike has given his approval, if that means anything. Prince Tokalon is dangerous. Prince Abbot for the show.

Sixth race—Infilee is Clocker Mike's long shot special and I'm giving him a chance to do his stuff. Jim Ormont's last was a beaut and must be respected. Quick Step to make a money appearance.

Hook, Line and Sinker

Jean Monk.

TUESDAY morning the call of the wild got me. I jumped into the old bus and headed for the great open spaces. Presently I found myself 23 miles west of Falls Church, Va., and still going strong. But Goose Creek stopped me.

I was looking for bass. A big, new building stood by the side of the road—Goose Creek Tavern. I went in and soon found myself chatting neighborly with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Brown, comanagers of the place with H. H. Ball.

Goose Creek is the kind of place flaming youth term "sharp." Big, new, open; cool breezes sweeping through. Rooms, meals, beer, dancing. The ballroom accommodates 200 people.

And there are bass in that creek, all the way from the tavern to Hopkins Dam, almost a mile. Fine boating, canoeing. Dr. Charles B. Campbell, Washington dermatologist, does much casting thereabouts.

Back to the main road again, I rambled on through Leesburg, Purcellville, and over that great, big mountain at Bluemont. Coasted several miles down the west side of it to Castlemans Ferry, now a bridge, over the Shenandoah River.

Bass Caught at Ferry.

Men fishing. A youngster called S. R. Ashley, manager of the resort. He was fishing with a companion in a rowboat only a few yards offshore.

Ashley says fishing at Castlemans Ferry is better this season than it has been for nine years. Never a blank day. Bass are running from 1 to 2½ pounds. Catches average from one to eight a day per fisherman. Live bait, mad toms, is used. Casting is not productive and will not be until September, he told me.

From 100 to 300 Washingtonians visit this place every Sunday. Splendid bathing. Shallow water, clear as gin.

The most attractive place in this historic old town is Hill Top House, sitting 500 feet (almost straight up) above the Potomac. Its owner and manager is M. J. Croghan.

Picturesque Mansion.

Built of gray stone and concrete, this picturesque mansion breathes something of the beauty of East Aurora and Roycroft. One feels that the Fra himself or Ali Baba might breeze by any moment chanting, "Build your art horse-high, pig-tight and bull-strong." And the art of Harpers Ferry is best seen and appreciated from the lookout of this building.

Sixty-five rooms there are in it, a dining room that seats 200, verandas, grassy lawns, artistic touches, parking space. The Blue Ridge Mountains point a long, green finger down to the meeting place of the two rivers southward, the Alleghenies fade into lavender westward, and Maryland Heights rise 1,000 feet above Hill Top House just across the Potomac eastward.

Mr. Croghan asked me to remain for dinner. I did. Hot rolls, hot biscuits, tender chicken (as advertised), fresh vegetables. The gold shark tooth goes to him for that act.

For two seasons I have crammed this column with interviews of owners of lunchrooms, restaurants, rooming houses and hotels, I have been liberal with my descriptions of their places of business; and this was the first time such courtesy had been extended.

Too Many Licenses.

Fishing at Harpers Ferry is a nightmare. Three States, each requiring a license—$15 in all. "There was a time," Snapper Rhoderick will begin, then shake his head and stop. Too many laws, too many licenses, too many game wardens. Bass fishing is on the rocks at that place. The mythical goose that spawned their golden bass is dead.

The big rockfish are doing their stuff again at Piney Point. The moon fulls the 28th. From now until then the tides will rise higher and fall back lower every day, bring in many soft crabs on the flood and bouncing those crabs back again on the ebb.

This rapid movement of these delicacies causes a recation among the rockfish. To them the monthly carnival has come to town and everything is free. They will strike much better, which is nothing more than an effort to get their share while the harvest lasts, and you can't blame them for that. This happens every month when the moon fulls.

And there you have about all there is to this moon versus fishing subject in salt water. It isn't a question of moon; it is one of higher and lower tides plus a natural increase in food. In their effort to find a big, juicy plum (crab) they frequently grab the one that has your hook on it.

2 Outfielders Signed By Martinsburg Team

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Two players have been signed by the local Blue Sox in the team's quest for a general strengthening before league warfare is resumed next week-end.

The two are Carroll (Kayo) Shockey, former Martinsburg High athletic star, and Hartzell Ambrose, who has been identified with a number of local independent clubs. Both are outfielders.

Annual Rodeo Slated Tomorrow at Skytop

Skytop, Pa., July 19 (Spl.).—The annual Pocono Mountain Rodeo will be held in the Skytop Club riding circle at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

As in past years the Rodeo will be open to all riders in the Pocono region. The exhibition riding and classes are to be divided in two division; boys and girls under 14 years and all riders over 14.

Closing Fast, Royal Guard Triumphs

Captures Third Straight With Empire Victory; Carisbrooke 2d.

EMPIRE CITY RACE TRACK, July 19 (AP).—Two speedy and consistent platers, Mrs. Henry Ughetta's Royal Guard and B. L. Squires' Carisbrooke, started in the fourth race here today with winning streaks to protect, with the latter held at 4 to 5 and the former at 9 to 5. When it came to racing, Royal Guard left no doubt as to his superiority, the colt beating the favorite by two lengths, going away. Easy sailing was best of the others, finishing an easy third, five lengths behind. The time for the short 6 furlongs was 1:8 4-5.

Carisbrooke had three straight winning efforts behind her, while Royal Guard was recommended by two victories in a row. Carisbrooke, a filly, which inherited considerable of the speed possessed by her sire, Carlaris, began the race in her accustomed manner, stealing away on top and opening up an apparently safe advantage.

Advocate Junior and Easy Sailing gave closest pursuit until midway around the bend, wheer Charley Rosengarten got Royal Guard into his stride. The son of Light Brigate gained rapidly on the outside, and, collaring Carisbrooke after straightening out in the stretch, he moved away with ease. Curacao never was a real factor despite Coucci's efforts.

Culpeper Boosts Lead In League; Scores, 9-3

Culpeper, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Culpeper strengthened its hold on first place in the Valley League, and now has a two-game margin over Harrisonburg, by defeating New Market here this afternoon, 9 to 3. Walter Beall, pitching his seventh game for the locals this season, allowed five hits. Munden, for the visitors, allowed seven hits and issued six walks, while his team mates were charged with four errors.

Stocks Decline Seven-tenths As Sales Gain

Metals, Sugars, Aircrafts Weaken; Trading Rises to 614,100 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The stock market today continued to drag along the well known narrow path it has traveled in recent weeks. Weakness in metal, sugar and aircraft shares failed to bring out much liquidation in other sections of the list.

The market seemed content to restrict its expression of approval of prospective ending of the San Francisco general strike to the modest rally of the preceding session.

Drought conditions in farming areas, a break in cotton and absence of contructive trade news more than offset the relief felt in the financial community over latest strike developments.

Half of Gains Lost.

The downward drift cancelled about half the gains of the rally. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks was seven-tenths of a point lower at 77.4.

Volume of trading on the stock exchange increased to 614,100 shares, compared with 490,360 yesterday. Leading commodities, rather than stocks, still attracted most speculative interest.

Rumors of new disturbances in Germany influenced trading, especially in cotton, but failed to find confirmation in the news.

No clear-cut explanation for selling in metal shares was offered by brokers. Talk of British pound stabilization and the argument that rising commodity prices would weaken agitation for further lowering of the gold content of the dollar and increase mining costs were mentioned as possible factors.

U. S. Smelting Drops.

U. S. Smelting dropped nearly 5 points from a new 1934 peak at 141 established in early trading. It closed 3¼ points lower. Alaska Juneau, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and Howe Sound lost 1 to about 3 points.

On the other hand, shares of Homestake Mining, leading domestic gold producer, spurted 13⅛ points in thin trading. To a new top at 430⅛, the highest-priced active issue on the big board.

United Aircraft broke more than a point to a new low. New 1934 minimums also were set by Radio and Aviation Corporation. Losses of a point or two were recorded for such issues as American Sugar, Du Pont, J. I. Case, Coca Cola and Western Union, but most of the prominent issues moved narrowly.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Treasury Department Provides Excellent Table Summarizing Appropriations and Expenditures Under Emergency Program.

On the back of its statements for July 10 and July 11, the Treasury Department for the first time gives a summary table for the emergency side of the Federal budget. It shows the source of funds, total amount appropriated, amount spent in the last two fiscal years, and the amount still available for spending. It is, it seems to me, a record that no one can be without who attempts to talk about the spending program of the Administration. And the Treasury Department deserves most sincere commendation for making the figures public in such a manner. It is further evidence of the apparent constant attempt by those in charge of Treasury accounting to make the daily statement more useful.

Summarizing such a table is a difficult task, and at best must be something less than satisfactory. Nevertheless there are a few points worthy of attention. One is the fact that there are four main sources of funds for the emergency expenditures of the Government. The first is specific appropriations by Congress. To date these have amounted, in round figures, to $2,800,000,000. The large items in this have been $860,000,000 for the AAA, $558,000,000 for the FERA, $375,000,000 for the CWA, $273,000,000 for the Federal Land Banks, and $255,000,000 for public highways.

NIRA Is Large Source Of Emergency Expenditures.

The second great source of funds is the National industrial recovery act. The total made available under this is $3,300,000,000. Outstanding here are $490,000,000 for the CWA, $323,000,000 for CCC, $560,000,000 for loans and grants to States, cities, &c., $438,000,000 for public highways, and $740,000,000 unspecified.

Third is the emergency appropriations act of 1935, totaling $1,426,000,000. Of this $298,000,000 is for the CCC, $169,000,000 for the FERA, and $824,000,000 unallocated.

Finally is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the greatest of all. Specific allotments under it total the incredible sum of $5,958,000,000. In addition it is authorized to provide funds without limit for three purposes—buying preferred stock in commercial banks, enabling the Secretary of Agriculture to make payments to farmers, and carrying out the new housing program.

The grand total of all these appropriations amounts to $13,104,000,000—with nothing included, of course, for the three blank checks on the Treasury just mentioned.

RFC Has Been Largest Spender, Direct Relief Comes Second.

Of this huge sum, $6,543,000,000 actually was spent by the end of the last fiscal year, June 30. Heading the list of spenders is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It accounted for a net outlay (total less repayments) of $2,418,000,000. Next is the group of agencies extending direct relief. Their net outlay was $1,882,000,000. Then comes the group of agencies designed to help the farmer. They accounted for $1,107,000,000. Public works, including loans to States, cities, railroads, &c., used only $653,000,000. The home loan system took $230,000,000; the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $150,000,000.

As of July 1, this year, there still was available for spending under existing appropriations—and again leaving out the blank checks—some $6,600,000,000. In other words, we have left just about as much as we have spent.

The first half, obviously, has not given us prosperity. One can not help but wonder, therefore, upon what basis it is concluded that the second half will be more effective.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 86.8 Level

Trading Is Quiet as Sales Turnover Declines to $8,614,000.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The bond market was exceptionally quiet, but fairly steady today, most issues holding to a small fractional range.

Transfers totaled only $8,614,000, par value, against $11,184,000 yesterday. It was the smallest turnover since June 25, last. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans was again unchanged at 86.8.

While U. S. Government securities were as dull as the rest of the list, they managed to hold advances of 1-32d to 5-32ds of a point. Federal Farm 3¼s and Treasury 3⅛s made new highs for the year.

In Federal Section.

Followers of the Federal section were interested in reports from Washington that the Administration was studying refunding plans for September certificate maturities and was considering an exchange offer to the holders of the $1,200,000,000 of Liberty fourth 4¼s which have been called for redemption on October 15. No announcement, however, is expected before sometime next month.

Despite the slow trading, more new peak prices for 1934 or longer were recorded in the corporation division.

Among these were Gannett Co. 6s, up 1 at 99; General Steel Castings 5½s, up ¼ at 89¼; International Cement 5s, up 1 at 96; National Dairy 5¼s, up ¼ at 99⅞; Newark Consolidated Gas 5s, up ¼ at 111½; North American 5s, up 1⅛ at 91¾; Republic Steel 5½s and 5s, up 1 and 1¾ at 93 and 102½, respectively; Tobacco Products 6½s, up ½ to 107½; Union Pacific first 4s, up ¼ at 108¼, and Virginia Railway 5s up ¼ at 109½.

Losers of Fractions.

Losers of fractions to around a point included some bonds of Warner Brothers, Walworth Co., Utilities Power & Light, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Pere Marquette Paramount Publix, New Haven, Nickel Plate, Erie, Chicago & North Western, St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Ice, Baltimore & Ohio and Santa Fe.

There was little activity in the foreign division. Berlin issues were down 1 to 2 points, but the Dawes and Young plan loans steadied.

The former were off ⅛ and the latter up ⅜ of a point. Cuban obligations showed advances of 1 to around 3 points on limited transactions.

Curb's Prices Hold Strong; Sales Larger

Utilities and Oils Drop; Trading Mounts to 150,000 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Despite late mild selling in various parts of the curb exchange list, specialties continued to display strength today. Utilities and oils sold lower, while metals were generally unchanged.

Dealings were a bit more active on the reaction and transfers approximated 150,000 shares compared with 139,000 for the previous session.

Duke Power again dropped sharply, establishing a new low at 37½, off 8½ points. Glen Alden Coal yielded a point to profit taking after having edged a little higher at the start.

Gulf Oil, Bell Telephone of Canada and Cities Service preferred showed declines of around a point. Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Swift & Co., Standard Oil of Indiana and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams showed minor recessions.

Fajardo Sugar resumed its advance into new high ground with a 3-point advance to 105. Greyhound Corporation rose a major fraction in volume trading, while gains of around a point were recorded by Dow Chemical, Flintkote A and Technicolor.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Foreign exchange developed irregular fluctuations yesterday in terms of dollars.

The dollar declined 9-16 of a cent in London, to close at $5.04⅜ to the pound. Sterling gained ⅜ of a cent in New York, at $5.04⅜.

In Paris the dollar rose sharply, gaining 2 centimes at the equivalent of 6.59 cents to the franc. The latter dropped .00⅞ of a cent in New York, to 6.59⅛ cents. The weakness in francs was attributed to the current political disagreement in the French cabinet.

The price of gold in London declined 2 pence, to 137 shillings 10 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.72). Bars valued at $2,724,452 changed hands.

Silk Market.

Stocks—Prices continued to drag into lower ground. Metals, sugars and aircrafts weakened. Losses averaged seven-tenths of a point. Sales increased in volume to 614,100 shares.

Bonds—Exceptionally quiet trading left the market averages unchanged from the 86.8 level. Federal loans were as dull as the best on the list. Sales dropped to $8,614,000.

Curb—In spite of mild selling, curb prices continued to display strength. Oils and utilities weakened. Sales volume increased to 150,000 shares.

Cotton—Reaction set in after an early advance and the market closed down 11 to 15 points. Realizing and liquidation were blamed. July sold at 13.00; October, at 13.14.

Rubber—Crude rubber was higher and steady. July sold at 14.76; September, at 15.00.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.15. Refined sold at 4.75.

Dollar—The United States dollar was lower on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.04½ to the English pound; 6.59⅝ cents to the French franc, and 39.20 cents to the German mark.

Formula for Testing Banking Soundness by Statement Is Hit

By Anna P. Youngman.

B. M. Gile, of the University of Arkansas, and F. L. Garlock, of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, have made a most valuable comparative analysis of the published statements of 13 Arkansas banks that closed during the depression and 15 banks which remained open through 1932.

The period covered extends from the year 1918 to 1933. The investigators attempt to show which items in the published statements ought to be studied by depositors anxious to obtain a better knowledge of the relative soundness of their banks. They also weigh the merits of various relationships between the items in bank statements as a guide to the condition of a bank.

The most frequently used test of banking soundness—that is, the ratio of cash resources to deposits—proved to be the least dependable of the eight ratios considered. The best test of relative strength or weakness, on the basis of this limited case study, is the ratio between loans, other stocks and bonds, and real estate (minus capital funds) to deposits. That is, this ratio was uniformly much higher during the period of time covered by the investigation for closed banks than it was for banks that remained open. The next best test is the ratio of cash resources and net United States securities (minus borrowed money) to deposits. From 1931 this ratio was much lower for the closed banks that it was for the open ones.

Depositors and Statements.

As a result of their analysis, the authors conclude that during the pre-depression period most depositors might have been forewarned if they had understood how to interpret a bank statement of condition. Nevertheless, although the statistical proof of this conclusion is arresting, given the conditions then prevailing, it would be a serious mistake to assume that the same tests of banking condition apply generally and hold for different times and a radically changed economic situation. It would certainly be most unfortunate to confirm the public in a habit of testing banking soundness by the ratio of cash and United States Government security holdings to deposits.

It is noted in the Arkansas study that many bankers thought they were protecting their institutions when they purchased industrial, utility and railroad bonds during the twenties. They discovered their mistake too late. Similarly banks holding large amounts of Government securities may find that their belief in the extreme liquidity of these holdings is ill-founded.

If the Government continues to rely upon deficit financing to cover budget outlays, and the public debt mounts uninterruptedly, the possibility of depreciation of United States bonds has to be faced. According to authoritative estimates, about 60 per cent of the debt of the Federal Government is already lodged in bank portfolios. The Federal Reserve Board reports, too, indicate that, on June 30, all member banks had nearly one-third more assets in the form of securities than at the peak of the 1929 boom. Steadily diminishing demands from commercial borrowers, it was stated, had reduced this class of loans from nearly $12,000,000,000 to about $5,000,000,000. It is estimated that holdings of Government securities by member banks, on the other hand, have more than doubled, amounting to over $9,000,000,000 on June 30, compared with $4,155,000,000 at the end of June, 1929.

Liquidity and Soundness.

If liquidity is a synonym for soundness, it is evident that the banks of the United States are becoming increasingly unsound in the sense of having acquired immense holdings of Government securities which can not be disposed of in any great amount, however liquid they may be when there is no concerted pressure to sell.

If the public were encouraged to apply generally the tests that proved most reliable for the Arkansas banks, the tendency would be to look askance at banks with a large proportion of commercial loans and nongovernmental securities and to favor those with a high proportion of Government issues. Since conservative bankers are already viewing with alarm the recessions in the volume of self-liquidating commercial loans and the increases in holdings of public securities, it is evident that ratio tests which seem good for individual banks may be a very misleading index to the condition of the banking system taken as a whole.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Anthracite—An increase of 25 cents a ton has been announced by producers, effective August 1. Another seasonal advance of the same amount will become effective September 1, it is said in the trade.

Tea—Importers report a quiet trade with distributors adhering to their policy of buying for immediate needs only.

Lead—Current demand is fairly active and some trade quarters expect an upward revision in prices soon if consumers continue to take metal in the present volume.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A cheerful tone prevailed on the stock exchange today. The moderate revival of speculation improved gold-mining shares, rubber and transatlantic issues, while investment buying caused firmness in gilt-edged securities and industrials. Home rails and German bonds were easy. The market closed quietly steady.

Paris—Rentes dropped sharply today on the bourse, traders fearing the opening of a political crisis because of former Premier Tardieu's charges against former Premier Chautemps in connection with the Bayonne pawnshop scandal. Losses in rentes ranged from 1½ to 2 francs, while the remainder of the market was inactive. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—With business more lively, quotations on the boerse recovered somewhat today, especially mining shares. The loan market, however, was neglected. Prices were generally sustained at the close.

Bank of England.

London, July 19 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 761,000; circulation decreased 737,000; bullion increased 24,000; other securities increased 1,157,000; public deposits increased 3,211,000; other deposits decreased 773,000; notes reserve increased 794,000; government securities increased 540,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 44.53 per cent, compared with 44.74 last week.

Rate of discount, 2 per cent.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Gray cotton goods were firm today with trading light. Printed percales were advanced ¼ cent and 36-inch flannels were held at ½ cent a yard higher. Dress goods of sports wear types were in demand. Fancy fabrics for men's wear were very scarce for spot delivery. Rayon weavers planned a trade promotion and did not join the silk code committee in favoring a 40-hour single shift week. Burlaps were very quiet. Silk goods for converting were in better call.

Wool Markets.

Boston, July 19 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—A little interest was shown by manufacturers in combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood territory wool. Prices talked were 70@75 scoured basis for a fairly good strictly combing staple of this grade, and small quantities were reported to have been sold within this range. The bulk of the strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood territory wool, however, was being quoted at 80@82 scoured basis.

Municipalities Struggle Out Of Debt Bogs

Adjustment Acts and Laws on Bankruptcy Aid; Bond Values Assist.

By W. R. Huff.

New York, July 19 (AP).—General improvement in bond values is combining, in the opinion of New York bankers, with State receivership and debt-adjustment acts and the recently passed Federal municipal bankruptcy law, to enable many local governments to struggle out of the bog of excessive indebtedness.

The credit of innumerable towns and cities, counties and school districts and other civil taxing units has been greatly aided in the past few months by the upward surge of bond prices.

The existence of tremendous idle reserves in the hands of banks, furthermore, insures the continuance of a good market for sound issues, bankers say.

Issues Well Received.

In the absence of new corporate financing, recent municipal issues have been well received for investment purposes. The rising prices of outstanding issues have paved the road for refunding and adjustment of debts which would not have been possible a year ago.

The actions of States in assisting their towns and counties with their debt problems, such as the creation of the New Jersey Municipal Finance Commission, has helped point the way out. Properties are being reassessed, services curtailed, expenses reduced and refunding supervised in many sections of the country. The new Federal legislation, it is said, will enable defaulting municipalities to escape their predicament.

Most of these steps are of a temporary or emergency nature, however. Some bankers express the hope, therefore, that permanent measures will be taken to prevent a repetition of the excessive debt inflation of the last 10 or 20 years.

Debts of Governments.

The gross debt, less sinking fund assets, of all local governing units in 1932 is estimated by the New York Trust Co.'s index at $15,222,898,000. This compared with $7,754,196,000 in 1922 and with $3,475,954,000 in 1912.

Florida, with a rise of 2,779 per cent in the total debt of its subdivisions in the 20-year period, showed the largest expansion. North Carolina and Michigan also increased their obligations by more than 1,250 per cent each, while Illinois, Iowa, New Jersey, Arizona, Arkansas, California, South Carolina, Texas and Wyoming all had gains of more than 500 per cent.

Florida is also the leading State in number of defaults, among its subdivisions reporting 328 as of March 1, 1934. North Carolina had 279; Louisiana, 259; Ohio, 140; New Jersey, 130; Texas, 111, and California, 104. New York State had only 3, while seven States had no defaulting districts.

The fact that many of those States which showed the largest gains in their municipal debts also have the most defaults is taken as striking proof, in banking circles, of the thesis that unreasonable expansion has been the chief cause of inability to meet interest at the present time.

Brazil Coffee Destruction Cut to 305,000 Bags

New York, July 19.—Coffee destruction during the first half of July totaled 305,000 bags, against 702,000 during the last half of June, according to advices to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. Since June, 1931, Brazil has destroyed 29,446,000 bags, or more than one year's consumption for the entire world.

The sharp decline from the 1,104,000-bag total in May and the 1,227,000 total in June reflects the improved statistical picture in Brazil. Faced with an estimated 1934-35 crop of 14,102,000 bags, Brazil feels that it can now let down somewhat in its destruction program.

Wheat Futures Driven Above Dollar Mark

Reports of Drought Loss Cause Grain Prices to Mount.

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—Prompted by startling reports of widespread drought damage, all wheat futures soared above the $1-a-bushel mark today. Simultaneuosly, corn and rye both overtopped the season's high price record.

Maximum new upturns of about 2 cents were attained by wheat and other grains, but active selling to realize profits led to material reactions from the day's high points. The apex for wheat today was shown to be up nearly 16 cents in the last 10 days.

A feature was trade forecasts current that notwithstanding shortage of domestic wheat production, Southwest feeding of wheat to live stock this season would be the largest known in 30 years.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm, ⅞ to 1¼ above yesterday's finish; corn, ¼ to 1⅛ up; oats, unchanged to ¼ advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

The fact that Liverpool and Rotterdam wheat markets were much stronger than expected gave added impetus to the upward trend of prices in Chicago, Liverpool showing a net gain of 2¼ cents today and Rotterdam 3¼ cents. Radical curtailment of French wheat crop estimates were an evident contributing stimulus.

Chicago traders devoted greater attention, however, to reports indicating drought and heat were taking increased heavy toll from spring wheat crops Northwest both sides of the international border.

Canadian Wheat News.

Canadian wheat advices bordered on the sensational, and were taken here as significant that the crop was retrogressing rapidly in many sections. One report said that between Calgary and Medicine Hat, Alberta, 190 miles, there were now numerous drought-damaged spots which ten days ago had been in good shape, and that in some parts of east central Alberta wheat was being cut for hay. Suggestions were heard that feeding of domestic wheat to live stock Southwest would wipe out all existing surplus by next July.

Corn and oats reflected wheat strength, together with advices that crop damage to corn was extending into new territory, Iowa in particular.

Provisions were responsive chiefly to grain market upturns.

Loans to Brokers Drop $28,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended July 18 were announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board as $1,031,000,000, representing a decrease of $28,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

The loans for the week ended July 19, 1933, were $967,000,000.

The detailed distribution of the loans over the three weeks dealt with in the Reserve Board report were:

Acacia Mutual Extends Office; AwaitsBuilding

Entire Structure Leased Pending Erection of New Permanent Home.

Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. has assembled a third portion of its temporary office space pending erection of its next permanent home at New Jersey and Louisiana avenues, First, C and D streets northwest.

The company has rented an entire building at 118 E street northwest, containing 11,000 square feet of floor space, as a temporary office for its cashier department. The lease was executed through the office of Waggaman-Brawner Realty Corporation.

When the life insurance company sold its original home office building at 101 Indiana avenue northwest to the Home Owners Loan Corporation in June, it began to seek temporary office space throughout the city for its executive staff and personnel pending completion of its next building.

Its first selection of temporary space was the five-story and basement office structure at 1437 K street northwest, long vacant and former headquarters of the Wardman construction and real estate activities. This lease was negotiated by H. L. Rust Co. and gives the insurance company approximately 15,000 square feet of floor space.

Its second installment of temporary office space was provided recently by the lease of two floors, the second and fourth, in the City Club Building, at 1312-1320 G street northwest. This lease, also handled by H. L. Rust Co., gives the insurance company approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space.

Greece Arranges Interest Payments

New York, July 19.—Speyer & Co., as fiscal agents for the Greek government 40-year 7 per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds, refugee loan of 1924, and Speyer & Co. and the National City Bank of New York, as fiscal agents for the Greek government 40-year 6 per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds, stabilization and refugee loan of 1928, announce that, in accordance with the agreement between the Greek government and the league loans committtee (London), the announcement concerning which was published on November 17, last, they have received funds sufficient to pay 27½ per cent of the annual interest on the above-mentioned issues falling due in the Greek fiscal year ended March 31, 1934, and 35 per cent of the interest required for the May 1, 1934, coupon of the 7 per cent loan and the August 1, 1934, coupon of the 6 per cent loan.

Such payments will be made at the offices of the fiscal agents upon presentation of the coupons, accompanied by a letter of transmittal.

The coupons will be stamped with the dollar amounts paid and will be returned to the bondholders who should reattach the same to their bonds.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 19 (AP).—Preliminary reports indicate that bookings and shipments of structural steel in June were more than they were in May but slightly less than the record bookings in April, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction. June bookings were 44 per cent larger than the average monthly bookings in the last quarter of 1933 and 13 per cent larger than in the same month last year, the institute indicated.

Lake Superior ores consumed by furnaces in June totaled 2,721,449 tons, compared with 2,957,934 in May and 1,894,004 in June, 1933. Ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie ports at the end of June amounted to 27,042,854 tons, compared with 27,479,090 tons on the same date a year ago. There were 30 furnaces in blast on June 30, a decrease of 24 from the previous month.

Stewart-Warner Corporation consolidated sales for the June quarter were $5,180,718, compared with $4,041,722 in the previous quarter and $2,480,572 in the June quarter last year. For the first half sales totaled $9,222,434, against $3,979,164 in the corresponding period last year.

The award of the Grand Coulee Dam in Washington combined with the third highest week of this year in private work, says the Engineering-News Record, makes a total of $56,276,000 in engineering awards for the week. This tops all records for the two preceding years, according to the publication.

The Associated Oil Co., it was announced today, will retire outstanding funding debt amounting to $3,482,000 of an original issue of $24,000,000 of 12-year 6 per cent gold notes at 102½ and interest.

Consumption Of Electricity Holds Steady

Volume Used Nearly at May Level; Advances Balance Losses.

New York, July 19. — Electric energy consumption in June in a group of 3,800 large plants in 12 broad lines of manufacturing scattered throughout the country, which are surveyed each month by Electrical World, was on nearly the same scale as in May, that paper will report in its final issue on July 21 (Saturday). "Moderate recessions in certain lines of industry," the report continues, "are nearly balanced by gains in others.

"A decline of 3 per cent is shown in the weighted average compared with the revised figure for May. The total energy consumption in June by the plants surveyed is one and a third billion kilowatt hours.

"Last year at this season manufacturing operations were rapidly speeding up, the gain in June over May being nearly 13 per cent. Following a sag during the fall and winter, this year's operations have for several months been oscillating around a new level about 5 per cent under the July peak and 13 per cent above the minimum of last December. The result has been to cut the excess over 1933 to 3 per cent, compared with 19 per cent in May.

Iron and Steel Activity.

"Activity in iron and steel is higher than in any previous month of the year except May and the recession from that month is small. The gain over the rate of operations a year ago amounts to 23 per cent. The same statements apply to the metal-working industry, which consists mainly in the manufacture of machinery.

"Two others in the durable goods group, namely, forest products and the stone-clay-glass industries, had previously made considerable progress and are now approximately at the level attained a year ago.

"In food products the usual seasonal rise has been in progress, but on a somewhat lower level than a year ago, the difference in June being 7 per cent, while in the chemical industries, including oil refining, energy consumption has for several months been approximately constant and materially larger than in 1933. In automobiles and textiles the past two months show a decline, but the former stands with a net gain of 30 per cent over last year, against a net loss of 22 per cent in textiles.

Durable Goods Gains.

"The very definite gains in connection with the manufacture of durable goods are important. It was in this field that the decline was most pronounced, and it is here that renewed activity is regarded as most essential to general recovery. As to the figures on the chemical industry, it is to be noted that on the basis of energy used by the reporting companies this group is on a higher level than in any previous year covered by this series of statistics.

"In New England activity in the textile industry decreased in May and again in June, the present rate being 22 per cent less than in June of 1933, but slightly greater than in May of that year.

"Iron and steel receding from the preceding month, is on a par with April and with June, 1933, but in metal working there is a year's gain of 9 per cent. Both industries have approximately doubled their use of energy, compared with the low point in 1932. The regional average dropped 6 per cent from May and is below June, 1933, by the same amount.

Middle Atlantic States.

"In the Middle Atlantic States most of the changes were negligible. Leather gained, automobiles and stone lost, the average remained unchanged and almost identical with that attained a year ago. With a number of important returns still missing, some of the figures are subject to revision. The North Central average shows a year's gain of 10 per cent, notwithstanding the sharp advance at this time last year. Recessions are indicated in the metal industries, leather products, stone, and, to a less degree, in automobile, with an increase in textiles.

"Labor troubles are reflected in a severe decrease in energy consumption by textile mills in the South, but the loss was in part compensated by an advance of 19 per cent in the stone, clay and glass industries. The regional average is the same as in April, and down 3 per cent from last year.

"In the West the only important change was in forest products, which declined 8 per cent. Smaller changes in other industries, in part counteracted by a further rise in metals, caused a decrease of 3 per cent in the general average, leaving a gain of the same magnitude over last year's June."

Cotton Prices Pushed Lower In Realizing

July Sells at 13.00 as General Market Drops 11 to 15 Points.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Sharp reactions from an early advance in cotton today under realizing and liquidation, accompanied by a talk of a weakened technical position and unconfirmed rumors of unfavorable developments in Germany, was followed by partial recoveries. October contracts, after selling off from 13.35 to 12.95, or about $2 per bale from the high price of the morning, closed at 13.14, with the general market steady at net losses of 11 to 15 points.

There was considerable realizing and a little Southern selling at the opening, but offerings were absorbed and the market stiffened up during the early trading on buying which seemed to be coming largely through spot house brokers.

This was supplemented by covering and a scattering commission house demand which carried the active months about 4 to 10 points net higher during the early trading.

Realizing continued, however, and while the market steadied up a few points on the detailed weather reports, prices soon broke again under liquidating.

Stop orders were uncovered on the decline, which sent prices off about 40 points from the early highs and 30 to 33 points net lower, but, after their execution, the market steadied up again on further trade buying and covering. Closing quotations showed rallies of some 17 to 18 points from the lowest.

Reports that it looked more like rain along the Texas Coast were considered a contributing factor in some of the early selling, but nothing was heard of any actual rain in that section. The official forecast was for generally fair to partly cloudy weather in Texas, except for unsettled weather near the East Coast. Exports today, 12,893, making 7,572,786 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,294. United States port stocks, 2,468,487.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm and active early today on further covering and commission house buying, promoted by the advance in tallow and greases and the strength of cotton and crude oil, but after showing advances of 9 to 17 points offerings increased and reactions followed. Final prices were 4 to 6 points net higher. Sales 118 contracts.

Bituminous Coal Yield Is 6,540,000 Tons

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car-loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended July 14 as approximately 6,540,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week, 1933, 6,965,000 tons; 1932, 4,210,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,275,000 tons for the week ended June 30, and 5,118,000 for the week ended July 7, 1934. Production calendar year to July 14, 1934, *194,062,000 tons; 1933, 158,552,000 tons.

Exchange Officials Await Investigation of Margins

New York, July 19 (AP).—Officials of the New York Stock Exchange have as yet received no indication from the Federal Reserve Board as to when they will complete investigation into the subject of margins, it was learned today.

The Federal Reserve Board, it was indicated, is making an exhaustive effort to secure information from all parts of the United States through the various exchanges on the subject of margins.

Revival Expected In Retail Trade

New York, July 19.—Store executives are openly pleased with the public response to summer offerings, for retail trade is generally well ahead of a year ago, says the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, currently.

The explanation apparently is that merchandise in consumers hands is rapidly losing its utility as a result of the early and unusual persistent hot weather.

Normal seasonal sales declines are therefore being relieved somewhat by replacement of such goods, which is taking the form very largely of early purchases of fall lines. This tendency has been shown thus far principally in the lower price field, but should soon extend to higher quality lines. A fall buying movement of substantial proportions in indicated, early appearance of which will assist retailers in maintaining favorable sales comparisons with a year ago.

New Zealand Improves Export Trade Balance

Wellington, New Zealand, July 19 (AP).—New Zealand almost doubled her favorable trade balance in the 12 months ended June 30, it was shown in figures published today. The excess of exports over imports amounted to $90,000,000, compared with $48,000,000 in the previous year and $40,000,00 in 1931-32.

Exports in the past 12 months reached the highest figure in the last five years, a total of $196,564,000, while imports were $106,812,000.

Porcupine Mines Prosper.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Net profit of McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd., in the second quarter totaled $951,734 after charges, equal to $1.19 a share on the capital stock. This compares with $800,468 or $1 a share in the June quarter of the previous year.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Three Million Higher

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended July 18, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,471,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $275,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On July 18 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,460,000,000, a decrease of $8,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $16,000,000 in money in circulation, $60,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $3,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and an increase of $16,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by an increase of $85,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and a decrease of $2,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency.

There was practically no change during the week in the system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market and United States bonds. An increase of $25,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by a decrease of a like amount in holdings of Treasury certificates and bills.

Changes in the amount of Reserve Bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended July 18, 1934, were as follows:

SUGAR—Raw was quiet early today and no sales were reported, although it developed that late yesterday an outport refiner bought 100,000 bags of Cuban for shipment over the next two or three months at a price to be fixed on the date of arrival. Refiners were said to be interested at 3.15 for duty frees in suitable positions, but these were generally held at slightly higher levels, while 3.17 would have been paid for Cubas, which prices were unchanged from the last sales, but for these 3.20 was asked.

No changes occurred in the refined market with all refiners listing at 4.75 for fine granulated, but resale sugars available at 5 points less. Demand was light, but withdrawals against old contracts were of fair proportions.

COFFEE—Spot, steady; Rio No. 7, 9; Santos No. 4, 10½.

Radio Waves and Ripples

Maj. Ernest W. Brown's local traffic clean-up campaign will have its counterpart today in New York when Traffic Officer James F. Dixon, New York City Police Department, faces an N. B. C. mike with two schoolboys to give them lessons in traffic safety. His talk will be heard over the networks at 4:30 p. m.

AUDITIONING a seething mob of mike-struck young women for the part of a hat-check girl in Columbia's forthcoming "Hollywood Hotel" has definitely got radio Station WJSV by the ears.

Ordinarily the local C. B. S. lads and lassies are quite sane . . . but listening to the frightened voices of a bunch of applicants who never should have tried out in the first place, has cast an eerie pall of gloom over them all.

If some one had given the girls sound advice before coming to the studio much confusion and heartache would have been avoided. But the jig isn't up yet. Dick Powell, who is to play the lead in "Hollywood Hotel," after fighting off a severe case of conscience, wrote out some timely advice for the girl contestants. And it's sound as store teeth, girls!

"The girl who wins the auditions," says Dick, "will have to be able to sing popular songs and do an acceptable job of acting before the microphone—that is, she will have to do all her acting vocally.

"I imagine that the girl who wins the local auditions at each of the 86 Columbia stations," he continues, "will be the one who gets up before the mike and sings with perfect naturalness. She won't try to put on any airs. She won't use any affectations of voice. She won't try any vocal stunts. She will remember that if she wins she will be playing the part of a hat-check girl in a big hotel, a typical, wisecracking, healthy American girl.

"Imagine such a girl in real life. If she happens to be singing at her work, do you think she will strain her vocal chords to reach some spectacular closing note that isn't even written into the song that she is singing? Do you think she will adopt a pronunciation and accent completely at variance with that of her normal speaking voice? No? Neither do I. Well, the girl who plays the part in 'Hollywood Hotel' will have to create the illusion of real life. She will best be able to do that, especially in her singing, if she remains just her own natural self."

SEVERAL of the girls we watched during WJSV's auditions last week adopted a "wise attitude" after they had finished singing. They thought they had made a killing with the judges. This is bad, very bad. Powell sensed this, too.

"I think there is a great possible danger to the ambitions of the girl who wins the local contest and goes on to the regional audition," he says. "She may become overconfident. She may forget for the moment that it was the naturalness of her singing that won for her in the local audition. In the excitement she may tend to assume a pose that is just a trifle affected. If she does, her chances fade out completely.

Out of the local auditions, which definitely end tomorrow at 6 p. m., it is not unreasonable to suppose that at least one Washington girl will be sent to the regional contests, which will, in turn, lead to New York for the finals. Please note that WJSV will handle the regional contest for this district starting August 8.

"Incidentally," finishes Powell, "the winner of the final audition will probably be a girl who has had plenty of sleep the night before she is given her test, and who, on the day of the audition, has sung just enough to loosen her vocal chords and assure the smoothness of her voice before she steps to the microphone."

Your Announcer Is . . .

ROBERT "BOB" TROUT: This tall, lanky son of North Carolina nearly starved himself writing pulp fiction in Greenwich Village before he landed in Washington ot become the C. B. S. Presidential announcer. Bob has tried his hand at nearly everything from slinging hash to riding the rods . . . he has even combed a few beaches (rarely his tousled black hair), poked into out-of-the-way corners of the globe on a tramp steamer and driven a hack. He has an easy, lackadaisical microphone manner, but few equal him in catching essentials during broadcasts of large hearings or outdoor events. Delights in subtle ad-libbing. Is open, friendly, genial and easy-going. Though over 6 feet tall, he weighs only 150 pounds. Luminous, brown eyes and jib-boom nose, is married. Takes boxing lessons. Smokes unsavory corn cob pipe and spends spare time writing fiction. Secret love: Sports announcing. Bob leaves here July 26 to join the President at Portland, Oreg., from whence he will present to C. B. S. networks the remainder of the Presidential trip.

RAPTUROUS maidens will journey far to view the heaving chest and Adonis profile of Henry Nestor, whom the gods have blessed with a soothing barytone voice.

Nestor, who directs traffic for Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of the District police, at New York avenue and Fourteenth street, has been heard as the "Singing Cop" over N. B. C. stations here.

Late yesterday the major announced that Traffic Director Nestor has been awarded the coveted post of "wayward pedestrian-catcher" so that he may ride as the "Voice of Conscience" in that fearsome white traffic car which will lie in wait for rule breakers here on or about Wednesday, July 25.

The voice that will boom at cars that tear through traffic lights has trilled opera bits with the Washington Civic Opera Company and chided patrons in a master of ceremonies way at a local hotel.

We predict a traffic jam de luxe when Nestor lets loose at violators next week. Some of his brother patrolmen will learn that untangling traffic is nothing compared with quelling women with a barytone complex.

Fight on Hayes Will Goes to N. Y.

Former Priest Resident There, Contestants Hold.

Norfolk, Va., July 19 (AP).—Contestants of the will of William R. Hayes, former Catholic priest, today shifted their attack from Virginia to New York courts.

Appearing before Judge B. D. White, before whom the appeal from probate of the Hayes will was to have been heard in the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County, James E. Heath, as counsel for the contestants, withdrew his appeal upon the ground that the testator was a resident of New York and that Virginia courts have no jurisdiction. The estate includes property at Virginia Beach, where the former priest spent some time.

The motion was contested by W. L. Parker, counsel for Mrs. Adelaide M. Hayes, the widow, who was left all save $2 of the $51,000 estate. Mr. Parker contended that once the fight had been started in Virginia courts the contestants had no right to shift the attack.

Clarksburg to Appeal For Reopening of Plant

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Clarksburg business men and employes of the Weirton Steel Co. will hold a public meeting tomorrow night to demand the reopening of the local steel plant, which has been shut down several weeks.

C. C. Grimmett, president of the chamber of commerce, and others are enlisted in the movement, including a number of nonunion employes.

New Hagerstown Postoffice Planned

Architects Instructed to Prepare Blueprints.

Hagerstown, Md., July 19 (Spl.). An indication that work on Hagerstown's new postoffice will get under way shortly was given today by receipt of word by the Chamber of Commerce, stating architects had been instructed by the Assistant Director of Public Works of the Treasury Department to prepare working plans immediately.

The architects were engaged last year to prepare plans, but due to the lack of an appropriation the start of work on the building, for which a site already has been purchased for $117,000, was delayed.

Recently the Treasury Department announced that the Hagerstown postoffice was among a group of public works projects scheduled to get under way this year.

An original appropriation of $300,000 was made for the purchase of a site and erection of the building.

Stone Mountain Area Approved as Reserve

Norton, Va., July 19 (AP).—W. E. Hedges, a representative of the United States Forestry Service, announced here today that a tract of 100,000 acres on Stone Mountain, between Dungannon, on the Clinch River, and Dryden, on the eastern edge of Lee County, had been approved by the service as a forest reserve.

Hedges will offer owners of the land Government contracts, the Government to develop the land and make it available for hunting, fishing, camping and other recreational purposes.

War Widows Fail To Seek Pensions

May Not Know of New Law, Clerk Says.

Richmond, July 19 (AP).—John F. Johnson, chief pension clerk, said today that he believed Confederate widows of Virginia did not know the effect of a law passed at the last session of the General Assembly. Only 125 widows, he said, have applied for pensions under the new law.

The law makes eligible any woman who married a former Confederate soldier or sailor prior to December 31, 1920.

Virginia District Relief Needs Drop

Staunton, Va., July 19 (Spl.). Relief lists in the Seventh Virginia District of the FERA show a recent decrease of about 40 per cent, according to Miss Harriet Tynes, district emergency relief supervisor.

The Augusta County emergency relief committee reports that there are more relief gardens this year than in 1933 and that the needy are depending more on their own productive efforts.

Referring to criticism that some unemployed persons would rather accept "doles" from relief agencies than go to work when work is offered, Miss Elisabeth W. Brooke, superintendent of relief and welfare agencies in Staunton and Augusta Counties, asserts that she has searched for examples of refusals to accept work, but has found only one.

Mattress Factories For Needy Urged

Cumberland, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Plans to establish several small mattress factories were discussed yesterday at the meeting of the Alleghany County Welfare Board.

Cotton and ticking will be sent here by the FERA and it is planned to place men and women employed by the FERA at work making mattresses and pillows.

The mattresses and pillows will be given needy families and will be paid for by the work of the persons on relief. About 1,300 mattresses will be made. Many families on the relief rolls are now sleeping on the floors and some have no beds.

Pony Rodeo Opens At Chincoteague

Chincoteague, Va., July 19 (Spl.). The tenth annual carnival of the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company opened here yesterday and will continue through July 28.

A pony rodeo is scheduled, with prizes for champion riders.

The Sixth District, U. S. Coast Guard, will sponsor a water demonstration Thursday. A self-bailing surf boat race and a 1-mile racepoint boat race between the upper and lower ends of the district, will be features. A beach appartus drill will demonstrate methods of rescuing persons from stranded ships. Silver loving cups will be awarded winners.

Relief Gardeners To Can Produce

Staunton, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Subsistence gardeners in Augusta County are preparing to "dig in" for the coming winter with plenty of canned goods.

With seed provided by the relief administration, about 700 gardens are being worker by persons on relief rolls or otherwise not entirely self-supporting.

Now comes the news that 2,448 glass jars will be needed by the gardeners to preserve their products. About 4,000 new tops and 8,000 new jar rubbers are needed.

West Virginia Prison Fugitive Is Captured

Fairmont, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.). Sought two years by police following his escape from the State Penitentiary at Moundsville, Moly Colonovich, 40, was today arrested at the home of his brother, Dan Colonovich, in Farmington.

The brother and George Kitis, 16, were also arrested, charged with theft of an automobile, in which the trio had driven from Uniontown, Pa.

FERA Work Scheduled At Danville Reduced

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.). Howard Hylton, local FERA projects officer, today announced curtailed schedules for 450 workers here, owing to a reduction in the State allowance from $16,000 to $12,500.

Instead of working eight hours three days a week, the workers will be employed only six hours.

Bishop Addresses Rotarians.

Thomas Moore, Civil War Veteran, Is Dead

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—With the death of Thomas W. Moore, 87, today the ranks of local Confederate veterans were thinned to five. Moore died from infirmities after being active in perpetuating the memories of the Confederacy for many years. He was born in North Carolina and leaves a widow.

The local roster now shows only Mayor Harry Wooding, J. J. Flippen, George Coleman, John Lee and Armistead Moore.

'Dead' Bridegroom On Duty as Sailor

Norfolk, Va., July 19 (AP).—Robert L. Sanford, 20-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., high school graduate, whose death was reported mysteriously the first of this week, today was doing his first day of duty as a bluejacket recruit.

Sanford's bride of three months said Sunday at Bradenton, Fla., she had received a telegram from her mother-in-law, Mrs. Edna A. Sanford saying "Bob was killed Thursday" and that details would arrive by letter in about 10 days. After the wire, young Mrs. Sanford said she could not reach her husband's relatives.

The youth enlisted yesterday in Buffalo and was shipped immediately to the Norfolk Naval Training Station.

Frostburg Officer Honored by Band

Frostburg, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—One hundred and fifty guests, including the Arion Band, attended a surprise party for City Commissioner Conrad Kroll at his home last night.

The affair celebrated Mr. Kroll's sixtieth birthday anniversary and serenaded his son, William, and his bride, who were married June 30. The celebration was attended by the mayor and city commissioners and members of the city administration.

Mr. Kroll, president of the Arion Band, has been a member of the organization for 40 years. He is responsible for the musical training of a number of local people.

Boy Scouts Named Camp Assistants

Waynesboro, Pa., July 19 (Spl.). Boys who will act as assistants in the Boy Scout Camp at Mickey's Inn, near Scotland, north of here, were selected yesterday by the scoutmaster, Irving Stoner, of Waynesboro.

2 Boys Save Girl From Drowning

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Catherine Severs, about 14, was rescued from drowning yesterday at a suburban party by Junior Hess, a Boy Scout, and Kendall Fangmeyer.

The girl went beyond her depth and had gone down several times before it was realized she was drowning. Young Hess struck for where she had disappeared and pulled her to the surface. Young Fangmeyer took the girl from Hess and towed her ashore.

Mayor at Crisfield Reappoints Officials

Crisfield, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Mayor William H. Bradshaw has reappointed city employes for the coming year.

William Laird will continue as chief of police, and Frank Nelson and Walter Nelson as night officers. Milton Stevenson is again in charge of waterworks; Isaac Powell, superintendent of water mains, and George Davis, tender at Jersey Bridge.

Youth Gets 3 Years In Death of Teacher

Hinton, W. Va., July 19 (U.P.). Melvin Bennett, 19, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary in Circuit Court today after he pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

Bennett fatally injured A. H. McClung, a school teacher, in a fist fight two months ago. The quarrel was the aftermath of a whipping given Bennett by McClung in his schoolroom.

Rites Given Danville Man.

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held yesterday for W. M. Turner, former Danville man, who died suddenly Monday night while visiting his sister in Henry County. Interment was made here.

Extradition Asked Of Murder Suspect

Virginia Hopes to Get Man Held in Baltimore.

Richmond, July 19 (Spl.).—Requisition papers for Walter Legenza, alias William Davis, and Robert Mais, wanted on charges of slaying E. M. Huband, Federal Reserve mail truck driver, were approved today by the Governor's office here and forwarded to Baltimore, where the men are being held.

It is not known whether Maryland authorities will allow the men's uncontested return, as they are charged with other crimes in that State. Neither have police received information as to when Mais, in a hospital with gunshot wounds, will be in condition to be brought back.

Huband was shot in a holdup near the Broad Street Station in March. Named also in the indictment charging Mais and Legenza are George Kauffman, William Benjamin Phillips and Arthur Misanas. The first two were slain in a Washington gun battle in April. Misanas is still at large.

Culpeper Legion Installs Officers

Culpeper, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—Col. Hugh Craig, of Montpelier, commander of the American Legion of the eighth district and vice commander of the State organization, presided tonight at installation of officers of Culpeper Post, No. 44.

Officers are E. W. Morrisette, commander; P. S. Yancey and Dr. Granville Eastham, first and second vice commanders; Frank P. Maquire, adjutant; Winfrey G. White, finance officer; the Rev. Thomas W. Hooper, chaplain; Fred C. Thurston, historian, and I. Frank Brown, sergeant at arms.

The auxiliary this week elected Mrs. Granville Eastham president, Mrs. Haywood Tanner and Mrs. Ellis Gilmore, vice presidents; Mrs. Jesse Yowell, secretary; Mrs. C. D. Rue, terasurer, and Mrs. C. M. Clement, historian.

Mrs. Eastham and Miss Lucy Kelly were appointed delegates to the State convention in Lynchburg on September 3-4.

St. Mary's Farmers Will Picnic July 26

Leonardtown, Md., July 19 (Spl.). St. Mary's County farmers will attend the annual Farmers Picnic to be held this year at Chapel Point, July 26.

Speakers will be M. D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service of the University of Maryland, and Charles E. Wise, jr., secretary of the Maryland Farm Bureau. Farmers of the five southern Maryland counties will be present at the picnic.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1934—
THOMAS J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street N.W.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE, BEING A TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING, CONTAINING EIGHT ROOMS AND BATH, KNOWN AS 1331 "E" STREET NORTHEAST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6002 at folio 107 of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned will sell at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIFTH DAY OF JULY, 1934, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises situate in the District of Columbia, and being lot numbered sixty-nine (69) in Thomas A. Jameson's subdivision of original lots numbered ten (10) to fifteen (15) in square numbered ten hundred and thirty (1030), as per plat recorded in Liber No. 80, folio 138, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: Said property is subject to a prior deed of trust having an unpaid balance of $4,250.00, originally in the amount of $4,750.00, and said property will be sold subject to said deed of trust indebtedness. Of the purchase price over and above said deed of trust of $750.00 is to be in cash, and the balance to be secured by second deed of trust on the property sold, payable in monthly installments of $65.00, including interest at the rate of 6 per cent, said payments to also include interest on the first trust; or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. Interest and taxes to be paid or adjusted to the date of sale. A deposit of $250.00 will be required at the time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at the cost of purchaser. Good title or no sale. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty (30) days from day of sale, otherwise deposit will be forfeited and property resold at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

NO, SKEEZIX, PORCUPINES DON'T THROW THEIR QUILLS. THAT'S MERELY A SUPERSTITION.
GEE, I'D LIKE TO GET SOME!
THAT'S EASY IF YOU'VE GOT A TOWEL OR BAG—AND A PORCUPINE.
SKEEZIX HERE'S A PORKY!
HERE'S THE WAY TO COLLECT QUILLS.
ARE YOU SURE HE WON'T BACK UP?
WE MADE QUITE A HAUL.
YES, A FEW SWIPES MORE AND HE WOULD HAVE BEEN NAKED.

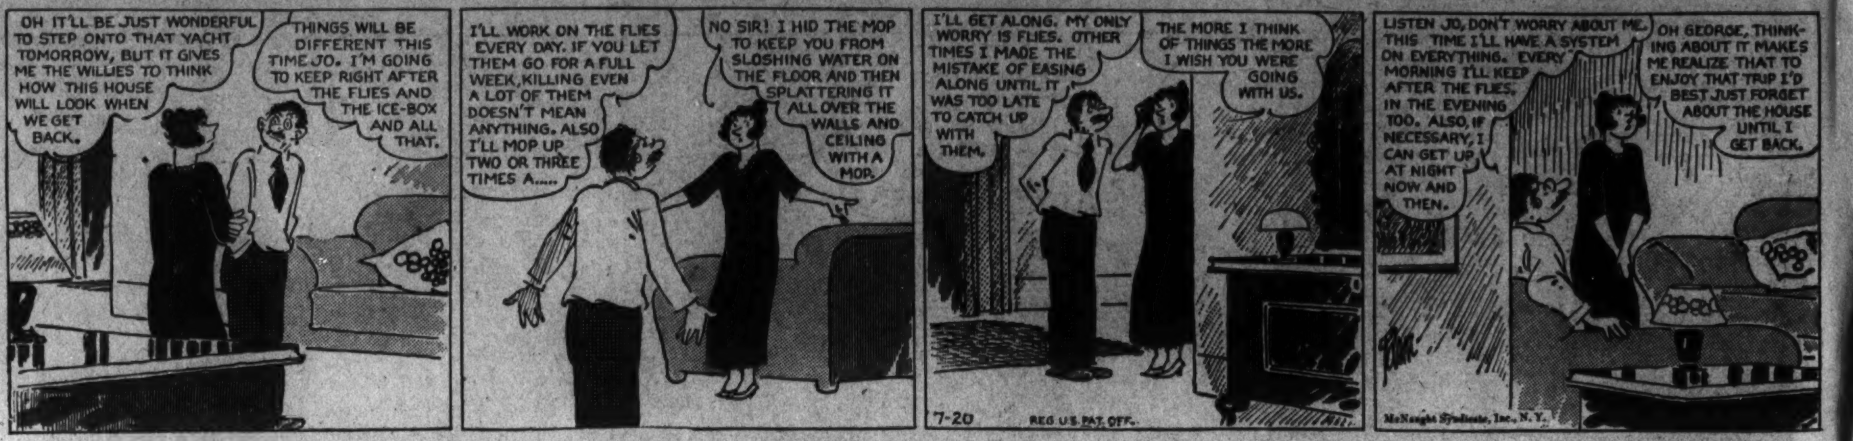
THE BUNGLE FAMILY
Experience Doesn't Worry George

By Harry J. Tuthill



OH IT'LL BE JUST WONDERFUL TO STEP ONTO THAT YACHT TOMORROW, BUT IT GIVES ME THE WILLIES TO THINK HOW THIS HOUSE WILL LOOK WHEN WE GET BACK.
THINGS WILL BE DIFFERENT THIS TIME JO. I'M GOING TO KEEP RIGHT AFTER THE FLIES AND THE ICE-BOX AND ALL THAT.
I'LL WORK ON THE FLIES EVERY DAY. IF YOU LET THEM GO FOR A FULL WEEK, KILLING EVEN A LOT OF THEM DOESN'T MEAN ANYTHING. ALSO I'LL MOP UP TWO OR THREE TIMES A.....
NO SIR! I HID THE MOP TO KEEP YOU FROM SLOSHING WATER ON THE FLOOR AND THEN SPLATTERING IT ALL OVER THE WALLS AND CEILING WITH A MOP.
I'LL GET ALONG. MY ONLY WORRY IS FLIES. OTHER TIMES I MADE THE MISTAKE OF EASING ALONG UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE TO CATCH UP WITH THEM.
THE MORE I THINK OF THINGS THE MORE I WISH YOU WERE GOING WITH US.
LISTEN JO, DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME. THIS TIME I'LL HAVE A SYSTEM ON EVERYTHING. EVERY MORNING I'LL KEEP AFTER THE FLIES. IN THE EVENING TOO. ALSO, IF NECESSARY, I CAN GET UP AT NIGHT NOW AND THEN.
OH GEORGE, THINKING ABOUT IT MAKES ME REALIZE THAT TO ENJOY THAT TRIP I'D BEST JUST FORGET ABOUT THE HOUSE UNTIL I GET BACK.

Walt Mason, Himself

Hark From the Tombs.

Calamities of every kind have come along in recent years until man's grieved in heart and mind, he floods the parlor with his tears. The farmers of my native State were planting corn when May rolled round; it didn't even germinate, it shrunk and shriveled in the ground. The farm lands seem a barren stretch, and farmers wring their hands and wail, "The weather man's a heartless wretch who should be lynched or put in jail." I've seen such ghastly things before, I've seen my orchard dead and sere, I've seen the sheriff at the door, and still I planted things next year. I've seen my hens, once brisk and gay, go reeling past on wobbly legs; they had forgotten how to lay, but still I've always had my eggs. I've seen my cows, that were my pride, once full of pep and smooth as silk, reduced to racks of bone and hide, and still I've always had my milk. Calamities may come along, catastrophes in dread array; and somehow we keep going strong, the breezes blow our tears away. It does not help us to rehearse the dreary tale of grief and groan; our granddads found conditions worse than anything we've ever known.

Move to Install Langer's Wife as Governor Gains

Militia Guards Capitol as Legislators Back Plan.

Ole Olson Declares Himself Executive

State Supreme Court Places Lieutenant in Office.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 19 (U.P.).—The North Dakota State Legislature, ruled yesterday by one Governor and today by another, launched an attempt tonight to select a brand-new one, a woman, to do its ruling tomorrow.

Assembling inside the modernistic new capitol which was surrounded by soldiers, the Legislature started a movement to install Mrs. William H. Langer in the executive's office.

The effort to make Mrs. Langer Governor started in the lower house of the Legislature a few hours after her husband, who was Governor yesterday, disappeared.

In the interim, Lieut. Gov. Ole Olson had walked into the Governor's office and declared himself the State's executive.

He backed up his claim with a supreme court ruling, and National Guardsmen who originally were called out by Langer.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 19 (AP).—North Dakota's chaotic political fires burned fiercely today as the State Legislature assembled in special session under a cloud of legal doubt as to its right to convene, and National Guardsmen lined the corridors of the new Statehouse while Gov. Ole H. Olson took possession of the Governor's office. William Langer, ousted Governor, had disappeared.

The situation was further complicated by arrival of a truckload of farmers, avowedly supporters of Langer, removed from office by supreme court order, giving credence to reports that Langer sympathizers might concentrate here to demonstrate.

Called to order by Mrs. Minnie D. Craig, speaker of the House, the lower assembly adopted a resolution that it was convened in its own right. The Senate lacked a quorum but convened by virtue of a quorum in the House.

Langer was expected to appear before the assemblies tomorrow.

Wholesale impeachment of State officials, and possibly supreme court judges who have held Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson was now vested with powers of Governor, was understood to be under consideration.

Two hours after Olson took possession of the Governor's office members of the Legislature began to assemble.

Early in the day Adjt. Gen.

Baltimore Girl Beaten, Seized

Torn Bits of Dress Only Clew in Reported Kidnaping.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Torn fragments of a girl's dress were the only clews which police had today to aid them in investigating an attack on a young woman last night at an isolated spot in the suburbs of Baltimore.

After the attack, the young woman was kidnaped in an automobile, and police are in the dark as to her identity.

Two men were seen beating the girl, and before residents of the neighborhood could reach the scene the pair had tossed their victim into a car and had fled.

County police were told loud screams were heard issuing from a wooded section near Parkville in the early hours today. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Behr joined other residents of the district in investigating, and reported seeing the girl struggling with the men.

As the residents approached, police were told, the girl's cries ceased when one of her assailants struck her on the head. She was thrown into a waiting machine and the men drove off.

Germany Sees Changes Ahead As Rumors Fly

Berlin (Friday), July 20 (AP).—Allegations from abroad that 2,000 Germans have been massacred since the upheaval of June 30 and that prisoners and guards at Dachau Concentration Camp had been killed off spread rapidly through Germany today, adding to a wealth of rumors.

So far as could be determined they had their basis in mere rumor. Stories of lesser import circulated, too, and most of them were promptly denied. The conclusion remained in many quarters that the government had not dealt sufficiently frank with the S. A. revolt.

It was felt that internal changes were under way which, for lack of an explanation, created apprehension in such circles as the Storm Troops.

The government has recently taken cognizance of the spread of rumors with official public announcements. One yesterday by Victor Lutze, head of the Storm Troops, threatened to turn over to the pub-

Ratio Principle On Arms Slash Gaining Favor

Geneva Session to Get Proposal at Meeting in September.

London, July 19 (AP).—Adaption of the ratio principle of limitation provided for in the Washington and London naval treaties to European land and air forces will be suggested, it was stated authoritatively today, at the September meeting of the disarmament conference steering committee at Geneva.

The basis on which these treaties is founded, said a close observer, forms the only "real security" and would add a "practical provision" to any disarmament scheme it may be possible to devise at Geneva.

Meanwhile, Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons that 41 new squadrons will be added to the British air defense, bringing the Empire's total to 85.

European powers "must quit trying to form alliances and must take away the incentive to invade a neighbor's territory before they can have real security," was the view expressed by one statesman favoring the disarmament plan.

Despite the approval given to the proposed eastern security pact by Great Britain and Italy, it was the view in some quarters that such a pact can aid only if it is the means of real disarmament.

A changing opinion in Geneva toward the Versailles treaty was noticed in some quarters. The steering committee, it was predicted, will be faced with the necessity of differentiating between "treaties imposed on nations and those voluntarily agreed to."

In that event the cause of Germany would be presented more forcefully and France would be asked to accept a certain amount of German rearmament.

Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, and Rear Admiral Richard H. Leigh, who have engaged in discussions with the British, sailed for home tonight.

Davis will go first to Washington and then take a vacation, reporting to President Roosevelt when the latter returns from his Pacific cruise.

Baltimore Boy Plunges 280 Feet to His Death

President, 1,200 Miles at Sea, Receives Papers by Dirigible

Aboard Cruiser New Orleans Accompanying President Roosevelt, July 19 (AP).—The Navy dirigible Macon made contact with the cruiser Houston, carrying President Roosevelt to Hawaii, 1,200 miles off the Pacific Coast today. In a series of spectacular maneuvers by the airship and her planes, papers were dropped aboard the warship.

Heralded by two of the planes she carries, the Macon appeared out of the mist and arrived over the Houston shortly after noon. The planes guided the mother craft over the Presidential vessel.

As the planes flew back into the body of the Macon, the President sent the following message to the Macon:

"The President compliments you and your planes on your fine performance and excellent navigation. Well done, and thank you for the papers."

The Macon soared away, and within an hour from the time of her arrival had disappeared behind the clouds, heading for her base at Sunnyvale, Calif. The cruisers Houston and New Orleans, carrying the Presidential party and accompanying newspapermen, continued on their way to Hawaii.

During the day the President gave perticular attention to railroad affairs, looking over names for the new Federal Mediation Board and the Railroad Retirement Board, which will administer the new pension act. Early announcement of appointments is probable.

D. C. Gunman Shot; Cleanup Of Gang Near

Capture of Myers in N.Y. Leaves Misanas Lone Tri-State Fugitive.

Second Raid Nets Block; Richmond Wants Pair Held in Baltimore.

With the serious wounding and capture of Herbert Myers, 39, in a New York apartment yesterday, police and postal inspectors have only one more member of the so-called "tri-State gang" to get.

Of the gang whose depredations include the murder of a postal guard in a mail robbery at Richmond, mail robbery at the Union Station last October and the shooting of Mrs. Elizabeth Fontaine at Upper Darby, Pa., only Arthur Misanas, 37, is still at large.

Police describe Misanas as the "least known and most dangerous" of the bandits. In the round-up of the gang, in which Washington detectives have been active, two members have been slain, two wounded and two captured unhurt.

Shot by Dectective.

Myers was shot yesterday as he reached for his pocket when he opened the door of his apartment and faced several detectives. New York Detective Frank O'Neill, of the headquarters staff, fired the shot.

Information about Myers' New York hideout was secured by Detective Sergt. Floyd Truscott and Postal Inspector Leo Beward, of Washington, who went to New York several days ago to track him down.

Myers, shot in the abdomen, was removed to the prison ward of Fordham Hospital. His condition was said to be serious. He was found in the apartment of his wife, Agnes Myers, an actress, who, according to the Associated Press, had not seen him since November of 1933 until two weeks ago.

Three Others Captured.

Members of the gang in custody, in addition to Myers, are John Kendrick, 39, who is held at the District Jail; William Davis and Robert Mais, both held in Baltimore, awaiting extradition to Richmond, where they have been indicted for murder, and Mrs. Fontaine, who Washington police are holding in secret.

Mrs. Fontaine, a former member of the gang, was shot at Upper Darby because she "knew too much." She has given police valuable information about the gang and her whereabouts have been kept secret. She is an important witness and police fear a reprisal against her. There are no charges against her.

Kendrick was captured in Johnson City, Tenn., in company with Marie McKeever, who was not held. Mrs. Barbara Kendrick, his wife, was arrested in Philadelphia, brought to Washington and released after questioning by Washington police.

Mais and Davis were captured in a gun battle with Baltimore police. Mais was seriously wounded, and although still in the hospital, will probably recover. The dead members of the gang are William B. Phillips, shot here last April by Policeman John Caton, and George Kauffman, victim of a gangster "ride" in Pittsburgh.

Crimes in which the gang is involved also include murder in Baltimore, the hold-up of the Heurich Brewery here and the hijacking of a truckload of cigarettes in North Carolina.

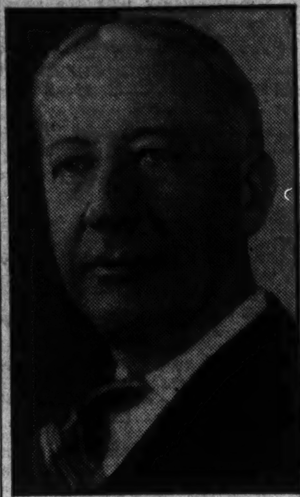
Policeman Held In Store Robbery

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Accused of robbing a store on his beat, Patrolman Wesley J. Williams, 39, was arrested today by a radio patrol crew and stripped of his equipment pending a hearing. He submitted his resignation.

Reports on file at the northern police station show that Williams was arrested early today as he was leaving a grocery, after residents had phoned to the station house saying they had seen him break in.

A quantity of fruit, vegetables and eggs was found in a basket at the rear of the store, the report said. Williams was said to have told superior officers "family trouble" had been disturbing him. He has a wife and three children.

Al Smith Ends 5-Year Fight With "Tiger"



ALFRED E. SMITH.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

New York, July 19.—Al Smith, the "happy warrior" of other days, made his peace today at the Tammany wigwam.

The former Governor, estranged from Tammany Hall in the turbulent reign of John F. Curry, returned to give his advice and counsel to the new leader, youthful but cautious James J. Dooling.

This action presaged speedy accomplishments of a new charter for New York City, consolidating the out-moded, overlapping municipal and county governments.

"I had a talk with the new leader," Smith said at his office in the

Dearth of Jobs Election Threat To Democrats

Poll of South Discloses Danger in Political Plum Blight.

By Robert C. Albright.

Democratic unrest over job handouts, one of the Administration's most delicate problems during the last session of Congress, has cropped up again in mightier fury in first returns from the Democratic Congressional campaign committee's pre-election questionnaire.

An overwhelming majority of the confidential replies received here in answer to queries sent out to Southern Democrats show Democratic members of Congress in trouble with constituents over inability to land patronage plums, it was learned last night.

Pressure for jobs, which climaxed in more than one angry Democratic caucus before Congress adjourned, has grown steadily worse, according to members of the committee. The questionnaire blast is only the last of a series of repercussions, from which leaders expect to hear more when Congress convenes.

Next on the protest list of complaining Democratic members was the Public Works Administration and alleged delay in getting its building program moving, the first 60 or 70 questionnaires disclosed. Patronage and PWA kicks were closely interlocked, members complaining that too many PWA jobs were going to Republicans. The same complaint was made against the FERA and other relief agencies.

It was learned that answers to a question on the popularity of President Roosevelt were what might be expected from Administration Democrats. Preponderantly, members replied that Mr. Roosevelt's popularity is on the increase.

But some of the answers varied.

"Yes and no," one of the members responded.

"About the same," another wrote in.

But patronage discontent, as repeatedly evidenced, and again confirmed in the Democratic question-

Voice Culture For Police Radio Artists Planned

Policemen soon will be instructed in voice culture.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Police Superintendent, announced yesterday that he is planning a special course to improve his policemen's voices. But only a chosen few will benefit—those connected with police radio station WPDW.

Maj. Brown said he hopes to inaugurate the course next month.

"It will not only aid our radio dispatchers, but also those who have to listen to them. A well-trained voice and schooled enunciation will make a great difference in dispatching alarms by radio."

It also is planned to start instruction courses for every member of the police radio patrol. Maj. Brown said he felt both patrol car crews and station attendants would profit by schooling.

NRA to Give Eagle Back to Hosiery Mills

Agreement Reached on One of Oldest New Deal Disputes

Harriman Firm Expected to Reopen Almost Immediately.

(Associated Press.)

One of the oldest and most publicized controversies in NRA's turbulent history came to an end last night with authoritative word that an understanding had been reached by which the Blue Eagle would be restored to the Harriman, Tenn., hosiery mills.

Although terms of the agreement were not made public immediately, there were indications that both NRA and the Harriman firm had made concessions in their demands.

The understanding was expected by officials here to mean the almost immediate reopening of the plant. Resumption of operations was indicated to mean the quick restoration of more than 600 workers to the pay roll, all of them tossed out of work when the mills closed.

Plant Was Shut Down.

NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson ordered the firm's Blue Eagle removed last April. Two months later Harriman officials ordered the plant shut down completely.

T. Asbury Wright, vice president of the concern, announced that operations could not be continued without the NRA insignia. He spoke just after a huge order from Pennsylvania for socks had been cancelled because the firm lacked a Blue Eagle. Other orders obtained by the mills also had been canceled on the same grounds.

Formal announcement of the restoration of the Harriman Blue Eagle was expected within 24 hours.

The situation came to a head after a strike by workers at the plant. Closing of the mills added 623 more unemployed.

The Harriman case is one of the oldest and most troublesome in NRA history. The National Labor Board, of which Senator Robert F. Wagner was chairman, made a number of inquiries and held hearings beginning last summer into charges that the Harriman owners refused to bargain collectively with labor as required by Section 7-A of the recovery law.

Recall Cummings' Stand.

A strike was called at the mills last October. In March the Labor Board recommended withdrawal of the Blue Eagle to Johnson and submitted to the Justice Department its evidence of alleged violation of the hosiery code.

Attorney General Cummings declined to prosecute, saying the evidence did not warrant court action. Later he advised Johnson the Justice Department's attitude in no way affected NRA's right to withdraw the Blue Eagle. He drew a distinction between administrative enforcement of the recovery law and legal enforcement through a criminal court action.

Harriman, Tenn., July 19 (AP)—Officials of the Harriman Hosiery Mills tonight announced plans for the resumption of operations following news from Washington that the way had been cleared for return of the mill's Blue Eagle.

T. Asbury Wright, attorney for the operators, said the mills would reopen Monday. W. M. Hannah, representing striking employes, said that if the reported agreement was "official" the workers likely would agree to its terms.

Austria Rocked By Nazi Bombs

Dollfuss Threat of Death Answered as Grace Period Ends.

Vienna, July 19 (AP).—Bombers got busy today after the expiration of Chancellor Dollfuss' ultimatum requiring surrender of the explosives under threat of the death penalty.

The five-day period of grace for terrorists—said by the government to be Nazis—ended at midnight. Three hours later a terrific blast wrecked the upper section of the Nordkitte cable railway, connecting Innsbruck with the mountain top.

The police riding school at Vienna was bombed. Two pedestrians, who were held as suspects, were injured.

The Fatherland Front (government party) headquarters at Vorarlberg also was blasted.

A Nazi was arrested on charge of setting fire to telephone booths and was said to have confessed.

The authorities said that the machinery of the railway at Innsbruck was not damaged and it was in operation, although many tourists canceled their trips. Two Nazis were arrested.

Spanish Decoration Given Henry Roosevelt

Madrid, July 19 (AP).—The Spanish cabinet today awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of Naval Merit with a white ribbon, to Henry Roosevelt, United States Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Ribbons of the order are of two colors, white being a recognition of an outstanding naval accomplishment and red denoting distinction in war.

General Strike Ended By 'Frisco Labor Heads; Stampede to Jobs Starts

Oregon Walkout Delay Is Pledged

Dock Workmen Firm, With Hiring Halls Crucial Issue.

By Raymond Clapper
(Post Staff Writer).

San Francisco, Calif., July 19.—Organized labor officially called off the general strike today.

The general strike committee of the San Francisco Labor Council adopted resolutions advising all unions which went on strike in sympathy with the longshoremen to return to work immediately.

Within an hour after this action was announced at Labor Temple taxis again were speeding about the downtown streets, movie theaters reopened and the last remaining evidence of the general strike disappeared.

Twenty-four hours previously the real backbone of the strike was broken when the strike committee removed embargoes on restaurants, butcher shops and gasoline after gradual disintegration of strike restrictions and resumption of operation of the city-owned street railways.

Dockmen Still Out.

The longshoremen's strike, which led to the general walkout, continued. Ending of the general strike cleared the way for negotiations, but the outcome was uncertain tonight because longshoremen thus far have refused to consent to arbitration of the central issue in their fight—control of the hiring halls, where crews to load and unload vessels are recruited.

The union insists upon complete control of these employment centers. Ship owners as represented in the waterfront employers' union have agreed to accept arbitration of this point.

Threat of martial law apparently played an important part in inducing labor to call off the strike. Public sentiment also was a factor. Mayor Rossi and Gen. Hugh Johnson both declared that before anything could be done the general strike must be ended. But as feeling grew more intense, pressure on the mayor to ask Gov. Merriam to declare martial law grew. The Governor, it is said, stood ready to take such action if requested by Mayor Rossi. Powerful elements in the city urged the mayor to make the request, but he held back while seeking to persuade latbor to end the general strike.

Union Saw Threat.

The general strike committee, in its resolution advising the unions to return to work, said: "There exists a crisis threatening the committee with the disastrous results attendant on the breaking down of civil government when superseded by martial law."

The vote in the general strike committee for returning to work was 191 to 174.

Immediately Gen. Johnson and members of the President's Labor Board went into session to prepare for negotiations to settle the longshoremen's strike.

Meantime shipping companies radioed some of their ships at sea to head for San Francisco. The Matson liner Lurline, carrying several hundred passengers and a consignment of pineapples, is expected in port Saturday, and probably will be the first large liner to arrive since the ending of the general strike.

Rossi Congratulates Labor.

Shortly after the ending of the general strike, Mayor Rossi went on the air to congratulate organized labor on its decision.

"The crushing of this general strike," he said, "must not be construed to mean that San Francisco either desires or will tolerate any attempt to destroy union labor or invade its rights."

The major situation left undetermined immediately after the general strike was ended involved the intentions of the teamsters union. This organization, which in reality is the union of truck drivers who dominate the commercial delivery of the whole community, remained technically on strike.

Return of truck drivers would have nullified the longshoremen's strike. There is sufficient casual labor around the docks to load and unload shipping. The problem is in getting the freight to and from the docks.

Employers Ready to Go.

Employers in San Francisco are prepared to put nonunion drivers on the trucks, and under guard attempt to deliver dock freight in the city. Possibilities of trouble are seen in such a situation.

The atmosphere of the city changed quickly as newspaper extras emblazoned the news of the formal ending of the strike. Street traffic speeded up as taxicabs darted about. Movies did a rushing business after having been closed since Monday morning. At Labor Temple the strike sub-committee, which have been issuing permits to vari-

Duke Loses Power Plant Loan Protest

Greenwood Project Wins Ickes' Approval on Eve of Vacation.

The Duke Endowment last night was the loser in its public campaign against the allocation of $2,767,000 loan by the Public Works Administration to Greenwood County, S. C., for a municipal power plant that would compete with the powerful Duke Power Co.

Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, in clearing his desk late yesterday to start on a vacation, announced that he had approved the application of the Greenwood authorities, following an investigation by the PWA board.

This announcement was made orally and without comment after the administrator issued a prepared statement that he had approved allocations totaling $31,286,405 for 256 projects in 43 States, in clearing off his desk for a three weeks' rest.

At hearings here on the Greenwood application, presidents of three Carolina universities came to the defense of the Duke Power Co. against the loan. These included Dr. W. P. Few, head of Duke University, the largest beneficiary of the Duke family's philanthrophy and holder of the largest share of the endowment of $40,000,000.

The Duke representatives filed a three-point protest against the allocation, asserting: That the project would cost more than estimated and would not be self-liquidating; that it would be a Governmental "subsidy" to James Self, Greenwood textile manufacturer, and that the Duke-endowed institutions would suffer.

The new projects, all of which are expected to get under way immediately, with a minimum amount of so-called red tape, will provide 194,802 man-months of employment directly on construction sites and

Explorer's Wife Taken From Africa by Plane

Cairo, Egypt, July 19 (AP).—Stretched on a special bed installed on an amphibian airplane, Mrs. Martin Johnson, ill, arrived here today with her husband after 20 months of film-shooting big game in the interior of Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson intend to remain in Cairo a week, then to fly to London and embark for the United States, where Mrs. Johnson will undergo an operation. She said the operation was not of an urgent character.

Unified Air Rule Hit by Baker Report

U. S. Held Second to None in Aeronautics Under Present Set-ups.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Creation of a unified air force—one of the most hotly contested questions in American aeronautical policy—is opposed in the report just made to Secretary Dern by the special aviation committee headed by Newton D. Baker.

The committee, headed by the wartime Secretary of War, based its recommendation on the contention that its three months' study of American aviation problems showed conclusively the United States was second to no other nation in aeronautics.

The committee's findings are that, since the United States' military and naval aviation have developed to their present status through separate Army and Navy Air Corps, it would be folly to make a radical change in the organization.

The report, which contains comprehensive conclusions, data and opinions secured through a study of aeronautical development in other nations, as well as in the United States, and expert testimony from 115 civilian and military aeronautical authorities, will be made public Monday.

The printed report of 75 pages was delivered to Acting Secretary of War Woodring yesterday by the Government Printing Office and arrangements made for its general distribution next week.

In addition to opposing the creation of a united air force, the report said the Army Air Corps lacked sufficient fighting planes for its highest possible wartime efficiency, and recommended the immediate construction of more combat and attack planes. The Army Air Corps has between 1,300 and and 1,400 serviceable planes.

The Baker committee found the ratio of training, observation, transport and other nonfighting types was so high as to drastically reduce the Air Corps' fighting efficiency.

At the present time it is estimated that, despite the fact the United

Jury Indicts U. S. Agent In Slaying at St. Louis

More Heat Forecast Today; Washington Wilts Under 93

Temperatures from 10 a. m. yesterday were recorded officially at the United States Weather Bureau as:

10 a. m.	84	5 p. m.	86
11 a. m.	85	6 p. m.	89
Noon	85	7 p. m.	88
1 p. m.	86	8 p. m.	86
2 p. m.	92	9 p. m.	83
3 p. m.	92	10 p. m.	82
4 p. m.	90	11 p. m.	81

Washington simmered with the temperature reaching a maximum of 93.4 degrees at 2:45 p. m. yesterday, and the Weather Bureau predicting today would be at least 1 degree hotter.

One heat victim was reported. Stewart McGuire, 37, of the 800 block M street northwest, collapsed in the prisoners' dock at Police Court while awaiting trial on a charge of intoxication. He was treated by an Emergency Hospital physician, who said his condition was not serious.

A sudden shower fell about 4 p. m., lasting about 10 minutes. It sent the mercury down several degrees, but furnished no real relief.

Yesterday's low was 71, recorded at 5:30 a. m. The humidity at 8 a. m. was 70, dropping to 49 just before the shower, and jumping to 68 after the rain. Slight variable winds, which fanned the city yesterday, will continue today.

San Francisco General Strike Is Called Off

Workers Stampede Back to Jobs Even Before Vote Is Ended.

ous businesses and in a sense attempting to serve as de facto governing bodies of the city, were left with no work to do. Hundreds of applicants for permits were in line at the Labor Temple when the news was flashed out of the strike committee meeting, and they quickly left for their places of business.

Arbitration Key to Peace.

In ending the tieup, the general strike committee predicated its action upon the agreement of the water front employers' union to arbitrate all issues involved in the longshoremen's dispute and upon the evident willingness of the steamship operators to arbitrate the maritime workers' controversies under collective bargaining. This willingness was announced in the postponed settlement program adopted yesterday by the President's special longshoremen's board.

After reciting the agreement as thus outlined yesterday the general strike committee officially declared an end to one of the few general strikes in American history in the following language:

"Be it resolved that this general strike committee hereby advises all those unions that are now out on strike out of sympathy with the maritime workers and longshoremen, to immediately resume work; and that we pledge every resource, moral and financial, for the continued prosecution toward a successful termination of the maritime workers' and longshoremen's strike."

Carmen Still Out.

One union announced it would disregard the advice of the general strike committee to go back to work. This was the Market Street Railway Carmen's Union, representing employes on the privately-owned street car system which competes with the municipal system. They have a wage controversy pending and decided to continue their strike in connection with this dispute. The company resumed operations partially, however, and officials said service would be expanded as rapidly as crews could be put to work. Company officials say non-union employes are returning for their old jobs.

Members of the National Longshoremen's Labor Board sighed with relief as the ending of the general strike cleared the way for real work on the maritime labor dispute.

"It certainly was the right thing to do, and what this board has urged right along," said Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and a member of the board. O. K. Cushing San Francisco attorney and member of the board, also said it was a move in the right direction.

Meantime there was a grim atmosphere around headquarters of the longshoremen's union. Harry Bridges, chairman of the joint strike committee of the longshoremen and maritime workers, and regarded as the most radical of the longshoremen leaders declared his men would not go back to work immediately. Meetings have been called for tomorrow to discuss the future program of the maritime workers. The big issue before them is whether to accept arbitration of the question of control over hiring halls.

Rush Back to Work Looks Like Stampede

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—As soon as word of the labor committee's action in calling off the strike was flashed, the trek back to work assumed almost the proportions of stampede in the metropolitan area of 1,300,000 persons.

Even before the strike was called off, both union and nonunion men had been returning to work.

Industry that had been paralyzed for a time by the mass walkout last Monday of nearly 100,000 workers was revolting against the decrees set up by the strike organization for the emergency conduct of its affairs.

The Portland strike strategy committee followed a militia order by Gov. Meier by voting to call a general strike if the troops are moved from Camp Withycombe, about 10 miles from Portland, into the city. Gov. Meier said the Militiamen would be sent into Portland only in the event regular police were unable to cope with the situation.

Previously the committee had pledged Senator Robert F. Wagner it would use its influence to postpone calling of a general strike there until the Senator could present to the Federal Mediation Board at San Francisco the information he gathered in Portland.

Senator Wagner, who reached Portland this week as an observer for the White House and Federal Labor Board, said he will leave tomorrow for San Francisco.

Fair Basis Is Seen.

Referring to its previous action recommending that both shipping interests and the striking maritime unions submit to arbitration by the Federal longshoremen's strike board, the strike committee said it thus had proposed "a fair and equitable basis upon which this general strike may be ended at once."

The strikers' convention also passed a resolution asking the withdrawal of 4,500 National Guardsmen from the strike-bound area and another perpetuating the general strike committee "until such time as the president of this body shall decide."

Acting Gov. Merriam said late today he is contemplating withdrawing the National guardsmen from the San Francisco Bay area as soon as he is reasonably certain the strike is over and there is no further demand for guards.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator and Government spokesman in the negotiations here, immediately notified Edward Vandeleur, president of the strike committee, that he would carry out his promise to bring the central issues to arbitration. "I am going to uphold your end to the limit," he said.

Johnson, who yesterday called upon the strike committee to call off the mass walkout as a prerequisite to Federal peace efforts, told Vandeleur:

In Alameda County (Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and neighboring cities), union labor voted tonight to return to work tomorrow, officially ending the walkout of 47,000 workers in the county.

District Attorney Backs Firing Upon Wagner Party Car

Portland, Oreg., July 19 (AP).—The district attorney's office here contemplates no action against four young special officers who last night fired at an automobile carrying men accompanying Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, on an inspection of Portland's stricke-blockaded wharves.

District Attorney Lotus L. Langley, making this announcement today, said, "An officer has the right at any time to stop a car on the highway in the performance of police duty."

The guards said Fred Ross, labor attorney and driver of the car fired upon, refused to heed repeated commands to halt for the customary "checking out" at the dock entrance. Senator Wagner was in a car ahead which checked out properly and passed unchallenged.

Ross denied he heard any command to halt.

U.S. Would Kill Original Cause Of Coast Strike

Attention Centered Now on Longshoremen and Seamen.

Administration officials last night turned their attention to the original cause of San Francisco's general strike—the walkout of members of the longshoremen's and maritime unions.

Word that the general strike had been called off was received without comment by Secretary of Labor Perkins, but with indications that the development was not unexpected. At the White House, it was said the news had been forwarded to President Roosevelt, now en route to Hawaii, but that no word had come from him.

When the news reached Washington, plans were under way for a further concentration of Administration forces to relieve the situation.

Secretary Perkins conferred at the White House yesterday with Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the National Emergency Council, and Louis Howe, the President's secretary. She also was in telephonic communication with Postmaster General Farley at Los Angeles, and with the longshoremen's board at San Francisco. Farley said he would proceed to the strike center today to offer his services in connection with mediation.

Arbitration Is Attempted.

Miss Perkins intimated yesterday she was attempting to persuade some of the California ship owners to agree to arbitrate disputed points with the seamen's union and allied groups. The companies enjoy lucrative ocean mail subsidies, but Miss Perkins said she felt there was no need for coercion.

"The Government expects both labor and the shipping interests to cooperate with the longshoremen's board, the accredited Federal agency, in ending the controversy," she said.

Richberg cut short his vacation yesterday to return to the Capital and confer with Miss Perkins. One of the Nation's foremost authorities on labor problems, he recently was given leave of absence as chief counsel of NRA to coordinate the activities of various recovery agencies.

One Obstacle Blocks All.

Secretary Perkins said yesterday that failure of the shipping lines to reach an agreement on the seamen's strike for adjudication by the board apparently had stopped progress toward a settlement by arbitration of the longshoremen's dispute itself. Employers of the longshoremen, she said, had announced at one time that they were ready for arbitration, but did not speak for some of the deep-water steamship lines which employed striking seamen.

Miss Perkins intimated she and other Government officials now would concentrate upon this phase of the situation. The California longshoremen and the seamen have an understanding by which neither group is to go back to work unless an arrnagement satisfactory to both is reached.

Farley's trip to San Francisco was regarded as significant, in view of the fact that as Postmaster General he holds the whip-hand over steamship lines enjoying ocean mail contracts.

Among others with whom Secretary Perkins conferred by telephone yesterday were Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, and Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, and a member of the Longshoremen's Board.

Radicals Are Attacked.

In a statement last night, issued before the termination of the San Francisco general strike was announced, the National Association of Manufacturers declared, "agitation and strikes openly fometed by union leaders are playing America directly into the hands of radicals."

The association attacked William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for declaring the A. F. of L. had not authorized the San Francisco walkout.

"If the Government itself is to endure," the statement said, "society must repudiate the idea that any labor union or private groups have a right to engage in activities such as preventing workers from accepting employment on terms satisfactory to themselves, closing city thoroughfares to citizens, saying which stores shall be allowed to sell to the public, apportioning a hungry public certain union restaurants, usurping Government functions by declaring any class of goods contraband, denying farmers access to city markets and similarly high-handed activity not consistent with the rights of a free people."

Portland Votes Strike if State Uses Soldiers

Employers Intend to Go Ahead Loading Ships by Force.

Portland, Oreg., July 19 (AP).—The Portland strike strategy committee tonight voted to call a general strike here if National Guard troops at Camp Withycombe are moved onto the Portland waterfront.

Gov. Julius L. Meier previously ordered 1,100 troops mobilized at Camp Withycombe, 10 miles from Portland, to "prevent loss of life and bloodshed" when the shippers attempt to open the strike-bound port of Portland to world commerce tomorrow.

Mayor Joseph Carson and county authorities have informed him Gov. Meier said, that peace officers would be unable to cope with the situation produced by an attempt to resume forcibly the loading and discharging of cargo on the strike-bound water front.

Ben T. Osborne, executive secretary of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, said Gov. Meier's order for mobilization of the National Guard released labor leaders from their promise to Senator Robert F. Wagner that a general strike would be held in abeyance until further settlement efforts were made.

Gov. Meier expressed the hope it would not be necessary to move the troops to the water front.

Shipowners were said to have wearied waiting for settlement to be reached at San Francisco where President Roosevelt's Longshoremen Board is attempting to settle the strike of Coast International Longshoremen's Association members and other marine workers.

Polish Flood Toll Is 120

Warsaw, July 19 (AP).—Receding flood waters in southern Poland today left a scene of devastation over a wide area, in which 120 bodies have been recovered, while 180 persons were reported missing.

The rain ceased after three weeks, and the sun shone upon the section stricken with the most destructive flood in the history of the nation. Traffic was resumed on some railroad lines to points which have been entirely cut off.

A wave of water was sweeping down the Vistula Basin today, but as the lower shores of the river are well banked, no difficulties were expected. The crest was expected to reach Warsaw Saturday.

Airplanes and boats penetrating the flooded area reported shortage of food and drinking water, the latter being rationed in some places from tanks at railroad stations.

Rockville Chamber Outing Is Enjoyed

Escorted by police, practically all Montgomery County's officialdom and Rockville's business men traveled to Bay Ridge yesterday for the eighth annual outing of the Rockville (Md.) Chamber of Commerce. Two school buses accompanied to carry the children.

The group enjoyed a delightful day with the exception of those who stayed too long in the sun and came back too tanned for comfort, but even they declared it one of the best outings of the chamber.

Boating, bathing and fishing vied with other contests for the amusement of the party. The caravan left Rockville in time to reach the beach at 11 a. m. The arrival was followed by lunch.

Lupe Has Until Today To Decide on Divorce

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP).—Lupe Velez, the chameleon of the cinema, has until tomorrow to make up her mind about whether she is going through with her announced plan to divorce her mate, Johnny Weissmuller.

Disappointing a packed courtroom, where she was scheduled to tell of the film Tarzan's destruction of furniture and conduct unbecoming a husband, Lupe today advised Judge Robert Kenny through her attorney that she probably could appear tomorrow.

3 Hurt by Fight In Alabama's Textile Strike

Union Leader Shot in Leg; Walkout of 20,000 Is Claimed.

Huntsville, Ala., July 19 (AP).—Three persons were wounded in disorders at Decatur today in Alabama's three-day-old textile strike which, union officials claim, has called more than 20,000 men from their looms.

Monroe Adcock, president of the local at Dallas Mills here, was shot in the leg in a street battle in which at least two others were wounded.

Burnice Rigsby, Huntsville textile union member, and Isaac Bullard, Huntsville, trustee of the Alabama State Council of Textile Workers, who were Adcock's companions on a visit to Decatur textile mills, were both treated at hospitals for scalp wounds believed inflicted by a pistol bullet. None of the wounds was regarded as serious.

Decatur workers have not heeded the strike call issued for Tuesday morning.

Adcock said he and his two fellow union members were attacked on a street corner near one of the textile plants by three men who drove up in an automobile. The altercation, which lasted but a few seconds, ended when the trio left as rapidly as they came. Adcock said he hit one man with a brick.

Meanwhile, peaceful picketing was the order of the day at the 24 plants closed down by the strike. Estimates of the number of strikers continued to vary widely, ranging from 13,000 to 22,000.

No negotiations for settlement of the strike were in progress today, both mill owners and union heads saying "the next move is up to the other fellow."

Strikers are demanding a permanent 30-hour week on a $12 weekly minimum wage, recognition of the collective bargaining and certain changes in working conditions.

Strikers Lift Ban on Water

Shortage in Kohler Village, Wis., Is Forestalled by Compromise.

Kohler, Wis., July 19 (AP).—An impending water shortage in Kohler Village was forestalled late today when a committee representing strikers agreed to permit coal cars to pass through picket lines into the Kohler Co.'s power plant, which furnishes the "model" village with water for fire protection and domestic purposes.

The compromise was reached through the efforts of the Rev. J. W. Maguire, of Kankakee, Ill., mediator for the Chicago Regional Labor Board, shortly after the company announced its dwindling coal supply threatened to leave the village without water inside of two or three days.

In the face of unfounded rumors that the National Guard may be called out, Father MaGuire planned to explain to a mass meeting of strikers that the return tomorrow of the Kohler Villiage National Guard unit from Camp McCoy is prompted only because the encampment period has ended.

The mediator expressed himself still hopeful tonight of a settlement of the strike, in which Union No. 18545, American Federation of Labor, is asking its recognition as bargaining agent, shorter hours and increased pay for common labor.

Former Gov. Kohler today, as yesterday, was permitted to enter his office unmolested by pickets when he arrived for a conference with Father McGuire.

Minneapolis Police Brandish Shotguns and Guard Trucks

Strike Called Red Threat; Mediator's Success Is Doubted.

Minneapolis, July 19 (AP).—Guns were brandished in the truck drivers' strike, their second within two months, today as employers heard speakers brand the walkout "a communistic menace."

Simultaneously with the assignment of 50 policemen, armed with shotguns, to an East Side transfer company, where officials planned to attempt movement of trucks, members of the employers group expressed doubt that efforts of the Rev. Francis Haas, Federal mediator, would be successful.

Chief of Police Michael Johannes warned his patrolmen guarding trucks not to "take a beating."

"You have shotguns and you know how to use them," he said. "When we have finished with this convoy there will be other goods to move."

Strike leaders, almost immediately, sent loads of pickets to an undisclosed destination.

Earlier in the day, Sam Levy, attorney for the truck owners, told a meeting of that group the strike was in the hands of Communists. Lindell, executive secretary of the Minnesota Law and Order League, told owners, "We are fighting a war to perpetuate a government of laws. This is a communistic menace. Communism is slowly but surely grasping the Nation."

Father Haas, with E. H. Dunningan, also a Federal mediator, conferred with Gov. Floyd B. Olson at noon. Father Haas expressed belief afterward progress was made. The Governor remained noncommittal.

One employer divulged that Father Haas endeavored to gain an undisclosed concession from the employers for the strikers, but that his request was refused. Several employers said afterward they doubted the mediator would do much good.

Eyes Worry Man, 140, in Reading Classified Ads

Rio De Janeiro, July 19 (U.P.).—A claimant to succeed the late Zaro Ahga, of Turkey, as the world's oldest living person appeared at a hospital today to have his eyes tested.

Hypolito Xavier Ribeiro, colored, asserted he was 140 years old, and that he was beginning to have difficulty reading classified advertisements.

Physicians were inclined to credit his claims that he was born in 1794 as a slave and participated in a revolution in 1842 and the Paraguayan war in 1865. An occulist pronounced his eyesight perfect—only "somewhat tired."

Maryland Police Guard Truckers

Patrol Philadelphia Road in Strike Trouble.

Baltimore, July 19 (Spl.).—Special details of State motorcycle police patrolled the Philadelphia road between Baltimore and the Delaware State line today to avert further disorder in connection with the strike of truck drivers and helpers who were ordered to quit work Monday.

Stoning of a fleet of trucks on the highway near Havre de Grace early today, in which one driver's arm was cut by flying glass from a shattered windshield, led to the road patrol being established.

Six men were in the group which stoned the trucks, the drivers reported. When police reached the scene the attackers had fled. No disorder has yet been reported on the Washington boluevard, but police officials are keeping a close watch. Union officials say more than 1,000 truck drivers have ceased work since the walkout was called.

Strikes Cost June Pay Rolls $5,000,000

Miss Perkins Estimates 119,000 Jobs Lost by Wage Earners.

Strikes, combined with seasonal declines, cost wage earners throughout the country 119,000 jobs and $5,000,000 from pay envelopes during June, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced last night.

It was the first check in the upward swing of manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries' emmployment and pay rolls during the year.

Labor Department records show that normally the seasonal declines have caused June indices to slip under those of May during eight of the last fifteen years.

However, Miss Perkins pointed out that besides these factors, "the longshoremen's strike on the Pacific Coast affected operation in a number of establishments in this section."

"Sporadic labor disturbances affected plant operations in other localities also," she added.

15 Million Days Lost.

In view of strikes having played an important part in the June slump, the Labor Department made a conservative estimate yesterday, according to the Associated Press, that American workers already have lost 15,000,000 days this year because of walkouts, and all the returns aren't in.

"Up until the middle of the year, the Department's records showed that there were 10,000,000 man-days in which workingmen went without pay because of labor disputes.

The Associated Press said the official data for June and July is lacking but these months have seen industrial unrest mount until a climax was reached in the San Francisco general strike.

Officials say the cost to the Nation as a whole, directly and indirectly, would run probably into the hundreds of millions. They point out that the slash in the income of the workers alone would be around $50,000,000—if not more.

Same Old Grounds.

At the end of May, 144,151 employes were out because of controversies with their employers. An off-hand estimate of the number affected now—or out within the past week—is not far from 200,000.

The clashes center about ancient points of contention between capital and labor—wages, hours and collective bargaining.

The contention of union men, especially those connected with the American Federation of Labor, that employers have refused to recognize them and have discriminated against them has caused trouble time and time again. This, in turn, is denied by the plant owners.

The Department of Labor's summary of the number of days lost until the end of May includes January, 1,926,035 days; February, 789,553; March, 1,091,023; April, 2,937,515, and May 3,477,893.

The index of factory employment for June is 1.7 per cent below the May level, while factory pay rolls are 3.1 per cent below the index for May. The June pay roll index also is below that of March and April but higher than the indices of any other month since August, 1931.

Commodity Prices Off.

Simultaneously, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that wholesale commodity prices showed a further weakening during the week ended July 14, declining three-tenths of 1 per cent.

District industrial employment, outside building construction, has dropped 3 per cent in June, with 34,746 on the pay rolls. However, the amount of pay rolls rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent, reaching $815,667.

Increases Are Shown.

Four of the 14 groups in the manufacturing industries showed increases in both employment and pay rolls. These gains were food, 5.5 per cent; iron and steel, 1.6 per cent; tobacco, 1.8 per cent, and railroad and repair shops, 0.3 per cent.

In the ten groups showing decrease in employment and pay rolls, the largest declines were textiles, 5.3 per cent; transportation, 5.1 per cent; leather products, 4 per cent, and rubber products, 3.9 per cent.

Auto Figures Slump.

"In the textile group," a Labor Department statement said, "the code authority's curtailment of operation in the cotton goods establishments was reflected in decreases of 7.1 per cent in employment and 17.8 per cent in pay rolls. This curtailment also affected operation of plants in the dyeing and finishing textile industry, in which decreases of 6.6 per cent in employment and 17 per cent in pay rolls were reported in June.

"In the transportation group, the decreases were due entirely to the declines in the automobile industry, in which employment fell 7.6 per cent and pay rolls decreased 11.7 per cent.

"A decline in retail trade employment occurred generally in the group of department, variety, limited price stores and mail order houses. Employment in this group declined 1.9 per cent."

PWA Workers Increase.

An increase of more than 100,000 in the number of workers employed on PWA construction projects was reported by the Labor Statistics Bureau. On June 15 direct employment on PWA sites totaled 600,000, it stated. The monthly PWA pay roll was $30,000,000.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration gave employment to 970,000 more workers in June while about 280,000 were employed in the Civilian Conservation Corps and more than 18,000 on projects financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. State governments employed more than 208,000 on road work.

Monthly pay rolls for CCC workers amounted to $12,000,000 in June, and for RFC workers, $1,500,000. State road workers were paid $1,200,000.

Baker Report Opposes Unity For Air Forces

Views of Secretary Dern and Army Command Are Supported.

States has more planes, this country ranked below Japan in fighting planes and on an approximate equality with Great Britain.

The world air powers are estimated to rank: Russia and France, 3,000 planes each; United States (including Army and Navy), 2,800; Japan, 2,500, and Great Britain, 1,400 The announcement in London today that Great Britain would construct 41 additional squadrons of approximately 500 planes, would bring that nation ahead of the United States in air-fighting forces.

It deals extensively with the Army's transportation of the mails during the recent emergency, caused by cancellation of commercial airline mail contracts.

The recommendation against creation of a unified air force along the same general line as Great Britain's Royal Air Force, will bring up anew one of the most controversial isesues in American aviation. The Army general staff has strenously opposed such a move, as has Secretary Dern.

Harry P. Whitney Property Valued at Sixty-two Millions

New York, July 19 (AP).—Harry Payne Whitney, sportsman, left a net estate of $62,808,829.46 when he died October 26, 1930, a transfer tax appraisal filed today showed.

The gross value was placed at $72,740,838.97. It was estimated there had been a shrinkage of about 30 per cent in the value of the estate, owing to the decline in the value of securities.

New York State levied a tax on $9,513,013, Deputy State Tax Commissioner Jacob Manicoff said.

The widow, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, and three children, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Flora Whitney Miller and Barbara Whitney Henry, were the principal beneficiaries.

Lost Boy's Father Is Satisfied Child Was Not Kidnaped

Hartsdale, N. Y., July 19 (AP). With his son Bobby recovering rapidly from near-starvation, Charles H. Connor said tonight he was convinced the baby had been lost in the woods for the entire five days he was missing.

"I am completely satisfied with the verdict of police and medical authorities," Connor told newspapermen, "but I am convinced that the finding of our baby will be a contribution to medical science.

"The baby is rapidly gaining weight and will be able to resume his normal life in ten days or two weeks. He will be able to leave the hospital, I think, within ten days.

"He is definitely healthy and we have no fear for his life now."

At the White Plains Hospital physicians said they were encouraged by Bobby's returning strength and rapid recuperation. He seemed more alert, they said, and took a small quantity of cereal. His condition, nevertheless, still was considered serious.

Army Airmen In Minneapolis On Alaska Hop

1 Ship Returns for Motor Tuning; to Join Others at Minneapolis.

The Army Air Corps expedition to Alaska flew away from Washington yesterday morning, and at 5:10 p. m. had landed at Minneapolis, Minn.

Roaring away from Bolling Field at 10 a. m. while hundreds of Washingtonians gathered for the send-off, nine of the planes reach Dayton, Ohio, for lunch at 12:30 as planned.

The tenth ship, piloted by Capt. Westside Larson, came back to Bolling Field at Anacostia, after flying for about half an hour. Larson was not satisfied with the way his motors were functioning and came back for adjustments. He took off later and planned to join the rest of the party in Minneapolis last night.

Today the fliers expect to cover the short hop to Winnipeg, where they will spend tonight. Tomorrow they expect to push on to Regina, Saskatchewan, for lunch and then fly in the afternoon to Edmonton, Alberta.

Sunday they will fly to Whitehorse in the Yukon, continuing on to Fairbanks if enough daylight hours are left. At this time of the year in Alaska the sun sets at about 10 p. m. and rises at 2 a. m., with several hours of twilight during the night.

Col. Henry Arnold, leader of the expedition, indicated before leaving yesterday that he might take advantage of the long day and try to reach Fairbanks by Sunday night. Otherwise the last leg of the trip between Whitehorse and Fairbanks will be completed Monday.

In Alaska Col. Arnold and his men will set up headquarters at Fairbanks. Three other airplane operating bases will be established for the purpose of reconnaissance and photographic work.

The pilots are expected back in Washington around the first of September. The return route has not been decided upon, but it is understood that it will include a stop at Seattle, and that a speed trial will be made in the bombers on the return jaunt.

Six Planes for Alaska Leave San Francisco

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—In precise formation, six kray-hulled Navy seaplanes arose from Paradise Cove in the bay here today and departed for Dutch Harbor, Alaska, on a massed flight of 7,000 miles from San Diego and return.

Patrol Squadron VP-7, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. James Shoemaker, took off at 8:26 a. m. Its next scheduled stop is Astoria, Oreg. Squadron VP-9, also a six-plane unit, will leave here Saturday.

The two flights left San Diego yesterday and alighted at San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara because of foggy weather. Both squadrons arrived here last night.

Kin of Mrs. Harding Wins Divorce Decree

Marion, Ohio, July 19 (AP).—Mrs. Jean de Wolfe Weil, 26, of Marion, granddaughter of the late Mrs. Warren G. Harding, was granted a divorce from Charles M. Weil, of Los Angeles, Calif., formerly of Cincinnati, in Common Pleas court here today.

The suit, in which Mrs. Weil charged gross neglect and extreme cruelty, was not considered. Custody of their son was granted Mrs. Weil.

Britain to Add 500 Planes to Air Squadrons

Baldwin Notes Failure of Powers to Agree on Disarmament.

London, July 19 (AP).—Outlining plans for British air defense expansion, made necessary, the government believes, by failure of the powers to agree on disarmament, Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons today that 41 new squadrons will be created.

Baldwin, lord president of the council and acting prime minister, explained that 33 of the squadrons will be added to the home force, bringing the total to 85, and that the others will be for service with the fleet abroad.

The program is to be carried out, he said, during the next five years. Since the average squadron is composed of 12 planes, the expansion will mean the addition of nearly 500 planes to carry out the British plan to make this country equal in air strength to any power within striking distance.

Means Total of 1,300.

A prominent air authority said the number of first-line aircraft of Great Britain at the end of 1933 was 840, and that the 41 new squadrons would bring it to about 1,300.

"The rate at which this program can be carried out must depend upon various considerations, including finance, which I can not specify now," said Baldwin. "We hope, however, so to space out the work as not to make an unmanageable addition to the estimates in any one year."

Reviewing the reasons for the added strength, Baldwin said that "ever since the war, successive governments of this country have actively pursued a policy of international disarmament."

"In our efforts to further this policy," he continued, "we have reduced our own armaments to a dangerously low level in the hope others would follow our lead."

Arms Parleys Have Failed.

He then reviewed the efforts to reach a disarmament agreement during the last eight and a half years without a pact being written and said that "serious misgivings have arisen from time to time in many quarters at the increasing accumulation of deficiencies in our defense services, particularly in view of increased expenditures on armaments in many other countries."

The government policy, he said, remains one of international disarmament, and "we have by no means abandoned hope of reaching some limitation."

Keen Interest Shown By Capital in Report

War Department and Army Air Corps officials showed keen interest yesterday in the London announcement that Great Britain would construct 41 squadrons of planes, but declined any comment.

According to the League of Nations armaments yearbook for 1933, Great Britain now has 75 squadrons, of which 44 are bombers, 13 fighters, 10 are army cooperation planes, 7 are flying boats, and 1 squadron is composed of communication planes.

The 75 squadrons comprise 1,434 planes of all types.

The British squadrons are distributed as follows: 52 in Great Britain, 7 in India, 6 in the Middle East, 6 in Iraq, 2 in the Far East, and 1 each in Aden and the Mediterranean. The 52 squadrons in Great Britain total 848 planes, and the 23 squadrons stationed overseas total 286 planes. Aircraft carriers, in addition, carry 300 planes.

While the Navy declined to comment on the British announcement, Secretary Swanson said this country's naval aviation construction was going to be pushed.

The United States Navy now has a thousand planes and will add 1,184 more under the Vinson-Trammell bill to boost the Navy to treaty power by 1942.

Under this program, 225 planes are contemplated in the first year. The remainder will be split approximately in equal portions yearly.

Threats Are Revealed In Coast "Morals" Trial

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP).—Three more witnesses testified today they heard Pat Harman, screen villian, voice threats against Dave Allen, former casting bureau manager, and one of the defendants in the so-called "Hollywood morals" trial.

The witnesses by whose testimony the defense seeks to establish its claim of a "frame-up" on Allen, were Wallace Davis, prominent Los Angeles lawyer; Dr. Robert Lundsen, a dentist, and Allen Garcia, who during his 25 years in the film business has been an actor, director and producer.

Legionnaires Launch Drive To Aid Foulois

Post Resolution Arraigns House Action; Others May Join Move.

An attempt to line up the National strength of the American Legion behind Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, Army Air Corps chief whom a House sub-committee has sought to remove, was begun yesterday by a District of Columbia post of the legion.

Maurice Folsom, commander of the Second Division Post, No. 28, of the District of Columbia department, said that copies of a resolution condemning the Congressional action as a political move, would be broadcast to legionnaires throughout the country. The resolution attacks the House Military Affairs sub-committee for having "refused to make available certain testimony and evidence upon which the alleged charges against Gen. Foulois are based."

"We're going to try to get the legion to take action at its National convention in Miami, said Folsom, who is an employe of the Veteran's Administration. There are about 75 members of Post 28.

Gen. Foulois, who was charged with "dishonesty and incompetency," has requested that he be given all the evidence on which the charges are based before he undertakes to answer them. The sub-committee, though qualifying its "dishonesty" accusation with the statement that "financial dishonesty" was not involved, has turned down his request. The committee justifies this action on the grounds that a revelation of some of the testimony would endanger secrets of National defense.

The resolution protested against "the harassment without just cause of an efficient flying officer and recognized authority in aviation" who has made "many noteworthy contributions to military aeronautics" and is "peculiarly equipped for his present office."

U. S. Coast Guards Free Tibbett Yacht

Opera Star's Schooner Hits Shoal at Stage Harbor.

Chatham, Mass., July 19 (AP).—Lawrence Tibbett, American operatic star, held the center of the stage on his chartered yacht, Rhodos, today, but Coast Guardsmen played the leading role as they pulled the 65-foot auxiliary schooner off a shoal at the entrance to Stage Harbor.

Tibbett and his wife had tried to put into Chatham to pick up their two sons, Richard and Lawrence Ivan, when they ran aground. The boys were taken aboard this morning in the hope that high water would free the boat.

It was not until the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Mojave arrived late this afternoon and, with the aid of high water, freed the Rhodos that the Tibbetts were able to continue their voyage up the coast.

Newton's Fate on Home Loan Board Rests With Roosevelt

Former Congressman Is Named to Post at Behest of Hoover.

On the retiring request of a former President last night hung the continuance in office of Walter Newton, member of the Home Loan Bank board and one-time secretary to former President Hoover.

Mr. Newton's one-year term of office expires Saturday night. By a word or two, radioed from the Hawaii-bound Houston, President Roosevelt can extend his term.

Speculation turned here yesterday on whether he would further honor Mr. Hoover's personal request, and send that word.

No Assurance Received.

White House attaches said last night that no move had been made to appoint anyone else to the job, but they had received no assurance Mr. Newton would be continued in office.

Nomination of President Hoover's secretary as a member of the board last June precipitated a sharp Senate fight that eventually ended in his confirmation.

Progressive Republicans regarded the appointment as a personal affront, and such Democrats as Senator Wheeler, of Montana, and Long, of Louisiana, voiced loud opposition, but in the end Roosevelt was upheld by a vote of 43 to 30.

Leading the fight, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, said:

"While this man was at the White House, all sorts of machinations went on there, to the detriment of what is known as the Progressive Republican wing."

Five so-called Progressives and 24 Democrats joined Norris in the attack.

A former member of the House from Minnesota, Mr. Newton, a few months earlier, had been nominated for a Federal judgeship by President Hoover, but a Democratic Senate withheld confirmation of all Hoover appointments.

It was common knowledge at the time that former President Hoover was seeking to reward a man who went down with him in defeat. Mr. Newton had acceded to Mr. Hoover's wishes that he not retire as Secretary when he wanted to in 1932. It was only after long deliberation that he joined the White House secretariat, just after he had been elected to another term in Congress.

In leaving the White House, Mr. Hoover is said to have made this one request of Mr. Roosevelt that he appoint Mr. Newton to the Home Loan Bank Board. The President honored it. The question now is whether he considers himself bound to name Newton to another term of office.

New Orleans Faces Gambling Clean-up

National Guard Reported Mobilizing for Raids.

New Orleans, La., July 19 (U.P.).—Rumors spread tonight that Senator Huey P. Long was having National Guardsmen mobilized to raid racing handbook and lottery shops in New Orleans. Gov. O. K. Allen was in the city in secret conference with Long. They refused to discuss the reports.

One newspaper said troops would appear in the city and start the raids tomorrow morning.

Gambling houses in the adjoining parishes of Jefferson and St. Bernard closed Monday night when Long warned them in a radio speech. New Orleans gamblers ignored the threat.

Georgetown U. Lists Quake in South America

Fordham and Canadian Seismographs Also Record Tremors.

Recorded in rapid succession, eight severe earth tremors were registered on delicate instruments at Georgetown University, seismologists at that institution reported yesterday.

Starting about 9 a. m. Wednesday, the quakes were recorded so rapidly that the Georgetown seismologists had trouble in separating their records. It was estimated that one of the shocks centered about 2,200 miles from Washington, in the direction of South America.

Another of the quakes, recorded early Wednesday afternoon, appeared to be from a greater distance, Georgetown authorities said. Reactions of local seismograph instruments followed similar reports from laboratories throughout the country, according to the Associated Press.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Fordham University seismologists announced today that an earthquake, described as "very, very severe," was recorded on the seismograph at the university last night.

Victoria, British Columbia, July 19 (AP).—Two earthquakes of unusually long duration and of alarming intensity were recorded with two other severe shocks on the seismograph of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory yesterday, it was announced today.

The first quake started at 11:53 a. m., and the series continued five hours. F. Napier Denison, superintendent, said the epicenter was about 5,000 miles east or west.

At 4:20 p. m. another intense series of quakes began.

NRA Proposes Screen Salary Code Canceling

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Indefinite suspension of motion picture code provisions, dealing with "excessive salaries," was recommended to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson in a report made public yesterday by Sol A. Rosenblatt, division administrator in charge of the code.

Declaring bluntly that "the industry has made no material progress in setting the production side of its house in order," the administrator found, nevertheless, that the much-debated salary provisions of the movie code do not offer satisfactory means to correct unreasonable earnings or to prevent "star raiding."

The report was the outgrowth of a six months' statistical study of motion picture production, distribution and exhibition, ordered by President Roosevelt at the time he suspended the code's salary sections. It disclosed that Hollywood pay checks—though generally far short of press agentry claims—still "have gone beyond any reasonable standard of compensation."

Thus attacking the salary scale and the "star system" as a whole, Mr. Rosenblatt came out as an ardent champion of the artist himself, with the paradoxical statement that, "as a matter of principle, no salary is too high or excessive if the picture produced by the individual receiving the salary meets with unusual public favor, as a result of unique direction or artistry."

His contention was that the "rational standard of compensation" should be based upon a percentage of the gross receipts received from the pictures, that unfair bidding for stars—known as "star raiding"—and other similar abuses have led to the creation of values, largely fictitious, which make salary costs of the motion picture industry out of proportion to other businesses.

The report comprises a comprehensive survey of employer-employe relations, which the administrator found unusually touchy, and a voluminous mass of statistics, which reveal that $350,000 was the top salary paid an actor during 1933, the year studied. All of the salaries are listed as anonymous, in accordance with a pledge of secrecy given the industry.

$350,000 on Small Royalty.

The study disclosed, for the first time, what percentage of box office receipts goes to the star featuring the picture. In the case of the $350,000 salary, the actor received 0.74 per cent; in other words, of every $1 paid for admission, he obtained approximately ¾ of 1 cent.

Second highest sadary went to an "artist"—either actor or actress—and amounted to $296,250, while another actor received $283,654 for third place. The list tapers down, showing 110 receiving $75,000 or more—the salary of President Roosevelt. Of this number 51 were actors, 28 directors, 22 executives, 9 producers, 2 writers and 1 counsel.

In all, the producing-distributing companies paid actors $16,932,128 of a total pay roll of $72,515,878 for the year, which was 41.3 per cent of gross receipts. Partly for this reason, the administrator sets forth, the producing and distributing companies lost $9,320,501 in 1933, forcing numerous capital reorganizations.

Urges Percentage System.

Admitting that any determination of salary schedules in the movie industry is fraught with difficulty, Mr. Rosenblatt suggested the creation of a committee to report on a method whereby artistic talent in the film world would be compensated on the basis of a minimum guarantee plus a percentage of receipts on their pictures.

"Public popularity of artists is a flimsy and perishable product," he declared. "* * * A screen personality may be a hero today and forgotten tomorrow. Moreover, it is difficult for executives to determine with even a reasonable degree of certainty the extent of the contribution made to a motion picture."

Asserting that "jealousy, ambition and other destructive forces play their full part in the present system," he added that "the inflated values which producers have placed upon a limited number of executives and artists have created a vicious circle of bidding for their services. The creatures of the system have turned to plague their masters."

Freezing Custom Scored.

Among present abuses he mentioned the "freezing" of talent, a practice of companies holding actors under contract, though idle, to prevent others using them. This, Mr. Rosenblatt said, has created an unnecessary scarcity of talent and contributes to a lessening in quality of Hollywood pictures. Directly contrary to this practice is the "loaning" of actors for exorbitant amounts, many times their salaries.

"It appears," added Mr. Rosenblatt, not without a trace of humor, "that the services performed by stars and directors are of such a character, and moreover, their temperament is of such a character, that complete contentment is necessary to the proper performance of their work. Their value is apparently nil when they are 'unhappy!'

"The mere offer to a star of substantially increased compensation, upon termination of his existing contract, apparently produces a psychological effect in his work which tends to decrease or to actually destroy the value of his services to his present employer. Thus, in actual operation, a producer can by a mere offer, compel his competitor to increase the compensation of the star * * *"

Remedies Ineffective.

The suspended code provisions would provide, among other things, for the setting up of a system, under which no producer could bid for another's star until with 30 days of the expiration of the contract. Even then the employing producer would have to be given notice of the offer, which would enable him to meet or exceed his rival's figure.

In rejecting this and other such sections, Mr. Rosenblatt also said that efforts of the industry to control practices considered unfair have proved "ineffective." He proposed formulation of the committee, "with or without Government participation," both to work out a method of compensation and a uniform production cost formula, report system, budget schedule, and salary ranges under classifications.

The committee also would report on "whether it would be desirable, practical, proper and legal" to establish a permanent motion picture commission, again with or without Government participation, to set up a broad system of regulation over the whole industry, including "the regulation of salaries in proper cases."

Al Smith And Tammany End 5-Year Fight

"Happy Warrior" Will Aid New Leader Battle in Legislature.

Empire State Building. "We discussed the constitutional amendments for a new form of city government. I found his views were very sound. He expressed the desire to be helpful and I think he'll come along in fine shape. He's going to see me next week for a longer discussion."

Asked if their visit foretold a return to influence once more in Tammany, the 1928 Democratic Presidential condidate asked:

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well, everyone knows your advice has not been sought and has not been given in Tammany's recent years. Does your visit with Dooling mean you'll once more be active and give your council in shaping its policies?"

"Yes," he replied. "I suppose that's right.

"I am anxious to help the young man all I can. I like him, and I think he's going to do a fine job."

The hearing showdown in the Legislature, as a result of today's development, finds a powerful triumvirate in accord on charter revision.

At Albany, Gov. Herbert Lehman said he was behind Smith's program.

Dooling said he likewise was whole-heartedly behind the four-time governor.

The Tammany leader, after his conference next week with Smith, plans to confer with Lehman at the State capital.

"Lehman's news was good to me," Smith said. "I don't plan on going to Albany with Dooling. But they know I'm here and can be reached."

Five Year Break.

It's been nearly five years since the voice of the former Governor has been heeded in Tammany Hall—the early medium of his political rise.

But times have changed.

The Curry crowd is out. Fusion runs the city. Jobs were gone. To build its power anew, Tammany needed Federal patronage.

Under the banner of Dooling, it capitulated to the Roosevelt Administration's desires. Under Dooling's leadership, it has set out to clean its own house, to gain public favor.

One of the first concrete evidences of Dooling's first week of intense activity was his visit with Smith.

The influence of this visit will in all probability also be strongly felt in Tammany's course on municipal politics.

Dooling disclosed he discussed with Smith the question of the election of a comptroller in the fall.

It was made known that Smith advised Dooling to abandon plans for a Tammany candidate and indorse the fusion incumbent, Joseph D. McGoldrick, who was named by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia to fill the gap after the death of W. Arthur Cunningham.

This was viewed by observers as sound strategy, allowing Tammany to concentrate its efforts on the next city-wide campaign.

5 Going to World's Fair Killed in Auto Accident

Bloomington, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Five persons on their way to the world's fair at Chicago were killed today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a truck. All were residents of Chandlerville, Ill.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Vaughan, both 56; Chal N. Armstrong, 48, and his wife, 44, and Doris May French, 14, daughter of Mrs. Armstrong. All were dead when taken out of the wreckage except Armstrong, who died two hours later.

probably twice as much indirect and industrial employment, the administrator estimated.

Meanwhile, Mr. Ickes announced that 12 Army and Navy officers who have been on the emergency detail with the PWA, have been recalled by the War and Navy Departments due to the slackening of administrative work at PWA headquarters. Their work will be carried on by civilian PWA engineers.

July Busy Month.

July has been a busy month for the PWA. Allotments totaling $236,200,658 for 1,510 non-Federal projects and more than $100,000,000 for Federal projects have been approved during the month. Just how much is left of the $400,000,000 made available to the PWA by the President about a month ago has not been revealed, but it is said to be between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

Of yesterday's allotments, 179 are combined loans and grants, and 77 are grants of 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials, the applicants to supply the remainder.

"The applicants have promised that if allotments were granted they would commence work promptly," Mr. Ickes said, "and I intend to hold them to that promise."

Only one thing turned up at the last minute to mar the administrators' vacation. Reports of graft on PWA projects in the Virgin Islands, including the padding of pay rolls, induced him to dispatch an investigator to the islands.

Revocation of allotments totaling $10,908,581.50 previously awarded for construction of 32 non-Federal projects also was announced. The allocations were rescinded, it was said, because the applicants were unable to comply with PWA financial and legal requirements, have decided to abandon their plans for construction or are financing construction locally, or have refused to do anything to put men to work since receiving the allotments.

Among the revocations was $6,877,000, which was to finance construction of the Chicago Outer Drive Bridge. Commissioners of Lincoln and South Parks, to whom the loan-grants were made, were unable to offer security for the loans, a PWA statement said.

"PWA considered this bridge one of the most desirable non-Federal projects for which it has made allotments," the statement added.

The money returned has been reallocated to other projects "on which men will be put to work," it was stated.

Officers Praised for Aid.

Expressing regret at the loss of the Army and Navy officers who have assisted him in PWA administration, Secretary Ickes said:

"The work of these officers has been of tremendous assistance to the PWA. PWA has now found and developed its own personnel to take over this work so that the Army and Navy men may be transferred back to their regular duties, after having again established a record of prompt and able assistance."

The officers have been under the direction of Maj. Robert W. Crawford, who was director of the PWA project division. This division coordinated the efforts of the PWA legal, financial and engineering divisions in passing on the eligibility of applications for allotments from the PWA and also acted as contact between the PWA and applicants.

The eleven others who will return to duty in the War and Navy Departments are Lieut. Comdr. F. J. Gaffney, Lieut. T. F. Darden, Lieut. Comdr. R. G. Tobin, Lieut. Comdr. M. M. Smith, Lieut. Comdr. C. Schaaf, Lieut. Comdr. C. W. Stevension, and Capt. H. A. Skerry, all of the Navy, and Lieut. F. J. Dau, Capt. R. H. Elliot, Lieut. H. Twichell and Capt. H. O. Tunis, of the Army.

Pier Razed, Ship Fired By Blaze in Brooklyn

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 19 (U.P.).—Fire tonight razed a 400-foot pier adjoining the Robins Dry Dock & Repair Co., set fire to an oil tanker and threatened a steamer of the Grace Line before it was brought under control.

The tanker was cut from its moorings and pulled to safety before serious damage was done. Firemen played streams of water on the steamer, moored less than 200 feet from the blazing pier. Scores of fire fighting apparatus and four fire boats fought the blaze.

Greif Workers Petition NRA To Retain Jobs

Employes at Eight Plants Ask End of Attempt to Remove Eagle.

Baltimore, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—With the L. Greif & Bros., Inc., clothing manufacturing firm, holding a temporary injunction forbidding Gen. Hugh S. Johnson from taking away its Blue Eagle, employes of eight of the firm's plants today sent petitions to Washington expressing satisfaction with wages, hours and working conditions and requesting that they be left alone.

The action of the employes at all the plants was said to be a majority and in some cases a unanimous plea that they be "left alone" by NRA, which, through Gen. Johnson, has ordered that the Greif company's Blue Eagle be forfeited unless $100,000 in back wages is paid to employes.

The temporary restraining order granted the firm by United States District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut in Baltimore Thursday was allowed after representation by the firm that the NRA violates the Constitution and that Johnson seeks to establish a boycott against the firm. A hearing of the case is set for Tuesday.

Sentiment Widespread.

Petitions asking "hands off" have been sent by workers of the firm's plants at Westminster, Mount Union, Middleburg and Crisfield, Md.; at Hanover, York and Waynesboro, Pa., and Staunton, Va. Similar action was expected by Fredericksburg, Va., employes.

Officials of the Fredericksburg plant, the G and H Manufacturing Co., declared that its 500 workers, idle since last Wednesday, will return to work tomorrow.

The petition sent to the NRA by the Carroll Mutual Association, an organization of employes of the Carroll Manufacturing Co., Greif subsidiary at Westminster, Md., was typical of those sent by all groups. Signed by 550 workers, it read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby petition Gen. Johnson, NRA administrator, to consider the welfare of employes at the Carroll Manufacturing Co. since we are thoroughly satisfied with wages and hours and working conditions in general.

Staunton Chamber Aid.

"And it is our desire not to be bothered or molested by anyone, but that we be left alone so that we may continue working as before."

The Chamber of Commerce of Staunton, Va., lined up solidly behind other protestants against any move by the Federal Government which might lead to the closing of the two plants of the Staunton manufacturing company, a Greif affiliate.

Chamber of Commerce directors unanimously adopted a resolution setting forth that they are opposed to "any action on the part of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, or other officers of NRA," which would cause the closing of the Staunton manufacturing company plants. These plants employ all American-born labor and natives of Staunton and vicinity, and a recent survey shows that the young women employed by Greif & Brothers in their Staunton plants are the sole support of over 350 families.

Postmaster General James A. Farley has made a number of efforts to calm the storm, and even made a few personal appearances in the Senate arena. He did not succeed. And with old-line and emergency agencies now bulging with more workers than the Government ever employed before at one time, scant hope is offered for further salving the situation at the present time.

Recently, the Postmaster General turned the unpleasant job over to Emil Hurja, one of his right-hand men, who has been trying to make the few remaining jobs at his disposal go the route.

Eyes of patronage malcontents yesterday were turning toward the new housing administration, where, report has it, jobs will go to Democrats. There was talk even of installing Mr. Hurja as "appointment director" of the agency.

The only remaining units where additional jobs may be doled out are the new Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, and the new Communications Commission. But here every effort will be made to continue in office competent employes of predecessor agencies—the Federal Trade Commission's securities division, and the old Federal Radio Commission.

Some Southern Democratic members are writing into headquarters here that their only issues revolve about jobs and their ability to get them. If they are defeated, say these, it will be by Democrats who promise more jobs and who come to Washington with patronage blood in their eyes.

If Republicans make good their claims of 60 additional House seats, and a dissatisfied Democratic element returns to Congress next January, the House may not be in its former receptive mood to Administration measures, Democratic committeemen are warning Administration job dolers.

3,500 Indiana Quarry Strikers Return to Jobs

Bedford, Ind., July 19 (U.P.).—A two-week old striks was settled tonight when official of the Indiana Limestone Corporation agreed to let four American Federation of Labor unions represent employes.

Some 3,500 workers in the quarries and mills were involved in the contest as to whether the A. F. of L. unions or company unions should represent employes in collective bargaining.

Ohio Guard Officer Will Study Disorders

Move to Place Langer's Wife On Job Pushed

Both Assemblies Meet in Defiance of Olson Order.

Earle Sarles removed one of the weak spots in Olson's position by agreeing to take orders from him. National Guardsmen, posted by Langer in an effort to maintain himself in office, were withdrawn by Olson as one of his first acts in office.

Olson immediately ordered them out again, however, as a precaution against violence.

A resolution by the House held that the assembly was convened on its own initiative as well as pursuant to Langer's special session call and declared "a condition of emergency exists."

The right to meet in the face of a proclamation by Olson, revoking Langer's special call, was questioned by some members who refused to participate.

Olson sat in his offices ignoring the special assemblies.

A committee was named to wait on the Governor, announcing the House was ready to hear his message. Presumably, Langer was referred to as Governor.

Bank Scandal Brings French Cabinet Crisis

Tardieu Accuses Herriot of Knowledge of It All the Time.

The dead hand of Serge Stavisky stirred up a storm which threatened to split the ranks of the cabinet wide open.

Former Premier Andre Tardieu, who charged that the party of his fellow-minister, Edouard Herriot, knew about the Stavisky swindles, was represented as insisting that he will stay in the cabinet as long as Herriot does.

The Radical Socialists, Herriot's party, meanwhile demanded that Tardieu be removed.

Special Meeting Called.

The Radical Socialist committee will meet tomorrow night to decide on its future policy, and Herriot has been urging his followers to "sleep over" the matter and refrain from precipitate action.

Tardieu, who previously had enjoyed the aged premier's favor, incurred his anger yesterday with an attack on the Radical Socialist government in testimony before a commission investigating the ramifications of the collapse of Stavisky's Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop.

The premier urged the Cabinet to remain together "for the sake of the country," and said that he would come back if necessary.

If the break comes, it was regarded as likely that he would reorganize his government and hold on until September before calling an election.

Charges Weaken Bourse.

Tardieu's charges that the Radical Socialists knew Stavisky was looting France precipitated the most bitter fight in several months and shook confidence on the bourse. Government bonds and francs were sold freely.

The center of the disturbance was shared by Camille Chautemps, also a former Radical Socialist premier, whom Tardieu flatly accused in his testimony before the commission.

Chautemps was said to take the position that the Radical Socialists should withdraw from the cabinet.

Herriot was said, on the other hand, to be considering resigning from the party, or at least from its executive committee, if necessary, rather than from the cabinet.

Internal Troubles In Germany Loom

lic prosecutor those who persisted in rumor mongering.

With the vacation season here and the weather extremely warm, the Nazi government today was observing a moratorium on public political activity. The press, radio and meeting halls of Germany have become void of political talk.

The political moratorium appeared not to apply to a flood of reports and rumors abroad, which were officially denied.

The only man in high place who continued to engage in political activity during the last two days was Robert Ley, labor front leader, who has been making speeches in praise of Chancellor Hitler.

The general cessation of public activity does not mean, however, the government and the Nazi party are inactive.

The government has a number of pressing problems, including the prospects of dwindling food supplies, finances, unemployment relief and various effects of the heat wave.

Plans for Storm Troop reorganization, it was stated on good authority, are being inspected by officers of the Reichswehr, in order to guard against the Brown Shirt organization ever again attempting to usurp military functions, as allegedly was done in the "Roehm revolt."

When told of a report Hitler was a virtual prisoner of the Reichswehr, one official remarked he is a "strange prisoner." He referred to the chancellor receiving the salute of a cavalry regiment at Zoosen Field.

Johnson Code Changes Spurned by Steel Heads

New York, July 19 (AP).—The board of directors of the American Institute of Steel Construction tonight informed Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, changes he made in a proposed code for the structural steel and fabricating industry were not acceptable.

The institute, which has a membership of 680 firms and employs 50,000 to 75,000 men, said "proposed deletion of the provisions of our code relating to erection work would so emasculate practically all of the articles and schedules in the code as to render impossible any intelligent interpretation, application or administration."

NRA Assailed At Hearing on Donovan Case

Resolution Asks That Dismissal Be Placed Before Tribunal.

Climaxing a heated protest meeting, marked by bitter squabbling between delegates, a resolution asking submission to an impartial tribunal of the case of John L. Donovan, dismissed NRA worker, was adopted last night by representatives of union labor.

Shout of "scabs" and vigorous protests over wording of the resolution marked the session attended by 500 unionists in the Thompson School, Twelfth and L streets, northwest. Insurgent elements demanded a strong resolution for immediate reinstatement of Donovan.

At one point the American Federation of Labor delegation threatened to leave the meeting after an unidentified speaker shouted that anyone favoring the resolution for a trial was a "scab."

Donovan himself was among the speakers and said he had never seen working conditions "as bad as those at the NRA." He charged he was "framed" because of activity as head of the NRA Lodge of the American Federation of Government Employes and added that another union member was about to receive similar treatment.

Attacks on Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's attitude toward his own employes and union labor in general featured the meeting. The NRA union repudiated, however, the picketing of NRA which has been in progress since Donovan's ouster.

The resolution as adopted declared Donovan's dismissal was caused by his zeal in behalf of the union and demanded that the charges against Donovan be considered by "a competent, impartial tribunal." It asked that if the charges are found untrue that Donovan be reinstated.

Gardner Jackson, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Henry Rhine, of the NRA Lodge, acted as cochairmen. Arrangements were in charge of Leander B. Lovell.

Jackson read resolutions from labor groups in 15 States asking that Donovan be rehired.

The meeting was sponsored by the Joint Committee for Unity of Government Employes, representing the American Federation of Government Employes, the National Federation of Federal Employes and independent organized groups.

Two Deny Part In $1,000,000 Swindle Ring

Reno Gambling Barons Refute Testimony of U. S. Witnesses.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Both William J. Graham and James C. McKay were on record today with categorical denials of all the charges against them in Federal Court.

McKay finished a day and half of testimony today. Graham was at the end of his direct examination when court adjourned for the day.

The two men, gambling barons of Reno, Nev., are accused of misusing the mails in a scheme to defraud, involving an alleged international ring which, assertedly, fleeced 42 victims of $1,000,000.

Graham denied all testimony of two main Government witnesses, Noble John Moore and Joseph M. Fuetsch, who connected him with the swindles.

He presented evidence to show that he was in San Francisco when several of the swindles took place.

Moore, confessed swindler, pleaded guilty and testified that in four swindles he handed the victim's money to Graham and later received it back for division, less "15 per cent for fixing." Graham said he saw moore in one of his Reno gambling clubs where he knew him as "Mr. Noble," but denied any transactions between them.

Fuetsch, who was assistant cashier of the Riverside Bank of Reno, called "a right jug" by Moore, testified Graham introduced victims to the bank, guaranteed their accounts and furnished cash so the victims could quickly obtain their money from other places. He said McKay and Graham purchased cashier's checks in furtherance of these transactions.

Graham denied this but admitted buying $100,000 worth of cashiers' checks on one occasion from Jackie Smith, a notorious bunco man who now is dead. He disclaimed any furtherance of a swindle in the deal, however.

from Myers at a New York hospital police raided another apartment and arested Benny Block, 28, wanted in connection with the slaying several months ago of a New York detective and the wounding of another.

Police said Myers was wanted for at least two slayings—that of Madelyne Whelton in Richmond, Va., last January 15, and Frank Lample in Baltimore in January, 1932.

Madelyne Whelton, 23-year-old daughter of a Richmond grocer, was shot and wounded fatally in a hotel there. She died about three hours later. Police launched a search for a man known as Herbert Brooks, believed to be Myers, who, the girl's father said, had been going with her about six months.

Brooks, or Myers, is believed to have been one of the three men in the hotel room with the girl when she was shot. She was taken to a hospital by two men, neither of whom was the man known as Brooks.

News dispatches from Richmond last night stated requisition papers for Davis, also known as Walter Legenza, and Mais, also wanted there on charges of slaying E. M. Huband, Federal Reserve mail truck driver, were approved yesterday at the Governor's office and forwarded to Baltimore. It is not known whether Maryland authorities intend to contest extradition of the men, as both are wanted for other crimes in that State.

Huband was shot in a holdup near the Broad Street Station in Richmond in March. Kauffman, Phillips and Misanis also are named in the indictment.

"Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is morerapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

Potomac Link To Rock Creek Park Assured

Ickes Allocates $165,000 for Thoroughfare Spanning District.

Completion of the long-delayed link between Rock Creek and Potomac Parks was assured yesterday when Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes signed an order allocating $165,000 to the project for expenditure by the National Park Service.

At the same time he approved an allocation of $55,000 for completion of roadways in the Mall, which were started but unfinished out of PWA funds. The Secretary reserved decision, however, on a recommendation that another $280,000 be allocated to the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

The Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway has been under construction for several years as money has been made available by Congress. The project was started by the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks under Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 2d. This office since has been abolished and its functions taken over by the National Capital Parks Office.

The uncompleted link is between the P street and M street bridges. When finished, the parkway will offer a new artery for traffic from Potomac Park to the extreme Northwest section into Maryland and it will be along a scenic route unsurpassed in the Capital.

The District Commissioners plan to assist on this project and have set aside $100,000 from the more than $900,000 made available to the District by the Bureau of Public Roads under the $200,000,000 roads relief appropriation. They are new engaged in building a new P street bridge.

Construction will be done by the National Parks Service, and the District fund will be turned over to this agency, it is said, if the $165,000 is not sufficient.

The District allocations came out of the $5,000,000 appropriated for new roads and trails in National Parks at the last session of Congress. They were recommended to Secretary Ickes by A. E. Demaray, acting director of the National Park Service.

Police Deny Racket Charge

PrinceGeorges Officials Say Fleecing of Motorists Accusation Is False.

Police officers yesterday denied the charge of the Prince Georges County Grand Jury that county and State policemen were racketeering at the expense of Washington and Maryland motorists.

J. J. Crowley, chief of the county's police force, said "the charge is absolutely false as far as my men are concerned. A like denial came from officers of the State police in the county.

The charge of the grand jury was that officers ordered wrecked cars to certain garages, causing motorists greater inconvenience and expense than necessary.

The jury declared: "This practice has become so frequent that we are satisfied that the officers must receive some compensation for working this 'racket.'"

Officers who order a car towed to any but the nearest garage having storage facilities should be dismissed, the grand jury reported and concluded with asking motorists to report when they are victims of the practice.

Holy Name Societies Honor Gibbons Sunday

Leo A. Codd, president of the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies, has invited 15,000 members of the societies to attend solemn exercises commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of James Cardinal Gibbons, late Archbishop of Baltimore, at the Cardinal Gibbons Memorial, Sixteenth street and Park road northwest, Sunday, at 4 p. m.

Codd will present a wreath in behalf of the organization.

Undersecrtary Phillips Starts Maine Vacation

Undersecretary of State William Phillips will leave today for a vacation at a camp in the northern part of Maine, remaining until Secretary Cordell Hull makes plans for his own vacation, so far undetermined.

Asked if he would carry on negotiations with Canadians during his visit to the border, the Undersecretary smilingly replied, "No, nothing but with the fish."

Girl, 2, Following Sister, Critically Injured by Auto

Little Jean Caroline Bachelor, who is in critical condition as result of auto accident. She ran into street near home on Tenth street northwest.

Motorist Released After Police Quiz Him About Mishap.

Running after her older sister, who was trying to save a younger brother from harm, 2-year-old Jean Caroline Bachelor, of 1243 Tenth street northwest, was struck by an automobile and critically injured yesterday.

The child is in Garfield Hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries. The motorist, Franklin C. Jewell, of 3961 Seventh place northwest, was released by Second Precinct police. Inquiry convinced them the accident was unavoidable.

Little Jean toddled into the street following her 9-year-old sister, Annie, who had dashed out to save her 5-year-old brother, Jimmie, from being struck by passing cars. The children's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bachelor.

Maj. Gotwals Will Continue In District Post

Engineer Commissioner to Remain Though Term Expires Today.

The four-year tour of duty as Engineer Commissioner of the District ends for Maj. John C. Gotwals today, but indications are that he will continue in the post for a while.

Selection of a successor to Maj. Gotwals will wait at least until President Roosevelt returns to the White House, it was said there yesterday.

Two other factors may work to keep Maj. Gotwals in his present post for some months. One is that the entire municipal government is under study with a view to making possible changes. A special Senate District sub-committee is to take up that subject in the fall.

Another factor may be Maj. Gotwals' experience in District affairs and the pendency of several matters in which he is playing a major part. These include the new sewage disposal plant and several matters before the Public Utilities Commission, of which he is a member.

Maj. Brehon B. Somervell has been mentioned for the Engineer Commissioner post. Maj. Somervell is on duty at the engineer headquarters here. He formerly was in charge of the Washington Engineer Corps District. Another whose name has been publicly mentioned is Lieut. Col. Daniel I. Sultan. Col. Sultan now is on duty at the Chicago district.

Killing Suspect Awaits Trial

Harrison Kaiser Held in Slaying of Navy Machinist.

Protesting his innocence, Harrison McKinley Kaiser, 44, suspected murderer, was committed to the District Jail yesterday to await trial in the slaying of James F. Morgan, Navy Yard machinist.

Morgan was shot and killed in front of his home, 3629 Jocelyn street northwest, in June, 1932. A two-year search for Kaiser climaxed in Point Pleasant, W. Va., several days ago when he was arrested by Detective Sergt. Jerry Flaherty.

Kaiser, police say, has been identified as the slayer. He was pointed out in a police line-up by a man who witnessed the shooting. A grand jury indictment also names Kaiser as the slayer.

Sergt. Flaherty said the prisoner admits having an argument with Morgan, but denies firing the six shots which took his life. Morgan was secretary of a Navy Yard branch of the machinists' union. Kaiser was discharged from the Navy Yard shortly before the murder.

Trade Board Wants Drunk Drivers Jailed

Letter Sent to Prettyman Pledges Support of Proposal.

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday extended its "fullest cooperation and heartiest approval" to Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, in his efforts to reduce drunken driving in Washington by making offenders subject to jail sentences instead of fines.

"As you no doubt know," said a letter from President Robert V. Fleming to Mr. Prettyman, "the board's traffic committee, under the chairmanship of Wallace B. Robinson, and in cooperation with the superintendent of police, is launching a city-wide safety campaign in an effort to bring to both the driver and the pedestrian individual responsibility in the prevention of the appalling death toll due to traffic accidents."

"The board, through our traffic committee, will be pleased to lend every aid in your efforts and to cooperate to the fullest extent wherever you feel we can be of assistance."

Commenting on the difficulty of getting convictions in drunken driving cases, "because the witnesses have different versions of the degree of drunkenness," Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward N. Welliver declared it is the duty of juries to protect the citizens of the District from drunken driving, and this new ruling may help to effect it. Liquor, of course, is available now to everyone and the natural result is that there are more people driving after having drunk some liquid of alcoholic content. The result is that there are more cases of drunken driving than in the prohibition era."

Prize Dog Dies Of Odd Malady

Writer's Setter Saved Him Twice From Death in Sea.

A valiant struggle for life ended yesterday when Dil Kusha O'Shagstone, prize Irish setter of M. W. Meier, world traveler and free-lance writer, died at 1401 Florida avenue northeast.

Constant companion of Meier since he acquired her in Oakland, Calif., eight years ago, Dil Kusha twice rescued him from death in Pacific waters. She was brought here for exhibition in the Greater National Capital Kennel Club show last April but because she was expecting the stork, was not entered.

More than a month ago Dil Kusha fell ill of a strange malady. Veterinarians and Meier have been in constant attendance ever since.

Meier will have Dil Kusha cremated and take her ashes with him to Seattle. He will keep one puppy, born last spring.

Site Selection For Hospital To Committee

Taxpayers' Group Urges Sanatorium Be Built in Glendale, Md.

Selection of a new site for the adult tuberculosis sanatorium to be constructed with $1,500,000 Congress authorized the Public Works Administration to loan the District for that purpose was turned over to a special committee by the District Commissioners yesterday.

In the meantime, the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association, in a letter delivered yesterday to Secretary Ickes of the Interior Department, urged that the hospital be located at Glendale, Md., rather than in the Blue Ridge Mountains. The letter was in reference to Secretary Ickes' reported opposition to the Glendale site.

Edward A. Dent, District surveyor, was named chairman of the committee. Other members were N. C. Wyeth, municipal architect; Dr. J. W. Peabody, superintendent of the Municipal Tuberculosis Hospital at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest; Walter L. Fowler, assistant corporation counsel, and J. T. Meany, of the District Engineer Department.

Conference Due Today.

A conference between the Commissioners and Mr. Dent is to be held this morning. At that conference the Commissioners are to outline to the committee chairman what has been done officially and formally about the matter as well as what has been done "off the record."

Formal action has not been taken by Secretary Ickes on the request of the Commissioners for the loan for a hospital to be constructed at Glendale, where the District Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium is located. Nonetheless the Public Works Administrator informally has told the Commissioners he would not approve the loan if the hospital was to be built on that site.

A site in the vicinity of Braddock, Md., near Frederick, has been proposed by Secretary Ickes. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen is inclined toward a site in the vicinity of Bluemont, Va. Many who have a few mountain acres have offered their ground to the Commissioners and most have sought to bring political pressure to bear.

A meeting of the full site committee will be called the first of next week, Mr. Dent said. It would report "soon," he said.

Letter of Association.

The letter of the Taxpayers Association, in reference to the Glendale site, said in part:

"This association does not pretend to know the advantages or disadvantages of any particular location for the treatment of tuberculosis, but we have been advised by competent experts, everything considered, Glendale is a suitable location and, on behalf of the taxpayers of Washington, we respectfully request that this proposed hospitals be located there and not in the Blue Ridge Mountains."

It was pointed out that if the hospital is located in the Blue Ridge Mountains, probably 50 or 75 miles from the city, there is bound to be duplication of effort and expense in connection with operating two plants, one at Glendale and one there. The association asked that in event of hearing it be given a chance to be heard.

Ickes Defends Stand.

Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes yesterday defended his objection to the Glendale site for the adult Tuberculosis Hospital and indicated that if the District didn't keep quiet about it there would be no PWA allotment of $1,500,000.

"I have never said I would not approve the allocation unless the site is changed," he said in answer to a question. "But there is no reason why I shouldn't decide on such a matter.

"It's within my rights to rule on the social desirability of a project, and there certainly would be no harm done if the hospital were located in a higher altitude and on a more beautiful site."

Paul F. Dickens, Jr., Is Injured in Crash

Two Drivers Are Charged With Recklessness.

Paul F. Dickens, jr., 3727 Reservoir road northwest, assistant business manager of a theater at Halpine, Md., was painfully injured last night when his car crashed into another car operated by H. W. Blunt, of Gaithersburg, Md., and then turned over three times.

Dickens was taken to the office of Dr. W. S. Murphy at Rockville and treated for a lacerated jaw. Miss Marion Martin, 1900 block of S street northwest, also an official of the theater, a passenger in Dickens' car, escaped injury.

Dickens and Blunt each was charged with reckless driving by County Policeman E. R. Jones and released on bond to appear in August in Montgomery County Police Court at Rockville, Md.

"Conscience" Auto Will Begin Safety Drive Patrol Monday

Car Will Operate on 18-Hour Schedule, Says Major Brown.

The police department's "Voice of Conscience" automobile will patrol downtown streets 16 hours a day, beginning July 30, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said yesterday.

Equipment for the car, to be used as part of the new "safety conscious" campaign, is ready for installation.

Policeman Henry Nestor, the "singing cop," has been suggested as an announcer for the "conscience" auto. His selection, however, has not been confirmed.

Two crews, operating in eight-hour shifts, will man the machine. They probably will be chosen from the Traffic Bureau. One policeman will drive, while the other speaks into a microphone warning violators of minor traffic infractions. A loudspeaker will be mounted on top of the car.

Maj. Brown will be the first official passenger. Traffic experts and newspapermen also will ride.

As another part of the drive, 100 traffic "observers" have been picked from among civic and business leaders to report violations. It was revealed yesterday that 20 women are members of the group. The "observers" were appointed to serve for one year.

Phone Firm's "Depreciation" Held Too High

P. U. C. Charges Figure Is Detriment to Users of Service.

Investigation of the depreciation accounting of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., has been determined upon by the Public Utilities Commission, it was announced yesterday.

The commission believes the company is charging too much depreciation and not allowing District users sufficient for salvage and other things, the ramifications of which mount into big money to the benefit of the various units of the telephone "trust" and to the detriment of the District telephone user.

Anderw Sangster, consulting engineer, may be employed by the commission to investigate the depreciation accounting of the company. Depreciation accounting is important to the telephone user because it represents how thousands of dollars shall be treated on the company's books each month.

Up to U. S. Ruling.

The fight will be taken to the Federal Communications Commission. The commission has charged the company is putting on its books various properties at a value high above the actual value. What users pay is based on valuation. The commission's contention was allowed by the court in the recent case to the extent of the $300,000 claimed by the commission.

The interchange of materials through the intricate machinery established by the telephone companies is a matter which the District commission is not equipped to trace. This phase is to be taken before the Federal Communications Commission.

May Cut Valuation.

How much may be cut from the valuation of the Potomac Electric Power Co., as a result of the commission's determination to ascertain how much useless property was swelling the valuation of the company is entirely problematical commission officials emphasized.

William A. Roberts, people's counsel, issued the following statement:

"The necessity for the inquiry concerning the property and accounts of the Potomac Electric Power Co. has been foreseen for a long time during which it was understood that as the years went by it would be necessary to review the property and operating charges of the company.

"Of course, it is impossible to state the results in advance of the investigations and the following hearing but much good must result from a careful study of the plant and records."

Trustees Get $33,500 Fund

District National Receiver Releases Total on Court Order.

Following a recent court decision, Receiver Norman R. Hamilton of the closed District National Bank yesterday released a total of $33,515.66 to trustees in three bankruptcy cases, representing 100 per cent of the amount the trustees had on deposit in the bank.

Trustees in the cases of Edmund D. Rheem, Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., and Hamilton Hotel Corporation received the payments. The amounts were: Edmund D. Rheem case, $26,342.05; Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., $6,977.03; Hamilton Hotel Corporation $196.58.

Checks were turned over as a result of the court decision holding the trustees in bankruptcy were entitled to all the funds they had on deposit, instead of only the 50 per cent dividend so far paid out to other depositors and creditors of District National Bank.

Abused Children Get Safe Homes

Fathers Lose Girl and Boy by Court Order.

The Board of Public Welfare was given custody of two small children yesterday after Judge Fay Bentley, in Juvenile Court, had heard testimony that the fathers of both failed to provide proper homes for them.

Helen Irene Lewis, 8, daughter of James and Willie Rose Lewis, of Anacostia road northeast, was placed under care of the board after it was testified that her father had whipped her severely, and that she had been seen wandering about the streets late at night.

Walter Fugitt, 3, was placed in custody of the board when neighbors said the boy's stepfather had left him to crawl into the house after a whipping.

Edward Holmes Heads District Cornell Club

Edward Holmes, secretary of the Progressive Building & Loan Association, was elected president of the Cornell Club at its annual meeting yesterday at the University Club. He is a past president of the Cornell clubs of Toledo and St. Louis.

Other officers elected were: August H. Moran, vice president; Mariano H. Ramirez, secretary; Robert A. Philipson, treasurer, and Edward D. Hill, Charles Krey and Paul E. Lesh, directors.

Mrs. Holbruner in Hospital.

Mrs. H. C. Holbruner, 38, of 118 East Brdaley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., was taken to Georgetown Hospital yesterday afternoon after she took poison, according to police.

"Sooky" Has His Day in Court As Wagging Tail Wins Release

Sooky was taken to Police Court yesterday on a charge of nipping a boy. His mistress, Miss Mildred Becker, 3841 Garfield street northwest, is shown appealing to his better nature, and it looks like Sooky has learned his lesson.

FERA Seeking To Issue Stock Minus Liability

Operating Methods May Be Changed Under New Proposal.

Reorganization of operating methods of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration may result from formation of the new District Rehabilitation Corporation, it was learned yesterday.

FERA and District legal experts are trying to find a legal status for a corporation which shall issue stock, but which shall shield its stockholders from financial responsibility.

Whether this can be done under the corporation laws of any State has not been determined.

Relief officials desire to form a stock-issuing corporation. The shares would be deposited with FERA as collateral for moneys the Federal Government would advance. That would make the advances loans on security.

The Corporation Trust Co., of Delaware, which has been selected as agents of the proposed new District corporation, will confer with relief officials today.

Seventy Pass U.S.C.G. Tests

W. K. Thompson, Jr., D.C., Heads List; 6 Others in Area Win.

W. K. Thompson, jr., of 2737 Devonshire place northwest, led candidates throughout the United States in passing examinations for entrance to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., the Treasury Department announced yesterday.

Thompson is the son of Commander W. K. Thompson, sr., U. S. C. G., at present on duty in Washington.

Of the 70 successful candidates, seven were from the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

These include J. A. Hyslop, of Silver Spring, Md.; F. H. Hobson, of 1535 Monroe street northwest; B. H. Schwartz, of 32 Rhode Island avenue northwest; Norman B. Weed, of 1810 Carney street northeast; J. B. West, of 2107 S street northwest; E. R. Salisbury, of East Falls Church, Va., and Thompson.

The group will report to the academy late in the summer. After completing the four-year course, cadets are graduated with the rank of ensign.

Play to Lure Cash For Yacht Racing

Arts Club Players Will Sponsor Benefit.

Plans are nearing completion for the President's Cup Regatta benefit performance to be given by the Arts Club Players at 8:30 p. m., August 1 in the garden of the Joseph Leiter mansion at Dupont Circle.

Harold A. Long, chairman of the drama committee, and William J. Deming, vice president of the Arts Club, are sponsoring the benefit to help the regatta committee raise funds for the event. The play to be given is the "Queen's Gambit," written by Mrs. Leslie Frank.

The cast is composed of well-known Arts Club performers under direction of Mrs. William J. Peters who directed the 1934 edition of the Bal Boheme. The garden is being transformed into a legitimate theater insofar as possible by Hugo inden, noted scenic artist of Dusseldorf, Germany.

The regatta this year will be held on September 20-23 and will attract noted racers from all over the country. Tickets for the benefit are on sale at Dorsey Concert Bureau in Droop's Music House, Thirteenth and G streets northwest.

Fox Terrier, Charged With Nipping Boy, Proves Own Case.

"Woof!" said exhibit "A" in Police Court yesterday.

And whatever that "woof" was intended to mean, it won a moral victory before Judge Ralph Given. Every dog has his day—but not often in court. Yesterday was "Sooky's" day and he made the most of it.

"Sooky" is a wire-haired fox terrier. He was the principal witness and exhibit "A" in defense of his master, Julius Becker, of 3841 Garfield street northwest.

Becker was charged with "harboring a vicious and dangerous animal." So they brought "Sooky" before the bar.

Donald Bright, 12-year-old newsboy, charged that "Sooky" bit him. The boy said he was near the Becker home when the dog attacked. He was nipped on the side, Donald said.

Then in came "Sooky," his stubby tail wagging violently. One short leap and he was on the witness stand. Another short leap and he was on the counsel table. He quickly made friends at the reporters' bench and almost forgot what he had come for.

But Becker's attorney insisted he get down to facts, and the pup once more resumed the witness stand.

"Did you bite this boy?"

"Woof," was the reply, emphasized by a slightly cocked ear.

That apparently cinched the lawyer's case. Judge Given said "Sooky" was to be placed on probation pending his future behavior. His past record is clean and, as everybody knows, a dog is entitled to his first bite. Becker said Donald teased "Sooky" into the offense.

$15,405,000 Paid Here on Insurance

Capital Ranks 12th in Death Indemnities.

Life insurance companies paid Washington policyholders and beneficiaries $15,405,000 in 1933, according to the National Underwriter, weekly insurance newspaper. Washington ranked twelfth among American cities in total payments.

The largest individual payment here was $245,000, the name of the beneficiaries being withheld. Other large payments were made on policies held by Harry M. O'Brien, $61,000; Sol Herzog, $56,000; David E. Cummins, $42,500, and William N. Doak, former Secretary of Labor, $34,000.

Total payments throughout the United States last year amounted to $3,465,224,187. In the last five years a total of $14,764,997,807 has been paid.

Building Code Held Violated On White House

Officials Defend Action as Invited Bids Cut Time of Work.

Charging violation of the construction code and Governmental unfairness, several contractors yesterday protested against specifications for repairing and altering the White House and Executive Offices being given out to six "invited" contractors and withheld from all others.

Conceding that the procedure is unusual, A. E. Demaray and John L. Nagle defended the policy on the ground that it will save 14 in days in making alterations. Demaray is acitng director of the National Park Service, which will let the contract, and Nagle is construction engineer.

Bids will be opened Tuesday. The six contractors were invited to Nagle's office Friday and were informed of the project.

It was to be a hurry-up job, they were told. Only 100 working days would be allowed in order to cause the President as little inconvenience as possible. He is scheduled to return in about three weeks.

The specifications will be ready today or tomorrow and may be obtained by any contractor interested in entering a bid. Since bids must be turned in by Tuesday and as it usually takes a week to figure such a job, the protesting contractors say it will be impossible for them to enter bids.

The situation, which is almost without parallel here, is in compliance with the law, both Demaray and Nagle said. Bids will be accepted from all contractors, invited or otherwise.

Draftsmen have been working nights on the specifications, Nagle said, so urgent is the project. Had the bit-by-bit system of giving them out not been adopted, with the National Park Servise waiting until they were completed and then throwing bidding open to all, a start on the White House work would have been delayed several weeks, he stated.

Identities of the six contractors and their six alternates were not disclosed. The protesting parties asked that their names be not revealed.

Student Driver Hurts 4 in Car

U. S. Employe Hysterical After Her New Auto Hits Another.

After a new car she was learning to drive collided with another machine, injuring four persons, yesterday afternoon at Western avenue and River road, near the District line, Miss Edith Morrow, 50, employe of the Veterans Administration, became hysterical at the Eighth Precinct police station and was taken to Georgetown Hospital.

Miss Morrow, accompanied by Clifford Klein, of 617 Kenyon street northwest, an instructor, was driving her car on Western avenue when it collided with one driven by Mrs. Constance Snow, 35, wife of Andrew J. Snow, 3929 Jenifer street northwest.

The Snow car traveled 30 feet and turned over. Those injured, all occupants of it, were Barbara Snow, 11, cuts on wrist; Mrs. Helen Bollinger, of 3723 Van Ness street northwest, scalp lacerations; her sons, Robert Bollinger, 15, scalp lacerations, and Howard Bollinger, 12, cuts on left elbow. Barbara Snow was treated by Dr. Karl Corley, of Chevy Chase. The others were taken to Georgetown Hospital.

Insurance Club Holds Second Monthly Outing

The Insurance Club of Washington held its second summer monthly outing at the Kenwood Golf Club Wednesday. A "blind bogey" golf tournament and a bridge tournament featured the afternoon's activities. In the evening a dinner was held at the clubhouse, which was presided over by President Edward S. Brashears.

E. Ralph Dowling, secretary of the Insurance Club, had charge of arrangements.

U.S. Sponsors Safer Planes For Amateurs

$100,000 Civil Aviation Fund to Promote Private Flying.

Federal recognition of the need for a low-priced airplane for general public use was assured yesterday with the announcement of Eugene L. Vidal, director of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce, that $100,000 appropriated by Congress for development of civil aviation, will be used in organization of a development section to foster safer flying equipment.

Declaring that the Department of Commerce has spent millions in the past on aids to air navigation for commercial aviation, but has contributed little toward increasing safety in the plane itself, Vidal stated that authority to engage in such a program was given by the Secretary of Commerce in the closing days of the session which appropriated $1,000,000 for use by the President in furthering civil and military aviation.

"In direct contrast to the growth of scheduled air transport, the private use of aircraft has been retrogressing," Vidal said, "and there has been a corresponding lag in development work on equipment suitable for the private owner.

"For commercial use, airplanes safe in the hands of an expert pilot are entirely satisfactory, but for the private owner it is essential that safe operation in the hands of a novice pilot be attained," he continued.

"It is the intention of the Bureau of Air Commerce to assist the industry where possible in application of safety principles to the production of airplanes for the average citizen who wishes to fly, but has not the time or the desire to become an expert pilot."

The development section will take over supervision of the acquisition by the Department of Commerce of 25 small, two-seated, inexpensive airplanes to be used by aeronautical inspectors, bids for which will be opened August 27, Vidal said.

John H. Geisse, of Madison, Wis., present chief of the manufacturing inspection service of the department, has been selected as chief of the new development unit, Vidal announced. An aeronautical engineer for the past 17 years, Geisse has been with the Bureau of Air Commerce since June, 1933.

Chest Boosters Plan Drive

Laud Work of Kaufman, Chief of Unit, for Organization.

Fifty area and division chairmen and secretaries of the metropolitan unit of the Community Chest attended a breakfast meeting at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday to hear plans for the November fund-raising campaign.

Allen T. Burns, executive director of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., told the assembly there were signs of unusual success throughout the country.

There were words of praise from every speaker for the work of Joseph D. Kaufman, chairman of the unit, which has progressed further in its early organization than any other unit in the District. Among those who delivered brief talks were Clarence Phelps Dodge, president of the Chest; H. L. Rust, jr., campaign chairman, and Mr. Kaufman.

Wholesale Liquor Salesmen Organize

Organization of the Alcoholic Beverage Solicitors Association, Inc., composed of wholesale liquor salesmen, was announced last night. The purpose is to seek closer cooperation between the wholesaler, retailer and salesmen.

Temporary officers are John N. Thomas, chairman; P. J. Hagen, secretary-treasurer. The committee on by-laws, composed of G. F. Mitchell, John J. Clarkson, Earnest Goldberg, Herbert J. Herrman and R. C. Winchester, will meet tonight at the Harrington Hotel and prepare a report to be submitted at a meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. at 402 H street northwest.

Charity Group To Attend Mass

33 Conferences to Send Representatives to Sunday Meeting.

Members of the St. Vincent De Paul Society of the District will be present at 8 o'clock mass at St. Paul's Church, Fifteenth and V streets northwest, Sunday, which is the Feast Day of St. Vincent De Paul. Thirty-three city conferences of the society, a Catholic charity order founded in 1850 to care for the poor and oppressed, will be represented when members receive Holy Communion in a body.

Mass will be said by the Rev. C. J. Dacey, rector of St. Paul Church, whose sermon will describe the life of the Saint and the formation of the organization, said to be the oldest religious charity in the world.

The quarterly meeting of the society will be held at Sholl's Cafe, 1219 G street northwest, immediately after the service. George J. Cleary, president of the Particular Council of the organization, will preside, assisted by Secretaries Arthur Farquhar and John H. Pellen.

Principal speaker will be the Rev. Joseph V. Buckley, pastor of St. Xavier Church. Mrs. George H. O'Connor, representative of the Ladies of Charity, and Miss Cecilia Shea, of the Bureau of Charities, also will talk.

The meeting will hear reports from each conference and from the special works committee, headed by John C. Bowen, which dispenses charity in penal institutions throughout the city.

Execution Stay Asked For Colorado Brothers

Denver, July 19 (AP).—A petition for a stay of execution, expected to halt plans for a double execution tomorrow in Colorado's lethal gas chamber, was filed in the supreme court today on behalf of Louis and John Pacheco, brothers condemned for the killing of Clifford Smith, Wellington, Colo., rancher.

L. R. Temple, defense attorney, asked for 90 days in which to file an appeal. He said that until yesterday friends and relatives of the Pachecos had been unable to raise funds to finance the appeal.

In North Dakota.

North Dakota's imbroglio, resulting from the conflicting orders of two governors, might be humorous if less serious issues were at stake. Gov. Langer has been seeking support from the National Guard and the Legislature in a desperate effort to avoid deposition, in spite of the State Supreme Court's ruling that he is ineligible to retain his post. Lieut. Gov. Olson, who took the oath of office following Langer's conviction on a charge of soliciting political funds from Federal employes, has been recognized as chief executive by the supreme court, but he is having a difficult time to establish his authority.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the case is the popularity of the convicted Governor. He is reported to have overwhelming support in the Legislature. In spite of his conviction, he was renominated as the Republican candidate for Governor by a huge majority. Before the law he is ineligible to hold a high official position, but in the eyes of North Dakota he still appears something of a hero.

No doubt it is this popular indorsement which led Gov. Langer to believe that he could defy the law and nullify the edicts of the State's highest tribunal through military force. By their attitude the people have openly encouraged revolution in North Dakota. The underlying issue of respect for constituted authority has been waived aside.

It is this aspect of the fracas at Bismarck which gives cause for serious thought. Respect for judicial decisions has been weakened in many parts of the country. Administrative officials have been encouraged to believe that they are all powerful, so long as they can secure a popular support for their policies. The controversy as to who is Governor of North Dakota appears to be in process of settlement. But the larger issue of upholding the fundamental law and the institutions which have grown up under it against the encroachments of ambitious individuals and groups is by no means solved. Nor will it be until Washington sets a scrupulous example to the State capitals.

Another Breach Of Contract.

After the Young Plan was adopted the Bank for International Settlements became the agency for collecting and transferring interest on Dawes and Young bonds. On July 15, following its announcement of a suspension of transfers on these bonds, the German Government failed to provide foreign exchange to meet monthly payments.

Consequently the B. I. S., acting on behalf of trustees for the Dawes loan, has requested the Reichsbank to attach certain customs and internal revenue receipts pledged specifically as a guarantee of payment. The German government claims that payment has been made in marks, and protests against impounding of receipts "which would place in jeopardy its vital interests." The Reichsbank has been ordered, therefore, to disregard the trustee request, and the agreement has been repudiated.

Germany's insistence upon inclusion of the Dawes and Young bonds within the general transfer moratorium has been accepted as a challenge by many, who are prepared to concede Germany's inability to continue payments on a large proportion of her external indebtedness. The reparations bonds fall in a special category as obligations of the Reich issued in accordance with international agreements of a particularly binding character. In view of this fact and considering the modest sums required to cover interest, Germany's action seems to be evidence of bad faith, rather than involuntary default.

Through sinking fund redemptions, repurchase, and as a result of currency depreciation in creditor countries, the nominal principal represented by both issues has already been sharply reduced. As a result, monthly payments on the Dawes loan amount at present to a sum only slightly in excess of 4,000,000 marks. The interest on the Young bonds—against which no revenues are pledged—totals about 6,300,000 marks monthly. The contention of the Government that it can not transfer these small sums is open to doubt, especially since the British Government has forced a settlement in full, with other European creditor countries preparing to take similar action.

This repudiation of the terms of specially-guaranteed obligations of the Reich, combined with the discriminatory treatment of American holders of reparations bonds, deals another severe blow to the confidence of investors. It is one that will not soon be forgotten and may cost Germany much more in the future than the sacrifice required to continue making payments on these loans.

This latest breach of contract also emphasizes the inadequacy of special guarantees when a borrowing government refuses to fulfill the terms of its contract. Short of forcible collection following invasion—a method abhorrent as well as often ineffective—foreign creditors have no redress except when they are in a position to resort to retaliation in kind. That, too, is a proceeding that in the long run injures creditor as well as debtor countries.

After The Strike.

Four days are quite enough to make or break a general strike, and that length of time has proved more than ample to bring collapse to the dangerous social experiment attempted in San Francisco. The manifestation, as a matter of fact, was disintegrating under the influence of commonsense before the general strike committee voted by a narrow majority to bring it to a close.

There will be much discussion as to whether this strike was good or bad labor tactics; a savage attempt to hold up a great community, or a justifiable protest against abuses which needed graphic emphasis in order to secure their elimination. Full evidence to judge those questions is not yet available. But what is certain is that San Francisco kept its head during a very trying period.

The civil and military authorities are to be congratulated on the fact that these four days passed without bloodshed, and with only minor attacks on the provocative Communist agitators, for which outraged labor elements are reported to have been responsible. The strike committee and the participating unions are to be commended for handling their tremendous protest with discipline, restraint, and a great deal of dignity. The employers involved in the dispute have apparently sought earnestly this week to forward a reasonable settlement of the underlying issues. And the patience and good humor of the unfortunate public have been exemplary.

But highest praise should perhaps be reserved for the conduct of the Communists. Their shrieking, shouting, epileptic tactics have so thoroughly discredited that fanatic rabble of trouble-makers that its reemergence as a factor of importance in other industrial disputes is scarcely probable. Without the object lesson of their noisy futility provided by San Francisco, the Communist influence in labor circles might have become less negligible. This is scarcely likely now.

And it will be still less likely if, with the strike over, the reasonable employers and the reasonable workers of San Francisco sit down to work out a cooperative settlement of the grievances, abuses and injustices which led to the flare-up. Between the lunatic fringes on extreme left and extreme right stand the great majority who have everything to lose and nothing to gain by the sedulous exploitation of class war. The good sense shown in San Francisco the last few days gives promise that the intelligent leadership of the community will insist that bygones be bygones, and will see to it that no excuse is left for recurrence of an outburst which might so easily have brought ruin in its train.

Where The Old Deal Wins.

In an article in the current American Magazine, H. G. Wells asserts that the country is as yet unprepared for the Administration's great social effort, in which he finds much that is admirable as a result of inquiry on the scene. As proof of this lack of preparation, he cites the fact that we have "no civil service class, with the necessary morale for the carrying out of this vast proposition."

Despite the fact that the objectives of the Roosevelt Administration fall far short of the ambitious aspirations of Mr. Wells, he sees that even its limited aims depend for success upon the development of a conscientious and competent body of civil servants. Resistance to spoilsmen has never been so imperative as under existing conditions, with the Government engaged in social experiments involving huge public disbursements as well as a high degree of technical knowledge.

Under these circumstances it is ironic that Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, should feel it imperative to state that there is "an atmosphere of cynical indifference on the part of National authorities who should be standing as bulwarks of the merit system." His further assertion that "spoilsmen are undermining the whole structure of the Federal civil service" is borne out by the Administration's appointment of 89,000 persons outside the classified service. It is also shown by the methods applied in the selection of candidates for office, and in the parceling out of patronage among local political groups.

On his first day in office, for instance, the new head of Tammany Hall announced that he had already distributed a score or so of Federal positions. He added that "of recent months, Tammany's share of Federal jobs has been exceedingly slim." So Mr. Dooling's modest beginning is no doubt a mere foretaste of the harvest to be garnered at a later date by a slightly whitewashed Tammany, under a leadership acceptable to the Postmaster General.

While such methods prevail, there is not even a possibility of preparing for the great experiments which Mr. Wells envisages as the work of the future. And, more to the point, they serve to cast ridicule on the limited "economic planning" to which the Administration has set its hand.

Once More The Goat.

Just as Washingtonians were welcoming some slight amelioration from the temperatures of early summer, our local winter climate has been cited as a reasonable cause for separation in a prominent divorce suit.

Washington weather has always suffered much at the hands of its critics, one school complaining that it is unpleasantly raw for one-half of the year, and the other school asserting that it is unendurably hot throughout the other half. These criticisms have of late become respectively colder and hotter. And here at length is Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo—after a long meteorological test, broken of course, but dating from March 4, 1913—who rests a portion of her plea for the legal dissolution of her marriage upon the atmospheric condition of the lower Potomac Valley.

Many would like to see these assaults against our weather ended, but we do not believe they can be. The dog was given its bad name at a now too distant date. We recall the story that George Washington, after the winter of suffering at Valley Forge, sought a permanent seat of government where the thermometer would register in the upper levels, and succeeded beyond expectations. But that is legendary and must be taken with a lump of ice.

A Test Case For NRA.

The public is not in a position to pass judgment upon the merits of the conflicts that inevitably arise between the NRA and individual concerns which refuse to obey official orders or comply with code provisions. However, it is only through such struggles that the limits of authority of the Government and the rights of the individual under the recovery law can be defined.

The threat to deprive the Greif Company of its "Blue Eagle," for example, because it refused to obey an order of the code authority prescribing wages above the minimum for certain employes, will afford a much needed test of the wage-fixing powers of the recovery administration. The company has complied with the provisions relating to payment of minimum wages, but it does not consider itself legally bound to pay higher than minimum rates. Therefore, it has secured an injunction temporarily restraining the NRA and code officials from attempting to force it to obey the order, hoping that no action will be taken to deprive it of the "Blue Eagle" until the case has been heard on its merits.

As the injunction will not affect anyone outside the State of Maryland, its effect of course is largely moral. However, it has brought the issue of the Constitutionality of wage fixing squarely to public attention before the code authority had actually tried to punish the recalcitrant.

A committee of the American Bar Association has recently called attention to the multiplicity of rules and regulations having the force of law which have followed passage of the recovery act and other emergency legislation. As the lawyers stated, the Constitutional rights of individuals are jeopardized by the existence of a vast mass of laws and Executive decrees which can not be digested and often are not even known to exist.

When administrative agencies proceed to impose punishments for alleged violation of their orders, the offender is in a peculiarly helpless position. If, for example, the Greif Company were to be deprived of its "Blue Eagle" prior to determination of its legal right to disobey the code authority's command, the protection afforded it against unwarranted punishment would not save it from losses which might throw many workers out of employment.

The sooner the Constitutional issues are brought before the courts of the country for determination, the fewer the chances will be for that insidious undermining of Constitutionally guaranteed rights which is undoubtedly possible under the recovery legislation.

"The Merchant" in Venice.

Max Reinhardt's open-air presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" in the city where Shakespeare laid its scene seems to have been less of a success for the author than for the producer. Dispatches from the critics present lament the impediments affecting both the German impresario and the Italian cast in interpreting this English classic.

These criticisms again demonstrate what every student of Shakespeare has long known: that, universal in the poetic sense, he remains essentially Anglo-Saxon in the dramatic. "Julius Caesar" is as English as if its Forum were Cheapside. But the Venetian failure seems to have still other roots.

Reinhardt, after all, remains a stage carpenter—probably the most wonderful stage carpenter that ever lived, but always a maker of pageants. And, except in some of the chronicle-plays, Shakespeare not only never lends himself to pageant gracefully, but is always more poet than dramatist. "The Miracle" was a triumph for Reinhardt and will remain a lasting monument to his technique. But Shakespeare's best monument is the English text of Shakespeare. His plays are not hurt by modernistic staging and costuming. They may be injured by the labored realism of an exotic setting.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world. That's the trouble with it.

Letters to the Editor

"Earth God Gave to Man."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The greatest of all questions, ever with us, is the land question. It has appealed to philosophers in all ages. The name of Lincoln is intimately associated with patriotic celebrations. Said he in reference to the land question: "The land, the earth God gave to man for his home, sustenance and support, should never be the possession of any man, corporation or unfriendly government, any more than air or water, if as much."

It may be of interest to quote other Americans on this question as follows: "Every man, as an inhabitant of the earth, is a joint proprietor of it in its natural state."—Thomas Paine. "I set out on this ground, which I suppose to be self-evident, that the earth belongs in usufruct to the living; that the dead have neither power nor rights over it."—Thomas Jefferson. "He who has no clear inherent right to live somewhere has no right to live at all."—Horace Greeley. "Of course, whilst another man has no land, my title to mine, your title to yours, is at once vitiated."—R. W. Emerson.

"Those who say it would be unjust for the people to resume their natural rights in the land without compensating present holders, confound right and wrong as flagrantly as did they who held it a crime in the slave to run away without first paying his owner his market value. . . . The earth is an entailed estate—entailed upon all the generations of the children of men, by a deed written in the constitution of Nature, a deed that no human proceedings can bar, and no prescription determine."—Henry George.

Our Sidewalks and Others.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad that some attention is finally being called to the disgusting condition of Washington parks and streets, littered as they constantly are with papers, trash and filth.

A recent letter to The Post signed M. A. R. S., makes the excellent suggestion that instead of spending $500,000 to clean the outside of the Monument the money be expended in cleaning up streets and sidewalks which badly need it. They not only should be cleaned, but the public should be trained to keep them clean.

Nobody in Europe thinks of dropping papers and trash in public places. Let him try it, and a dozen citizens, not counting policemen, will rush to warn him. I find that even in New York City, with ten times the congestion of Washington, the streets are clean and neat by comparison. This is doubtless largely due to the absence of parked automobiles, which makes cleaning them an easier matter; but apparently the habits of the general public are better in this important respect.

Why is it only in the Nation's Capital that slovenly individuals are allowed to litter the streets and sidewalks and parks unrestrained with all sorts of papers and trash, so that, as one correspondent recently wrote to The Post, he wondered if Washington was the most beautiful city in the world or the dirtiest? Are there no ordinances against these bad public habits? If so, why are they not enforced? The Monument grounds after the Fourth of July crowd, were a disgrace to any civilized nation. I suggest that before another gathering, loud-speakers be installed and the crowd ordered to pick up their own newspapers and litter.

The Martians' Magic Cure.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many months ago this writer told of strife to come in industry and business with labor. The wage earner has not only suffered a decrease in income, but is also bearing the brunt of increased taxation which further decreases his purchasing power. Each day brings that prophecy of trouble and strife closer and more poignant, as witness the strikes of labor in California, Washington, Wisconsin, Minnesota and several Southern States.

Until the Administration will awaken to the lack of purchasing power in the hands of the consumer, we will see recovery retarded. We must have a sufficient amount of purchasing power distributed among all consumers in order to create a demand on industry and business, before we can even hope for a normal prosperity.

Congress or the President by the simple expedient of authorizing an issue of Treasury orders (checks) in payment of Governmental pay rolls, public works, relief of the farmer and the needy poor, could free an abundance of our currency now lying idle in frozen assets, savings and safe deposit, without money cost to the Government and the tax payer, and without loss or injury to anyone.

Concurrent with the authorization of an issue of Treasury orders, Congress or the President could issue a National mandate to the banks to honor said checks or orders as bank deposit money subject to check or to cash them outright, thus allowing the recipients the use of currency now in existence and in that manner keep it continuously moving in the business world.

It is time for business men, farmers and workers to make a concerted and mandatory demand on the Administration that experiments and brainstorms be brought to a halt and constructive action taken, which would restore prosperity and secure economic safety and well-being for our 125,000,000 citizens.

AM. SOCIETY OF MARTIANS,
JOSEPH BRENNAN, Vice Pres.

Stepping on Toes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In President Roosevelt's recent radio address he said, "In the working out of a great National program which seeks the primary good of the greater number it is true that the toes of some people are being stepped on and are going to be stepped on."

It seems a Democrat has been stepped on first in no less a personage than a former candidate for President and former Ambassador to England. In defending the "Old Order" the letter says, "The trouble lay not with the system, but with the men and conditions which they created and under which men drunk with the desire for easy money cast off all restraint and forgot the rules of prudence and some of the demands of honor also."

It certainly would have been gratifying if he had named some of these men, and would not the same men do the same thing again if laws had not been passed by the New Dealers to restrain them from so doing? It is true some Democrats have the interests of monopoly at heart. It is also true some Republicans are interested in the welfare of the rank and file, or the whole American people.

Noisy Trucks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to bring to your attention the noise caused by a fleet of trucks loaded with sand and gravel which keeps the residents of Michigan avenue and Queens Chapel road northeast awake at night. These heavy, loaded trucks run night and day and at night it is impossible to sleep if you happen to live on one of these streets.

Having read your article "In Defense of Quiet," I thought perhaps something could be done about this nuisance.

Is there no law prohibiting the owner of a fleet of these huge trucks from running them nearly every night? Perhaps the Michigan Park Citizens Association could take this up. J. A. KYNTE.

As Others See It

Famine in Russia.

(From the New York Times.)

Our Moscow correspondent reported on Friday that well-informed circles in Soviet Russia estimate this year's grain crop at 70 per cent of the 1933 harvest. This means that Russia is facing a winter and spring of famine. Stalin at the recent Communist congress claimed for the bumper 1933 crop an increase of 30 per cent over 1932. If this summer brings a decline of 30 per cent from last year, Russia's food supply is 10 per cent below that of 1932. There died in Soviet Russia in the winter of 1932-33 a minimum of 6,000,000 people by starvation, typhus and other diseases.

Once more the Kremlin assails the peasant kulaks for imperiling the nation's food. The kulak has been "liquidated" several times since 1930, but in 1934 he is once more in the field plotting to starve out the proletarian regime. To any one familiar with the tone of Soviet utterances this is obviously a way of breaking the bad news.

Mr. Davis in his University of Virginia speech said that one of the achievements of capitalism which can not be denied is that it has fed and housed and warmed and clothed a population in the Western World three or four times as large as when the industrial revolution began. Today we may not be proud of the fact that a considerable part of that population is being fed from public relief. But the food is there, from whatever source derived. Starvation, except as a microscopic fraction due to human mischance, does not exist. The health of the people has been fully maintained. Such is the record of the old order, at the very moment when many people find that it has "failed."

The only existing alternative to it is the new order in Soviet Russia; and there in the space of 15 years there have been two devastating famines, with a third bad winter coming. They have not been acts of God but man-made. Drought has played but a small part. The famine of 1921-22 was the result of a planting strike by the peasants in protest against the grain confiscations under military communism. Lenin surrendered, but too late to prevent the loss of perhaps 10,000,000 lives. The starvation times of 1932-33 were precipitated by Stalin's collectivization drive. The peasants were herded into the collective farms, but they first killed off their cattle, and they have been halfhearted in sowing and cultivating and harvesting. Millions of them are in sullen revolt.

One often hears it said that communism would never do for this country, though "it seems to have worked well in Russia." A system can hardly be said to have worked well which in the space of 15 years has failed no less than three times in the elementary duty of providing the people with bread—even at half rations—at a cost of probably more than a score of million lives.

The Post Impressionist

Sailors Ashore.

Postoffice, Friday.

NEWS dispatches from Pueblo report that deeply land-locked Colorado has been invaded by sea-gulls. The citizens of the Silver State are wondering how these creatures of the wave and coast ever got so far inland.

May we venture to tell our Rocky Mountain cousins that this phenomenon is not quite unique? And that to some countries almost as far from the ocean as Colorado sea-gulls make long visits annually?

Well, to one country that we know of, anyhow. Anyhow, one that is far enough from salt water to make such visits remarkable. Or, anyhow, to one part of that country.

* * *

Every summer—and if we remember rightly, well into September—there are far more sea-gulls passing their vacations on and along the Lake of Geneva than there are delegates arriving for the sessions of the League of Nations' Assembly.

* * *

All Geneva's bird and fowl life is sagacious. The wild ducks of its lake are extremely wise in their generation. A strictly enforced law forbids shooting them west of an imaginary line theoretically drawn from shore to shore at the city's eastern bounds. Regiments of those ducks often swim so close to it that their foremost rank marks the line—where they abruptly pause, and whence they wheel westward.

But the gulls, protected wherever they go, go wherever they please.

They crowd the place. They sweep in long procession past the hotel windows. On each of the five gilt, onion-shaped towers of the Orthodox Church a sea-gull is seated, it would seem, from the advent of warm weather until the advent of cold. Gulls circle over all the city.

And not only Genevese throng the bridges and quays to feed these voracious visitors. Dignified diplomats have been known, we believe, to vie with Genevese urchins in endeavors to induce the birds to snatch crumbs from their outstretched hands—nor is success difficult. The gulls fight for food; if the violence of their voices provides a truthful indication, their language is far from diplomatic. When warm statesmen open windows of the Palais des Nations, the debates of the sea-gulls are likely to interfere with the discussions of the League.

Why should Colorado wonder?

There are the gulls of the Juniata Valley, in Pennsylvania. This district may be but a stone's throw from the Atlantic, as compared with Pueblo's distance from the Pacific, but it is some distance, at that, and the Alleghenies are to be negotiated. Yet our friend Col. Henry W. Shoemaker—himself a diplomat—records this in his Altoona Tribune:

"The Indians of the Juniata Valley regarded the sea-gulls as the guardians of their crops. Though their clearings were not large, and though their knowledge of agriculture was limited, the red men were wise enough to realize that insect pests and droughts meant ruin. When a great dry spell came in the Juniata Valley, before the French and Indian War, those Indians prayed to the Gitchi-Manitto, or Great Spirit, that rain might be sent. Just when it looked hopeless the river became covered with white-winged gulls.

"'They are bringing the rain clouds on their powerful pinions!' exclaimed the high priests to the prayerful multitudes.

"And before night the skies opened and a deluge soaked the fields, from the mouth of the Juniata to the Kittanning Path."

And how about Utah? Doesn't Colorado know the history of its neighbor State?

Of this story also Col. Shoemaker reminds us:

"When the Mormons, after their long journey across the prairies and deserts, arrived at last at their haven of refuge beside the Great Salt Lake, myriads of grasshoppers appeared—to destroy their first wheat crop. As the settlers' reserve supplies were all exhausted, it meant starvation and death for them if the grasshoppers had their way."

The Mormons prayed.

"Suddenly, out of a clear sky came huge flocks of gulls. Settling down on the grasshopper-infested fields, the gulls went to work devouring the pests. Working from dawn until darkness, they saved the Mormons' wheat."

A Mormon friend of ours adds that the legend goes further than the Colonel. According to this Utah tradition, as soon as those gulls were gorged with grasshoppers they would dart to the lake, vomit their gulped insects into its saline waters and then, with empty stomachs and renewed appetites, return to their pleasant toil.

"From that time," writes the Colonel, "the sea-gulls became the sacred bird of the Latter Day Saints." It is much to their church what the eagle is to the Episcopal. "In 1898 a handsome marble shaft, surmounted by a golden sea-gull, the work of Sculptor Mahonri Young, son of Brigham Young, leader of the Mormons, was dedicated in Temple Square, at Salt Lake City."

* * *

We aren't proud of our geographic knowledge, and on such a morning as this we don't want to run upstairs and consult the office atlas. But we are laboring under an old impression that Salt Lake City is just as far from the Pacific as Pueblo is.

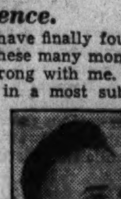
Carlisle Bargeron

Mrs. Roosevelt's Influence.

WELL, sir, I have finally found out after these many months what is wrong with me. It eased up on me in a most subtle way. Not once did I suspect its slowly tightening grasp. The first symptoms were a feeling of uncertainty, a lessening of the poise with which I had theretofore faced the world. Then I gradually began to feel a slow undermining of my steadfastness. Something was wrong, I well knew, but for the life of me I couldn't tell what it was.



BARGERON

There I was, at the advent of the present Administration, what might be called and probably would, a substantial citizen. At peace with my creditors and content in my home. It was my wont, or rather it was my routine, to go home of an afternoon and feed the chickens and if there had been any cows about, to milk the cows. I was of that fast-waning type, I am afraid, that the capitalists would count on. They, at least, didn't have to fear me as one liable to spring up from his inertia and run away.

• • • •

I say I was in this state of bliss, what the brain trusters would undoubtedly call ignorant bliss, But a change has been effected. I know it now and I know the nature of the change. I am up and rearing to go. The truth is that I have been up and rearing to go for some time, but I didn't know that that was what had come over me.

I felt this dissatisfaction creeping into me without recognizing it as such. The first to suffer were the chickens. No longer did I get any contentment out of feeding them and so I quit feeding them; that's what I did.

However, not being good at self-analysis, I didn't realize then what was happening. I thought simply that I had tired of feeding chickens and that my malady was no worse than that.

• • • •

It is hard to describe these months of darkness, most difficult to put my emotions into words. All I can say is that indescribable things came over me, that my innumerable emotions were ineffable.

So slowly did this thing of which I speak encompass me that there was no time in its progress when I could have defined it or recognized it for what it was. Many episodes came up in this period which, in search of understanding, I tried to apply to my case. But none of them fit. There was, for example, the contention of Mr. Hearst that we had so degenerated in morals as not to be the Americans of old.

• • • •

I thought seriously of this but it did not stick. I had not dropped in morals. As a matter of plain fact, I had lifted. Thoughts of lust and debauchery had long since given way to a very plain desire to take a shower in a golf club and lie down with a towel around me while I sipped a gin rickey. No more harmless pleasure could a man enjoy.

It was just by chance that light came to me. A friend complained rather feelingly that something had come over his wife. She insisted periodically, he said, upon getting into the family car and driving it to Baltimore. Just why she should want to do this he could not possibly imagine. He asked her. She explained:

"Mrs. Roosevelt gets out and goes places, why shouldn't I?"

It came upon me with a suddenness which admitted no possibility of mistake that that was what was wrong with me. I was restless. I wanted to go places. As my world the old homestead had come to be too small. It is, for better or worse, what Mrs. Roosevelt has done to me. Without my knowing it she has been a pronounced influence on my life.

So I am off for places—far, far away, off for Europe. When I get restless I go all the way.

Texas Concern Pays 16 Fines

Firm Pleads Guilty to Violation of Income Tax Law.

The W. L. Pearson Co., Inc., a road building firm of Edinburg, Tex., yesterday in the District Supreme Court paid 16 $500 fines for violation of the income tax laws to which it had pleaded guilty.

Justice Peyton Gordon assessed the fines after the corporation had admitted its failure to comply with the income tax regulation that governs the payment of $1,500 or more to any person. The data is required on tax blanks so that the income tax units can ascertain the correctness of individual returns.

In accepting the plea, the Government announced that an indictment charging W. L. Pearson, president of the firm, with the same offenses, had been dismissed. Sixteen payments to Texas State and county officials, aggregating $1,500,000, were alleged in the indictment.

Government prosecutors said many of those charged with having received money from the corporation have been indicted and tried in Texas for their alleged failure to pay income taxes on the moneys they got. The corporation is in the general contracting business.

Repayments to RFC Show Big Increase

In Some Categories Returning Funds Exceed New Loans; Jones Hails Situation as Return to Normalcy.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

A MARKED increase in repayment of loans previously made was shown in the report of the RFC for the fiscal year ended June 30, made public yesterday. In some categories repayments were several times greater than new loans.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, interpreted these figures as another indication that the country is slowly pulling toward economic normalcy.

Because, however, of large loans to the Federal land banks, mortgage loan companies, for public works projects, and for the orderly marketing of agricultural products, the RFC had outstanding on June 30, last, $245,598,899 more in loans than at the end of the previous fiscal year—despite large repayments by banks and financial institutions.

The corporation's assets during the fiscal year also were increased by purchases of $762,071,221 of the preferred stock, capital notes and debentures of banks. It also allocated to other Government agencies, at the direction of Congress, $895,432,992.

Thus during the year the corporation disbursed $1,940,862,128 and collected $932,996,627. But much of the amount disbursed was for the purchase of bank stock and to provide relief and other funds for other Governmental agencies.

In its loan account the RFC disbursed $1,177,135,106 and repayments totaled $931,340,827, bringing outstanding loans on June 30 last to a total of $1,791,683,906, compared with $1,546,085,107 as of June 30, 1933.

$447,000,000 Sent To Banks and Trust Firms.

THE RFC report showed that during the fiscal year $447,614,009 was disbursed to banks and trust companies, including loans for distribution to depositors in closed banks, and that these institutions repaid to the Government agency $534,234,350.

These figures were not broken down in the statement to show loans to open banks and to receivers of closed banks, but attaches of the RFC said that of the sum loaned at least $350,000,000 was for distribution to depositors of closed banks and that since such an advance was made on security of slow assets virtually none of it was repaid.

In view of that explanation, it would appear that the last fiscal year open banks received in loans less than $100,000,000 from the RFC and paid back more than five times that sum against loans made in previous years.

Building and loan associations in the fiscal year received loans totaling $5,348,485 and repaid $47,206,307; insurance companies received loans totaling $5,515,603 and repaid $44,689,180; regional agricltural credit corporations received loans totaling $52,068,373 and repaid $152,219,805, and railroads, including receivers, received loans of $31,917,442 and repaid $37,717,226.

The total loans outstanding to railroads on June 30 was $353,384,567, against which the RFC holds collateral with a market or appraised value of $584,657,091. There is a deficiency in collateral, however, securing loans to ten railroads estimated at about $23,000,000.

During the year the RFC received from the Treasury $1,670,000,000 and in exchange for the corporation's notes from banks $234,814,666. The RFC sold its gold holdings to the Treasury for $131,977,955—the amount it bought under last October's purchase program. Including repayments and other adjustments the receipts of the agency for the year totaled $3,066,070,389.

Receipts of $81,000,000 Credited as Earnings.

UNDER "earnings" the RFC reported receipts of $81,268,175 on account of interest, dividends on preferred stock and other sources. Expenses included $48,082,415 in interest paid to the Secretary of the Treasury on indebtedness, $2,313,975 paid to banks as interest on RFC notes held by them; $14,021 in other interest items and $9,073,376 as operating expense or total expenses of $59,483,789, leaving $21,784,386 as the "earnings above interest and expense."

The comparative statement of the RFC was as follows:

	June 30, 1933.	June 30, 1934.
Assets.
Cash on deposit with Treasurer of U. S.	$3,088,587.90	$6,349,316.85
Cash held by Federal Reserve Banks as collateral	658,483.87	7,210,141.28
Loans outstanding	1,546,085,107.18	1,791,683,906.79

Liability for funds held as cash collateral	975,802.89	7,461,279.77
Remittances not credited on borrowers' indebtedness	27,476,231.13	22,294,759.87
Unearned interest & discount	2,472,447.92	412,036.12
Other liabilities	50,174.36	355,432.38
Capital stock	500 000,000.00	500,000,000.00
Surplus	28,294,951.04	50,079,337.39
Total	$2,153,072,868.60	$4,079,388,622.08

A memorandum attached to this comparative statement of condition showed that undisbursed authorizations and commitments to make loans, purchase preferred stock, capital notes and debentures and to make advances for care and preservation of collateral and for relief under the 1932 act on June 30 totaled $1,000,275,479, or an increase of $339,455,891 over June 30, 1933.

It also was revealed that undisbursed allocations to other Government agencies, including advances under the 1933 relief act, totaled $198,166,916, or $890,262,208 less than on June 30, 1933.

Farm Bureau Urges Lighter Tax on Land

Burden Grows as Income Sinks, Says Report Asking Change.

(Associated Press.)

Three ways in which the real estate tax burden could be lightened were offered to farmers yesterday by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

A report on "the farmers' tax problem" suggested that the number of local governmental units be reduced, that governmental functions be combined for efficiency and economy, and that more of the revenue load be heaped on other sources than general property.

Among the suggestions was one that Government income be levied more on personal income taxes instead of real estate, thus providing farmers relief from taxation when their income was low and in other times taxing them on the returns produced by the land.

Statistical evidence presented indicated that farm taxes in relation to farm real estate values are more than double what they were in 1913. Among the points made were:

1. Taxes per acre of farm land in 1929 were 241 per cent of the rate in 1913.
2. Taxes have declined to 163 per cent since 1929, but real estate values declined more.
3. In 1932 gross income per acre of farm land was 44 per cent below that of 1913, while taxes per acre were 89 per cent more.
4. In 1932 the income from 9 acres was required to pay taxes on 100 acres of land, while in 1913 the income from 3 acres was sufficient. This cost was reduced from 9 to 6 acres in 1933, however.
5. A survey of 1,040 counties in 18 States showed two and one-half times as many tax delinquent farm properties in 1932 as in 1928.

"These facts indicate plainly that taxation presents one of the most important problems confronting farmers, and some practical means to help meet this problem is urgently needed," the bureau declared.

The Master Still Lives at the Mercy of His Servants

By Robert Quillen

For some reason beyond understanding, nature is so organized that the bad always overcomes the good.

One drop of poison will contaminate a glass of pure water, but one drop of water doesn't purify a glass of poison. And we are so accustomed to this inequality of good and bad that mere statement of the fact seems an absurdity.

One evil act may destroy a good reputation, but one virtuous act doesn't redeem a bad one.

The same law, if it is a law, controls the circulation of money.

Experience has shown that paper money not backed by gold soon drives gold money out of circulation. The two can not function together as equals. The bad money triumphs over the good. The good is hoarded and the other spent, and soon there is no money in sight except the bad.

The rule also applies to people.

The class is always held back to the pace of the dullest pupil.

It isn't an uncommon thing for a man to marry to pretty woman socially and intellectually inferior to him and promptly descend to her level. Nor is it uncommon for a superior woman to be dragged down by a drunken and worthless husband.

But who has seen a wife or husband without intelligence or pride or character transformed and lifted to the level of a superior mate?

Such things don't happen, except in story books. When a nation determines to make all men equal, the common level established is the one lower down.

Ideas suffer the same fate.

Each individual has ideas of two kinds—those developed and supported by reason and those less respectable and often mysterious opinions called prejudices.

One kind is good and the other bad, and the bad, as usual, dominates. When reason suggests one course and prejudice urges another, not one person in ten can reject the advice of prejudice.

The moral needs no diagram. If you can't lie down with dogs without getting fleas, the obvious way to escape fleas is to keep away from dogs.

The Great Secretary.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, to most of us, is little more than a rhetorical measuring-rod with which they used to compare Andrew Mellon. Yet even if we know the brilliant and aristocratic first Secretary of the Treasury through such an able work, say as Claude G. Bowers' "Jefferson and Hamilton" (Houghton Mifflin, 1925), that standard acquaintance is only at second or third hand. Few attempt or get very far with the standard twelve volume "Works of Alexander Hamilton" (Putnam, edited by Henry Cabot Lodge). Scarcely anyone clarifies the fine, round phrase, "Wisdom of the fathers" with a direct reference to and reading of the written wisdom itself.

THEO. HALL.

Thus, the publication of "Papers of Public Credit, Commerce, and Finance" (Columbia University Press, $3) is an invaluable service to a wide and just estimate of Hamilton. Edited by Samuel McKee, jr., instructor of history at Columbia, and with a foreword by Elihu Root, the volume reprints Hamilton's first report on the public credit (1790), report on a National bank (1790), letter to Washington on Constitutionality of the bank (1791), second report on public credit (1795), and report on manufactures (1791). These papers constitute the classic expression of the Hamiltonian doctrine.

• • • •

When we dip into that doctrine, a number of things come to light which are little suspected by those who refer most frequently to the founding statesman. It would seem that their writings can, like Scripture, be quoted with a purpose. For some of our most usual and cherished notions about their heritage to us are contradicted in the writings themselves, flatly, in black and white. Let me give some examples.

We frequently hear that the Constitution, in its strict interpretation, was intended to provide for all future problems. Said Hamilton: "Constitutions should consist only of general provisions; the reason is that they must necessarily be permanent, and that they can not calculate for the possible change of things."

Hamilton is often considered a defender of high protective tariffs. Yet he wrote: "The manufacturing nations abridge the natural advantages of their situation, through an unwillingness to permit the agricultural countries to enjoy the advantages of theirs, and sacrifice the benefits of a mutually beneficial intercourse to the vain project of selling everything and buying nothing."

• • • •

Proponents of the New Deal may find a text: "Experience teaches that men are often so much governed by what they are accustomed to see and practice that the simplest and most obvious improvements * * * are adopted with hesitation. * * * When former occupations ceased to yield a profit * * * or when there was an absolute deficiency of employment in them, owing to the superabundance of hands, changes would ensue, but these changes would be likely to be more tardy than might consist with the interest either of individuals or of society. * * * To produce the desirable changes as early as may be expedient may therefore require the incitement and patronage of government."

People and corporations who groan at income taxes have a champion in Hamilton: "All such taxes (including all taxes on occupations) which proceed according to the amount of capital supposed to be employed in a business or of profits supposed to be made in it, are unavoidably hurtful to industry."

Likewise defended are gentlemen called upon by Senate committees to reveal their financial balance sheets: "Men engaged in any trade or business have commonly weighty reasons to avoid disclosure which would expose, with anything like accuracy, the real state of their affairs."

And this might well be a good word for the Tugwell food and drug act: "Judicious regulations for the inspection of manfactured commodities—this is not among the least important of the means by which the prosperity of manufactures may be promoted. It is, indeed, in many cases, one of the most essential. Contributing to prevent frauds upon consumers at home, to improve the quality and preserve the character of the National manufactures, it can not fail to aid the expeditious and advantageous sale of them, and to serve as a guard against successful competition from other quarters."

• • • •

But in all of Hamilton, in spite of his clarity of principle, there appears a blindness to the grubby practicalities of actual economic life. He is nearly at his most vulnerable when he writes of the free manufacture of commodities: "The internal competition which takes place soon does away with everything like monopoly, and by degrees reduces the price of an article to the minimum of a reasonable profit on the capital employed. This accords with the reason of things, and with experience." He was writing, of course, a hundred years before Rockefeller and Carnegie.

It must be plain that the "wisdom of the fathers" can not be swallowed whole. Yet if you still disagree, consider what the great secretary, in all seriousness, called one of the especial benefits of manufacturing: "It is worthy of particular remark that, in general, women and children are rendered more useful, and the latter more early useful, by manufacturing establishments, than they would otherwise be." And he points, with the greatest satisfaction in the world, at the English cotton factories, where "it is computed that four-sevenths nearly are women and children, of whom the greatest proportion are children, and many of them of a tender age."

The Once Over

The New Tammany Hall.

Tammany Hall has gone streamline. It has picked a leader who has youth, a Hollywood figure and no double chin.

• • • •

The newly chosen leader of Tammany, James J. Dooling, violates all traditions by looking young, alert, quick-on-the-trigger and with no heavy secrets on his mind.

• • • •

Judged by past bosses of Tammany Hall, Mr. Dooling is practically a Boy Scout.

• • • •

In the past Tammany has looked upon men of 41 as mere collegiates who might do very well at amateur theatricals or tennis, but who could never inspire confidence at a meeting of sachems.

• • • •

It has judged its candidates by their stomachs and has assumed that wisdom was largely abdominal.

• • • •

The Old Guard believed that sagacity was necessarily linked up with a 48-inch belt, flat feet, red flannel underwear and a habit of talking out of the corners of the mouth.

• • • •

It never thought a man could be sage and dependable and at the same time young, thin and physically fit.

• • • •

Mr. Dooling's election violates the Tiger tradition that a Tammany boss must be a man who has to go to an awning maker to get fitted to a three-piece suit.

• • • •

He has a figure like Jimmy Walker, goes for double-breasted coats, and wears shoes that never look like something ordered from a blacksmith.

• • • •

What makes the old-timers shake their heads is that he wears a wrist watch, generally has a flower in his buttonhole and has taste in the matter of shirts and neckties.

• • • •

In his opening announcement, Mr. Dooling said: "I conceive it to be the duty of a political leader to work for good government. He should do his utmost to see that the men and women selected for public trust are fit and qualified, and that they remain so!"

• • • •

That just gives you an idea how young he is.

• • • •

The rise of youth and the fall of double chins is taken as a victory for President Roosevelt, Jim Farley and the boyish form movement in the Democratic party.

• • • •

We shall see what we shall see. And whatever happens, it will make a better movie.

PWA to Spend $1,500 On Danville Airport

Danville, Va., July 19 (Spl.).—A. H. Petticrew, State airport adviser, has approved improvements at the municipal airport at a cost of $1,500 to be furnished by the PWA.

The runways will be broadened and the field graded, giving work to 100 men and costing the city nothing. Additional funds are being sought for a new runway, and eventually it is proposed to provide the port with ground lights for night landing.

Some Famous Gentlemen.

The Prince of Troy, Hector, is the greatest gentleman in Homer; he never used a discourteous or reproachful or complaining word to Helen, though he knew she was the cause of the war and the reason for his own coming destruction. The Three Musketeers and D'Artagnan were all four gentlemen, because they would gladly die rather than do what they thought were dishonorable.

Manners play an important part in determining whether a man is a gentleman or not; in this sense most of the followers of King Charles were gentlemen, most of the followers of Cromwell were not. In a half-humorous poem, Robert Louis Stevenson said God was not a gentleman, because He showed such a lack of consideration for men and women; whereas Shakespeare said the Devil was a gentleman, because his manners were so attractive. "The Prince of Darkness is a gentleman."

Manners alone will not suffice; veneer may be the surface that conceals putrefaction. It is interesting that Shakespeare made one of his characters call the Devil a gentleman, whereas Shakespeare's contemporary, Dekker, made one of his characters call Jesus Christ a gentleman. Dekker placed in the mouth of his shop-keeper Candido, this beautiful speech:

"The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him
was a sufferer;
A soft, meek, patient, humble,
tranquil spirit,
The first true gentleman that ever breathed."

Thackeray knew exactly what a gentleman was, as is seen by his famous lines: first in verse, then in prose:

"Who misses or who wins the prize,
Go, lose or conquer as you can;
But if you fail, or if you rise,
Be each, pray God, a gentleman."

"To be a gentleman is to be honest, to be gentle, to be generous, to be brave, to be wise, and possessing all these qualities to exercise them in the most graceful outward manner."

Emerson showed that a man could be at once a great philosopher and a gentleman. In the midst of a composition of an immortal work, if the dinner-bell rang, he stopped in the middle of a sentence. He said "it is not right to keep any one else waiting." When a crank called on him and kept his hat on Emerson asked him if he would not take off his hat. The man replied, "No, I uncover only before God." Emerson said, "Then let us go out in the garden."

"The Three Musketeers" to Be Filmed by Improved Process in Natural Colors

RKO-Radio Is Eager to Take Pioneer Offer

Short Color Subjects Hits; Bergner Coming Over; Amusement Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

With the perfection of Technicolor's three-color process, the production of both short-reel and full-length motion pictures in natural colors is coming back into favor.

A great deal of experimentation was indulged in at great cost by several of the major producers a few years ago, with net results that were not satisfactory, either artistically or financially. The difficulties then encountered are said now to have been largely overcome and the pendulum seems about to swing back in the direction of natural color photography.

I am more or less confirmed in this belief by a bulletin from Bob Sisk, of RKO-Radio, which announces that his company, in association with Pioneer Pictures, will produce "The Three Musketeers" in the new Technicolor process in the fall.

It is this process that has just been so successfully employed in the making of "La Cucaracha" (The Cockroach) by Pioneer. This is a short-reel subject soon to be released and distributed by RKO-Radio. It is described, from preview, as one of the most unusual short subjects ever made. The same process has been made known to the public also through the medium of Walt Disney's Silly Symphonies.

Arrangements Completed.

John Hay Whitney, president of Pioneer Pictures, recently returned East from Hollywood, where he completed arrangements for the production of "The Three Musketeers" with J. C. McDonough and B. B. Kahane, representing RKO-Radio.

Kenneth McGowan, who produced "Le Cucaracha," will serve in the same capacity in the making of the Dumas romance and Robert Edmond Jones, eminent scenic artist who designed the "Cucaracha" settings, will perform the same function for "Musketeers."

Francis Lederer will head the all-star cast which is already being tentatively assembled, although production is not expected to begin until about October 1, with the National release date set for approximately January 1, 1935.

It has already been made known in this space that the Technicolor process has been so improved of late that its utilization in the newsreels is highly probable.

Many confirmed motion picture devotees will recall that it was not so long ago that color photography simply could not be made to "track" satisfactorily and blurred so outrageously that it would pull the eyes right out of your head. All that has now been overcome and there would seem to be no valid reason why the cinema should not reflect all of the soft and gentle tints of nature.

We shall see what we shall see.

It was definitely decided yesterday to continue the run of "Of Human Bondage," starring Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, through next Tuesday at RKO-Keith's Theater, thus completing a hot-weather run of two solid weeks. Interest has not abated in this picturization of one of W. Somerset Maugham's best-known stories since the day of its opening, Wednesday, July 11. On next Wednesday, July 25, RKO-Keith's will inaugurate the engagement of "Whom the Gods Destroy," in which Walter Connolly is said to have one of the most fruitful opportunities of his career before the cameras, and in which charming Doris Kenyon also is advantageously cast. So you know.

Concerning Elizabeth Bergner.

With further regard to producing company alliances, considerable importance at the moment is being attached to the presence in London of both Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck, president and vice president, respectively, of Twentieth Century Pictures, releasing through United Artists.

Zanuck, who has been on a big game hunt, has only recently arrived in the British capital and will shortly set sail for the United States. He will remain in New York for a week or two and is expected to arrive in Hollywood about August 10. His presence in London with Schenck lends color to the belief that Elizabeth Bergner will be among those persent in Hollywood this fall.

It was Miss Bergner, one of the most vibrant personalities on either the contemporary stage or screen, who scored so emphatically by the brilliance of her individual performance in the title role of "Catherine, the Great," opposite Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

May Appear on Stage.

According to report, the only circumstance that can interfere with Miss Bergner's acceptance of the Hollywood offer is the little matter of her projected appearance on the New York stage in "Escape Me Never." The play already has been purchased for picturization by British and Dominion films, but it is understood that Schenck and Zanuck are negotiating for the rights with a view to producing the film on this side, in which case it could easily be arranged to set aside the Broadway stage appearance or limit it to a very short season, in the Noel Coward manner.

One reads between the lines, if he is good at that sort of thing, that in addition to Elizabeth Bergner, Twentieth Century has it in mind to sign several English players for appearances in American films.

Beauties Now on Warner Screens

The Washington Community Players want to borrow a dog. The particular canine sought should be possessed of some slight sense of comedy and be reasonably the comedian in appearance, for he is wanted for an important part in the forthcoming presentation of Will Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the National Sylvan Theater on July 30 and 31.

The original intention was to get a dog—just a plain dog—from the Pound and, after the production of the play, present him to some member of the cast, but on second thought it was decided to appeal to dog-owning Washingtonians for the loan of pet whose histrionic abilities might be slightly better known.

So it is requested that owners of dogs "audition" their pets before officers of the Washington Community Players—specifically Bess Davis Schreiner—at Central High School tonight between the hours of 8 and 10.

Who knows but out of all this may come another Flush?

Another "Headline" Band.

It will be Ted Black and his nationally known N. B. C. broadcast orchestra at Chevy Chase Lake tonight as the nearby Maryland resort continues its series of "headline" dance band presentations.

This popular orchestra, which features Edith Caldwell and Dick Williams, two talented vocalists, created no less than a sensation when it played at the Lake in August of last year. It is also well remembered by students at the University of Maryland as the band that played for one of their proms earlier this year.

In celebration of his birthday, which occurs today, it is expected that Black will arrange something a little "different" in the way of a program for tonight.

Eddie Carr and Al Stern, managers of Chevy Chase Lake, announce that permission has been secured to continue dancing until 1 a. m. Sunday mornings, thus affording the Saturday night crowds an extra hour of fun.

If Eastern Division Manager Carter Tate Barron, of Loews', Inc., could be relied upon to skip this paragraph, the column might, in a moment of inadvertence, admit that it received a cordial note from his charming wife, "Chic," yesterday, saying many pleasant things and conveying the word that that lusty little "Cracker," Carter Tate, jr., is proving himself a real Georgian by having the time of his life crawling around in the blistering heat wave that has Atlanta in its grip. It wasn't necessary to go to Atlanta to find that heat wave, Chic, we have a fairly representative sample of one right here at home!

Philling a Fountain Pen.

Yesterday's mails also brought a long letter from Prof. Phil Lampkin, the youthful southpaw baton-swisher over the excellent orchestra at Loew's Fox Theater, now vacationing at his home in Hollywood. A few excerpts from Prof. Lampkin's ebullient observations may prove of interest to his friends and those who know their way around and what time it is, to wit:

"It is a grand feeling to be with my mother, sister and brother after an absence of almost four year . . . Last night was at the El Rey Club, gathering spot late at night for the picture people . . . At our table were W. S. Van Dyke, the director; Hal Rosson and Fuzzy Knight . . . Just back of me was Jack Benny and across the way Joe E. Brown and Frank Orsatti, the director . . . Hal Rosson, a victim of the infantile paralysis epidemic, limps and has to use a cane and is leaving soon for Europe to seek a permanent cure under European specialists . . . Spoke to Ben Lyon on the phone this afternoon . . . It is practically set for Bebe Daniels and him to go into the new Lew Brown musical, but first he is to make an independent picture . . . Also had a nice chat with Una Merkel, who is finishing a picture on our M-G-M lot, and with an old friend, Stuart Erwin, who is just beginning one there . . . Tomorrow night am going out to the Olympic Stadium to see Young Peter Jackson fight Kid Mack from Denver . . . Looks like a sell-out . . . In all probability will see Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller there . . . By the way, that divorce is off and they are together constantly . . . This is about all the news for now . . . I'll be seeing you in a few weeks."

Rebellion Note.

Look out, Hains Point, here I come!

Impediments Arise in Casting of "David Copperfield;" Brian Aherne Is to Appear With Helen Hayes; Breezy Items From Celluloid Capital.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, July 19.—Fulfillment of the original intention of having English players exclusively in "David Copperfield" seems to be coming about with marked reservations. The English are fast catching up with the Americans.

EDNA MAY OLIVER.

Yesterday the name of Hugh Williams, of Britain, was added to those of Elizabeth Allan and Jean Cadell. He is to play the very important role of Steerforth. His being chosen for "Copperfield" can be directly attributed to tokens of approval passed upon his performance in "The Green Hat."

On the American side there are now Lionel Barrymore, Edna May Oliver and Lew Stone, in the role of Mr. Wickfield, while one still hears Peter Trent mentioned for Copperfield, Charles Laughton for Micawber, and occasionally Maureen O'Sullivan for the child-wife, Dora.

Regarding Williams and Steerforth, those who know their Dickens, are well aware of Steerforth's part in the plot as the friend of David, responsible for the seduction of Little Em'ly.

* * * *

Orient Lures Comedian.

Joe E. Brown likes the Orient so well that he will be returning there next spring. And he is probably going alone on that occasion, as Mrs. Brown is much less enthusiastic. Brown wants to adventure far into China on his next trip. Incidentally, Joe E. is sporting a marcel these days, required for his impersonation in "The Six-Day Bike Rider."

* * * *

Luck for Langdon.

Maybe it's a sign of luck for Langdon. Anyway, he has been nominated to start off the new season of short comedies at the Columbia studio. The comedy is being written by Arthur Ripley, who will direct the picture.

Andy Clyde is to undertake the second comedy, written by Pierre Courdere.

* * * *

Part for Brian Aherne.

Finally settled on as the lead in "What Every Woman Knows" is Brian Aherne, long rumored for the part. For a while it appeared as if a commitment for a Noel Coward play in London would prevent, but Coward's illness is causing the postponement of that production, which was to have opened August 20.

Helen Hayes is, of course, to be starred in the picture. She played in the Barrie piece on the stage. Lois Wilson enacted the role at the time in the silents.

* * * *

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

Rudy Vallee will be coming West to appear in "Sweet Music" for Warners about October 1.

Victoria Vinton, of the Busby Berkeley aggregation, will play a part in "Happiness Ahead."

Maxine Doyle has been assigned to a role in "Six-Day Bike Rider," and has received a five-year contract.

"Young and Beautiful," at Mascot, boasts the following cast: William Haines, John Miljan, Shaw and Lee, Judith Allen, Joseph Cawthorn, Ted Fio-Rito and his orchestra, Vince Barnett, Warren Hymer, Franklin Pangborn, Ed Lester's 30 "Hollywood Singers," Fred Kelsey, James Bush, James Burtis and various others.

* * * *

Casting Uncertain.

It's by no means certain that Jean Muir will appear as the nun in the picturizaton of "The Miracle," which Max Reinhardt may eventually direct, since he is coming here to stage "Midsummer Night's Dream" in September. Miss Muir is a strong candidate, but Josephine Hutchinson, former Washingtonian, is also being spoken of, since she is pleasing in "Happiness Ahead."

Another picture that is now scheduled for Miss Hutchinson is "The White Cockatoo," written by Mignon Everhart. This is a brand-new novel which has to do with a duo of Americans, an engineer and a young woman, who became involved in a robbery and murder mystery in a hotel in southern France.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-mark Applied For)

Prospects of employment at Federal Radio Commission will be covered tomorrow in the seventh story of the Federal Diary's employment survey in various Government units.

An appeal for more technical and professional employes to assist in the program for improvement of Government working conditions was issued last night by Miss Esther Penn, National secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Government Employes.

BAKER

"The technician or professional man," Miss Penn pointed out, "who, instead of engaging in the splendid task of improving our civil service and thus advancing the Nation, keeps aloof from the great army of his fellow workers, imagining that association with them in such a movement is unseemly. They may well pause and reflect—may well look back a few years."

In urging that the higher grades should join heartily with the rank and file, the employe leader pointed out that "the technical and professional employe should realize that as a worker, his cause and that of the humblest laborer are one and the same."

"While the units of workers," Miss Penn continued, "may be as numerous as there are distinctive lines of activity, there should be somewhere a common point of affiliation, so that, when needed, there may be united effort.

"Indeed, to revert to our theory of 'noblesse oblige,' is it not the privilege and the duty of those who have the good fortune to be highly placed in the Government service to do their part toward bettering the lot of those in the lower ranks?"

A net reduction of 11 in the Civil Service reemployment list was noted yesterday. Of the 1,503 still on the register, 200 are listed as serving in temporary positions.

Moonlight Excursion.

Monday night the annual moonlight excursion of the District Federation of Federal Employes will hold the interest of all NFFE members and their friends. A capacity crowd is expected to sail on the Wilson Line steamer, City of Washington, from the Seventh street wharf at 8:30 p. m.

The date is the Monday nearest the full moon in July. Dancing, cards and refreshments are in store for all Federal employes on this trip. Each ticket holder will have a voice in the disposition of a $10 prize.

All Government employes are invited to attend the outing at Chesapeake Beach Sunday, under auspices of the Association for Adequate Parking and Recreation Facilities Among Government Employes, Col. D. E. McQueary (*), Veterans' Administration, announces. Bathing, boating, fishing and picnicking will be enjoyed.

Diary Guest Tickets.

If your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (John Boles in "Wild Gold"); or to Loew's Palace (Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Bob Hope, of "Roberta," and other acts; screen, Cary Grant and Genevieve Tobin in "Kiss and Make Up").

Diary office hours are: Daily, except Sundays, 12 noon to 1 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturdays, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

The third section of pictures of the 96 typical young Americans that appeared in the Federal Diary's Parade of the States were placed on display for a week, beginning yesterday at Harris & Ewing, 1313 F street northwest (opposite Loew's Palace Theater).

A quartet of husbands at Marine Corps Headquarters treated their wives to a fishing trip to Brooms Island recently. We hear that some of the "better halves" of Andy Ramsey, Emerson Giles, (*), Fred Sharpnack and Wayne Leavitt caught more fish than the leathernecks.

The Marine Corps personnel will meet today at 3 p. m. in the Adjutant and Inspector's Department to elect a delegate and an alternate to the Navy Department Employes Cafeteria Association. The next meeting will be held on July 31.

$1,800 to $2,600 Positions.

Examinations for numerous technical positions are announced by Civil Service Commission, including:

Chief engineering draftsman, $2,600; principal engineering draftsman, $2,300; senior engineering draftsman, $2,000; and engineering draftsman, $1,800 a year, for work on ships. Optional branches are (1) ship piping; (2) ship ventilation; (3) marine engines and boilers, and (4) electrical.

The closing date is August 10. The salaries named are subject to 5 per cent deduction under the economy act and to a deduction of 3½ per cent toward retirement. Additional information may be obtained at Civil Service Commission, Seventeenth and F streets northwest.

The Young Democrats Club is staging an inaugural ball tonight in the tenth-floor ballroom of the Willard at 10 p. m., in honor of its new president, Maj. Raymond Walter, NRA and other officers.

J. Errington Lloyd, Postoffice, is chairman of the affair. Heading the various committees are: Tickets, Gabriel Swart, Public Works; publicity, Allston D. Calhoun, jr.; music, Grace Louise Shackleford, RFC.; floor show entertainment, Betty Whitfield, Agriculture; reception, Betty Mattingly; decorations, Mrs. Louise Cayhill, NRA.

The feature of the floor show entertainment will be an extensive style show, sponsored by Jelleff's. Twenty attractive models, all members of the Young Democrats Club, will parade in bathing and beach costumes and in stunning evening ensembles. Among the models will be the following Government employes: Mary Lee Sullivan, Commerce; Virginia Clay, Treasury; Betty Whitfield (*), Agriculture; Mary Maurine, Treasury; Letty Wills, NRA; Alice Fogle, NRA; Ruth Brown, NRA; Mary Ellen Taggart, NRA. Singing and dancing acts also are planned. An excellent orchestra has been engaged, and dancing will continue until 1 a. m. or later.

Turks Probe Shooting.

Angora, Turkey, July 19 (AP).—The Turkish government today accepted "in principle" the British suggestion that the fatal shooting Saturday of a British naval surgeon, Lieut. T. J. Robinson, by Turkish soldiers, be investigated by a joint Anglo-Turkish commission.

Steamship Aid Fights U.S. Plan To Cut Subsidy

Baker Sees Bankruptcy of American Lines as Slash Result.

(Associated Press.)

R. J. Baker, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association, asserted yesterday that any reduction in Government subsidies to the merchant marine would "force the majority of American lines in foreign trade right into bankruptcy."

His statement was made in commenting on the Administration's move to modify or cancel existing ocean mail contracts and revise the system of subsidies under which the Government has been supporting steamship companies through annual payments averaging more than $20,000,800 on mail contracts alone.

"The American people," Baker said, "have a prodigious investment in their merchant marine. To turn back now would be to forfeit all that we have done thus far. Other nations are building to the limit. They know that without ships they can not compete in world trade They also know that navies are helpless without auxiliary tonnage. It cost us $3,000,000,000 to get ships during the World War when they were a condition of National survival."

Baker said it would be impossible for American lines "to withstand low-cost foreign competition without some form of Government support."

"This is especially true now when tariffs, the New Deal and various other factors have conspired to make our costs the highest in the world."

Baker said the sum now being expended on ocean-mail contracts was a "trifling one compared to other expenditures incidental to the New Deal, such as the more than $1,000,000,000 as a subsidy to agriculture."

"The cost of the mail contracts," he added, "is also small when compared to the expense of Government operation, which caused the Shipping Board to show annual deficits ranging up to $50,000,000 a year.

"If we are to have a merchant marine we must start by realizing that the present system has proved to be the most economic yet devised for keeping American vessels at sea."

Reducing Aids Held Perilous

Food and Drug Authority Warns of Dinitrophenol and Similar Cures.

Warning against the use of dinitrophenol and related compounds as fat reducers was issued yesterday by the Food and Drug Administration, the Associated Press reported.

The drug speeds up the metabolic rate, resulting in a destruction of tissues, including fat, according to clinical evidence cited by W. G. Campbell, chief of the administration.

When used indiscriminately dinitrophenol causes "profound disturbances" of blood-forming organs and should not be used by individuals suffering from rheumatism, alcoholism, tuberculosis, or diseases of the heart, liver or kidneys, Campbell said.

Agents selling these drugs "have sprung up like mushrooms all over the country, and are endangering the lives of patrons," he said. "The Federal food and drugs act has no jurisdiction over products of this type, dangerous though they may be. All that the Food and Drug Administration can do is to warn the public that these compounds are dangerous."

That Bottle Hurled At King Was Error, Is Newest Version

Edinburgh, July 19 (AP).—A new version of the "bottle incident" during the visit of King George and Queen Mary to Edinburgh was told today, making it out that the police detained a loyal and enthusiastic subject of the King—if a not altogether sober one.

The first report was that a man hurled a bottle or a glass at the royal car and that he was discharged, presumably at the request of the King.

While police officials deny that there was any "bottle incident" at all, eyewitnesses said that while their majesties were driving through a section populated by Irish—Ulster Irish and loyal to the core—a man in the crowd had a beer bottle and glass.

Waving the foaming glass to drink a toast as the royal carriage passed, the man was struck on the arm by another enthusiast and the bottle or glass was knocked into the street behind the carriage.

Police, according to this version, seized the man, but the King heard of the incident and requested that nothing be done about it.

Laurel Firemen Rescue Cow From Well.

Laurel, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—A cow which, perhaps, had heard that old one about the farmer diluting milk with water, took a nose dive into a 20-foot well on the property of Volmer Hauser, near here, tonight.

After pumping the well dry and improvising a derrick, the Laurel Fire Department rescued the cow unhurt.

Expert Committee Discusses Future of U. S. Botanic Garden

This is the tropical house of the Botanic Garden, whose fate is being debated in the Congressional hearing which opened yesterday. In this section of the new conservatory grow the monkey puzzle tree, bananas, tongue oil and lychee nut trees, umbrella leaves, Indian breadfruit, the topica tree, bamboo, the Hottentot poison tree, fiddlebox rubber tree and many other interesting specimens.

Question of Jurisdiction Left for Disposal at Later Meeting.

With the creation of a National Botanic Garden which shall have no superiors as its objective, an informal committee opened discussions yesterday on the most expedient means to achieve this goal.

The meeting was called by Representative Kent E. Keller, of Illinois, chairman of the House Committee on the Library. At its conclusion, he announced another meeting will be held at 10:30 a. m. today, with each member of the advisory group expected to bring a definite outline of the plan he considers best.

That existing agencies such as the Department of Agriculture, Smithsonian Institution and Library of Congress must cooperate if the venture is to succeed was unanimously emphasized. Another point stressed was that the garden's activities should be correlated with those of the National Arboretum being developed in Anacostia.

Yesterday's arguments did not touch upon the question whether jurisdiction over the Botanic Garden should be transferred from the Joint Committee on the Library to the Department of Agriculture. Scores of experts, Government and private, recommended this change when hearings were held last winter on a Senate bill to effect the transfer.

Data obtained in the current investigation being conducted by Keller will be incorporated in the report, which will be transmitted to Congress when it convenes in January, he declared.

Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, representing the Garden Club of America and an advocate of transferring the garden to the Agriculture Department, said she was astounded that it should be in control of a Congressional committee. Dr. Leicester B. Holland, chief of the Library of Congress' fine arts division, recommended that the garden and the arboretum should be located side by side, rather than miles apart, as is the case now.

Many Experts Present.

Others who participated in the exchange of ideas were J. Horace MacFarland, president of the American Rose Society; Dr. Frederick V. Coville, acting director of the National Aboretum; V. K. Chesnut, retired Government chemist; Dr. B. Y. Morrison, of the Bureau of Plant Industry; Dr. William R. Maxon, of the Smithsonian, and Dr. Rodney H. True, director of Morris Arboretum, University of Pennsylvania.

John G. Bradley, clerk of the House Library Committee, said over 400 questionnaires have been sent to botanic gardens in this country and abroad requesting information on administration, control and other relevant matters.

Upon adjournment of the session yesterday, the group made an inspection tour of the new Botanic Garden which has been termed inadequate, expensive and improperly controlled.

Virginia Fete Of Music Lures Entire Valley

Fourth Annual Festival Called One of Most Colorful in History.

By A. R. O'Roark.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 19.—Attracting an audience from the entire Shenandoah Valley from Harpers Ferry to Roanoke, tonight's program of folk music of many nations at the Massanetta Springs fourth annual sacred music festival, under the leadership of Mrs. David Barnum, Norfolk, was one of the most colorful events of its kind ever held in the Valley of Virginia.

The singing of folk songs of Germany, Italy, Holland England, France, Scotland, Ireland, Chile and the United States accompanied by folk dances presented by music clubs of the State in colorful costumes, constituted a performance which figuratively swept the audience from its feet with its deep feeling and expression and its graceful and educational interpretation of folk lore.

Many Groups Take Part.

Staged upon the gently rolling green of the Massanetta grounds under powerful white flood lights, the songs and dances were offered under capable leaders. Songs and dances of the German nation, rendered by 135 children and girls from the State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, were under the direction of Miss Ethel Spillman, Harrisonburg, and Miss Mary Deffenbaugh Washington. The Lyric Trio, of Norfolk, appeared on the Italian program, and music of the Netherlands was presented by Staunton high school girls.

England's folk songs and dances were interpreted by the Scherzo Music Club, Norfolk, and the Young Artists Club, Clifton Forge, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Meredith. Members of the Scherzo Music Club and Staunton high school girls under the leadership of Miss Mary Lou Bell, Staunton, staged the programs of Scotland, Ireland and Chile. Young women of Massanetta Springs appeared on the French program, dancing the minuet.

2,000 Will Sing Today.

Folk music of America was arranged and directed by Mrs. Annabel Morris Buchanan, authority on this type of music, and originator of the Festival of White Top Mountain. John Powell, Virginia's noted pianist, delivered an address on folk music and introduced the fiddlers and other performers from the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains.

The climax of the program will be reached tomorrow night when a choir of 2,000 voices from Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, under the direction of Dr. John Finley Williamson, of the Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J., will offer a program of sacred music.

Arkansas Indicts Official, Trusty in Girl Convict's Death

Little Rock, Ark., July 19 (AP).—A trusty convict guard was indicted today for first-degree murder and the prison official who accompanied him was indicted as an accessory before the fact in the killing of Helen Spence Eaton, escaped convict, on July 11.

The girl was slain 24 hours after she had made her fifth escape from prison, leaving a note she never would be taken alive.

The guard, Frank Martin, who claimed he fired his shotgun at the girl when he overtook her about 9 miles from the Jacksonville prison farm as she attempted to draw a pistol from her blouse, is already under a 21-year sentence for second-degree murder in the killing of a man in Saline County three years ago.

The prison official—V. O. Brockman—who has been ousted as assistant superintendent at the women's prison along with his wife, who was superintendent, was indicted on two other counts, under separate statutes, charging that he permitted the 22-year-old brunette slayer to escape.

Brockman's indictment as an accessory before the fact of murder makes him subject, upon conviction, to the same punishment as the principal, which may be death.

A complete shake-up in the State's penal system resulted two days after the killing.

Ferris' Widow to Seek Michigan Seat in House

Mrs. Woodbridge Nathan Ferris, wife of the late Democratic Senator from Michigan, is running for the Democratic Congressional nomination from Michigan's Tenth District, the Democratic Congressional campaign committee was advised here yesterday.

Her late husband, a former Governor of Michigan, was a member of the Senate from March 4, 1923, until his death here, March 23, 1928. The present incumbent from the Tenth District is Representative Roy O. Woodruff (Republican).

Hagerstown, Md., July 19 (Spl.).—Defense efforts to have testimony admitted as to the visit of Jane Hollar, 16, to Washington with George Saum, prior to the fatal shooting of Saum, with which the girl's father, Allen L. Hollar, 45, is charged, was balked by the court as the trial got under way here today.

All of the prosecution's case was presented during the morning and afternoon and Mrs. Hollar, wife of the accused, and the daughter, Jane, had testified when court was adjourned until tomorrow, when Hollar is scheduled to take the stand.

Counsel indicated the defense would raise the question whether the fatal shot was actually fired by Hollar, or was fired during a struggle between Hollar and Saum for possession of the revolver.

The testimony of Mrs. Hollar and Jane was confined to statements of seeing Saum drive near their home a few hours before the shooting, and of their own hysterical condition when Hollar returned home for a few moments before he is alleged to have left for the Saum home.

The principal witness for the prosecution and the only eyewitness to the shooting was Carl Smith, a neighbor of Saum, who testified that Hollar fired at Saum while the latter was preparing to put his car away.

B. C. Beasley testified that Hollar borrowed a revolver from him a few days before the shooting "to kill a mad dog." It was this gun that the prosecution contends was used in the shooting.

Police Capt. Clarence Emmert and County Investigator Martin L. Ingram testified as to the confession which they said Hollar made after the shooting, in which Hollar said he found his family hysterical and got the revolver and went to Saum's home, where he waited. Hollar said his mind went blank and he could recall nothing.

Detective William Peters testified to a conference he had with Hollar in the office of State's Attorney Lloyd Harshman, in which Hollar suggested that no charges be preferred against Saum and that he be released from jail, where he had been incarcerated while searching for Jane Hollar was in progress. The girl was found by Washington police nearly a week after she disappeared. Saum had brought the girl back to Hagerstown, but she returned to Washington, saying she feared the wrath of her parents because of her week-end escapade with Saum.

2 From Capital Made Ensigns

Belated Commissions Go to Annapolis' 1933 Class Members.

Two Washingtonians are among graduates of the Naval Academy in the class of 1933 who were awarded commissions in the Navy more than a year after their graduation. They are Robert Calvin Howe Hird, of 1650 Harvard street northwest, and Robert Snowden Camera, of 410 Eleventh street northeast.

Because of lack of vacancies a number of members of the Annapolis class of 1933 were not commissioned. However, under an act of Congress in May, 88 members of this group have been taken into the service.

Besides the Washington men the following are among the graduating class of 1933 to receive their belated commissions: James D. Ferguson, Thomas Edwin Norris, Hilary Cecil Rowe and Glover T. Ferguson, all of Annapolis, and William Edward Seipt, of Sparrows Point, Md.

Yankee's Skipper Out of Cup Race

Capt. Gus Olsen's Leg Broken on Ship.

Newport, R. I., July 19 (AP). Yankee of Boston, leading aspirant for the defense of the America's Cup, suffered a severe blow today through an accident that took her professional skipper, Capt. Gus Olsen, out of the fight.

Capt. Olsen's right leg was broken when it was caught in a loop of a jib sheet and jammed against a block. The sheet became loose and Capt. Olsen rushed to make it fast when a bight of the cordage caught him. The accident will keep him ashore at least until after the international classic.

Yankee's opponent of the day, Gerard Lambert's old cup candidate Vanitie, now ineligible, unaware of the accident, continued on around the 30-mile windward-leeward course alone, covering the distance in about 3 hours 40 minutes.

"Alibi Girl" Backs Hickman Defense Plea

Blonde in Slaying Case Backs Story of Wild Party in Hotel.

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—Resuming its attack on Millard Hickman's witness-stand story in his trial for the murder of Louise Jeppesen, the prosecution today turned to the early morning hours of May 13 Hickman said he spent with Blanche McKay, blonde "alibi girl."

Hickman's alibi is that he and Miss McKay were in his apartment at the time of the slaying. The middle-aged marine engineer mounted the stand with a steady step and settled into the chair today for the third day of cross-examination about events preceding the finding of the Ogden (Utah) girl's body in Golden Gate Park May 13 just before dawn.

After getting renewed denial from Hickman that he had invited Louise Jeppeson to his apartment with any intention of keeping her there all night, Prosecutor Peter J. Mullens waded into questions about the time spent with Miss McKay.

Hickman has testified that after a gay foursome party lasting most of the night, "Tommy" Dee and Miss McKay went home, Miss Jeppesen left in a huff 20 minutes later after a verbal spat, and he then went to Miss McKay's hotel and persuaded her to go back to his hotel and remain with him until a late hour Sunday morning. Miss McKay corroborated this story on the stand.

Today's queries went into details of the time with Miss McKay. Courtroom fans dropped their eyes as Hickman turned to the bench.

"Do I have to answer those questions?" he pleaded.

Then he appealed to his attorney to get a ruling, adding in a tone easily audible.

"I gave that information to police in confidence, on the promise it would not be brought out in court."

But Judge Lile T. Jacks ruled that the question must be answered, insofar as they might have bearing on his guilt or innocence, and the cross-examination continued.

Gas Price Relief Promised Dealers

Oil Code Administrator May Make Exception.

Carrying on their fight against recent price increases in gasoline in this area, the Northern Virginia Gasoline Dealers Association conferred yesterday with Senator Harry F. Byrd and M. V. Hartmann, vice president of the Gulf Refining Co. and chairman of the marketing committee of the Oil Code Commission.

The dealers were assured that every effort will be made to work out a solution of the problem, arising from differences between the District of Columbia and northern Virginia prices.

It may be necessary to ask an exception of the oil code administrator, whereby the difference in the tax may be absorbed.

It is expected that membership in the National Association of Filling Stations will be sought by all local dealers in the area.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co. —Advt.

Cool Caverns Reveal Many Freak, Beautiful Formations

The chronic complainer who mourns that the picturesque quality has vanished from the American scene has not considered Virginia, where the Sunday driver may cross the Potomac in a primitive craft that well might have been on hand to ferry the first white man over the river. There, too, the Sunday driver's wife will thrill to the discovery of a roadside stand displaying chairs made with pegs and rush bottoms exactly as they were made a century ago. And the casual tourist may chance upon a baptism in the river, more compelling in simplicity and dignity than the ceremony ever has been portrayed by masters of literature or drama. Yet these are only incidents in a day's drive crowded with scenic grandeur, below the earth and far above it, and dotted with milestones of historic significance.

Though it may bear the earmarks of the press agent's hysterical enthusiasm, this is the bona fide chronicle of a 200-mile trip from the Nation's Capital to the Shenandoah Valley and back again. Not precisely from the Capital, or we should have missed that rare trip across the Potomac, but from the suburban area northwest of Washington.

"Ferry," the map indicated at Whites Corners, but it gave no hint of the adventure to be encountered there. No wharf is in sight, for the scow which is to take passengers across simply noses up to the shore and drops a rude gangplank onto the sand. Two cars drive on board; the water laps perilously close to the gunwales; the ferryman pushes off with his pikestaff and you're on your way. Power is supplied by an automobile motor, its duty on the road long since done, installed in a punt that noses alongside. To calm the fears of the timid, this strange craft is leashed to an overhead cable, forestalling the danger of drifting downstream!

"Explore" Cave by Elevator.

Back roads, pleasantly free of traffic even on a Sunday, led, after a half-hour of driving, to the historic Lee highway, where frequent markers transform history, that may have seemed dull in school text books, to a vivid drama of the battles in the Manassas campaigns.

Where the road bridges the Rappahanock, a curious crowd gathered last Sunday to watch a baptism in the river. Worshipers gathered at the water's edge; watchers above, and among the latter was the silence inspired by an impressive ceremony.

At Warrenton, rolling hills and pastoral scenes begin to give way to more rugged country, with glimpses of the Blue Ridge Mountains in the distance. The smooth, broad highway, curved and banked, makes the trip over difficult grades easy for the modern mountain climber in his motor vehicle. Then down into the Shenandoah Valley and its caverns.

The caves of Virginia show the rare spectacle of stalactites and stalagmites in the making. Also, they boast temperatures that no artificial air-cooling system can rival. Water still drips through 200 feet of rock to form curious pillars and hanging formations. The guide will insist on pointing out eagles, both American and bald, sculptured naturally in the stone; he will exhort the imagination of his audience to see fried eggs, Turkish towels and Paisley shawls in the formation. But the visitor is most likely to be impressed by the immensity of the caverns, and the maze of passages that comprise a single network. All the caverns open to tourists are lighted and one even boasts an elevator for the comfort of its guests.

Roadside Furniture Fair.

Wayside stands prove that handwork is not a lost art in Virginia. Unfinished chairs, in sizes for household use, for children and for dolls, and reed baskets of varied sizes and shapes tempt the bargain hunter. Another stand is headquarters for beautifully finished walnut chairs, comfortable rockers and quaint ladder-backs, made with wooden pegs instead of nails and strongly strung with rush bottoms. No return to native industry, as a protest to the machine age, are these products, but the work of a family which has been engaged in this specialty for more than a century.

From Luray up the Stoney Man trail and over the mountain is a hazardous trip on a narrow, dirt road abounding in hair-pin curves and not to be recommended unless nerves are stanch and motor functioning perfectly, but the summit provides a view that an airplane flight can not improve upon. Four thousand feet below stretches the Shenandoah Valley, a checkerboard of farms dotted with dolls' houses.

Better wait for the thrill of this view, until the Skyline drive is opened to the public. Riding the crest of the ridge, the motorist will enjoy miles of a road that afford a bird's-eye view of the country-side adjacent and distant mountains. Within five miles of the Eastern terminus of the drive is "The Saddle," a stretch of road built atop a sheer cliff, affording a view for miles on both sides. Under present plans, the drive will be open to the public in September.

The eastern approach to the drive is tunneled through the rocky mountainside, a project that takes is place beside other engineering feats of international renown. Thus has man contrived with nature to make Virginia a land to marvel at and enjoy.

Second Hand Low.

In the game of Whist they used to say that Second Hand should always play low and Third Hand should play high. In Contract you will hear this ancient adage quoted without a full understanding of what it means or should mean. As a matter of fact, this is another instance of the many cases where the word "always" does not apply at the Contract Bridge table. There are frequent occasions when a defending player should play not low, but high, Second Hand, but in doing so he must, as in all other phases of the game, have a sound and sufficient reason. Generally, the sound reason for Second Hand's playing high against Declarer's lead from either his own hand or Dummy is a desire to conserve his partner's entry card so that it may be used after the defending side's long suit has been established.

It was a misapprehension of this wise variation of the rule of Second Hand high that brought disaster in a Duplicate game to the East and West pair on the hand below:

The bidding: (Figure after bid refers to numbered explanatory paragragh.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT(1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A bad bid with an almost worthless hand. South should have passed.

The hand itself is of little interest. It is just another one of those seemingly pointless collections of cards which are neither fish, fowl nor good red herring, but it is a hand of the type which produces in Duplicate Bridge much greater swings than do those which justify the bidding of Slams. The part-score hands in games scored on the match point basis are, contrary to general belief, the "swing" hands, and it was the East and West defense which produced a tremendous swing for North and South here.

West's Opening lead was the club 7, which was won in Dummy with the Jack. When the Declarer surveyed his meager holdings he saw that he must be fortunate indeed if he was to fulfill his contract. His own hand contained but a single entry, the club Ace, and his hope of fulfilling his contract hung by the slenderest of threads. Every good Bridge player knows that when you can not achieve anything will, you still have one chance re-by your own efforts, strive as you maining and that is that opponents may make mistakes. South, in this instance, decided to bank on that one slender possibility.

From Dummy he led the eight of diamonds, on which to his pleasure, as well, it might be said, as to his surprise, East immediately played the Ace. A club was returned, which South won perforce, and now led a small diamond, upon which West played the Queen and North the King, and again the Declarer was delighted to see the Jack drop. Now three more rounds of diamonds were taken, South having conserved the seven as a possible entry by the lead of the eight to the second trick. Upon this diamond West discarded one club and the three and two of hearts. East discarded one club, one spade and the heart Ten. South now decided to become greedy and led the spade 10, which East won with the Queen. East returned his last club, and West cashed three club tricks, but at the end was forced to lead a spade, on which Dummy's Jack was played, permitting the Declarer not only to fulfill his contract but to make an overtrick. It is, perhaps, needless to add that the post-mortem which followed when East and West scanned the score was heated, and hardly polite.

Senor Quiros Plies Brush For Gilberts

Starts New Canvas Next Week at New York Summer Estate.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The Argentine artist, Senor Don Cesare Bernaldo Quiros, who has become one of the most popular members of Capital society during the two seasons he has made his home in Washington, is about to absent himself from the city for several months.

Senor Quiros occupied a handsome house on Sheridan Circle last year, but for several weeks has been making his home in the apartment of the former Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Zaldumbide, on Sixteenth street. The Minister and Senora de Zaldumbide are in Geneva where the former is accredited to Switzerland. He is also a delegate to the League of Nations, and Minister of Ecuador to Rome.

The artist has found the apartment ideal for studio use. The house, formerly the home of Mrs. Benjamin Warder on K street, was moved several years ago to Sixteenth street. The high ceilings and long windows give advantageous light for his work.

Portrait of Mrs. Legare.

Since he moved there, Senor Quiros has painted the handsome portrait of Mrs. S. Kent Legare, depicting her as she appeared at the Italian Embassy costume ball early in the spring, wearing a Venetian ball gown of shimmering gold with heavy flounces of gold lace, a jaunty tricorne hat of gold with a Venetian veil of shadowy gilt lace falling under her chin and over bare shoulders. The striking coloring of Mrs. Legare—rich brown hair, magnolia skin, and deep red lips, is admirably portrayed.

Next week Senor Quiros will be established at the Apple Trees, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parker Gilbert, at Locust Valley, N. Y.

One of the first portraits that Senor Quiros did in Washington was one of Mrs. Gilbert, who visited Washington frequently as the guest of the former Ambassador of Spain and Senora de Cardenas. At the Apple Trees the artist will start a portrait of the very small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert. Little Louise is only a few months old, and it will be the first study that Senor Quiros has attempted with such a young subject.

Plans Argentine Trip.

When his work on Long Island is finished, Senor Quiros will sail for Argentina to spend two months in Buenos Aires. He will visit his father's famous ranch near the Argentine capital, and fraternize again with the gauchos, among whom he lived for several years, and whom he has immortalized in his paintings.

Senor Quiros has been much interested in the American colored race, finding among its members excellent subjects for painting. He says that the color of their skin interests him beyond that of any people he has seen. He is working on a large canvas portraying five colored subjects in intense color.

The artist will return to this country the end of October and will again come to Washington for the winter.

Yacht Club Party Honors Nicklaws

Misses Atchison and Leib Fete Newlyweds.

Miss Elizabeth Johnston Forbushes House Guest

Deputy Administrator of the NRA and Mrs. Arthur R. Forbush will have as their house guest over the week-end their cousin, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Johnston, of New York, both native Washingtonians. Several informal midsummer entertainments have been planned in honor of Miss Johnston, among them a cocktail party by Mr. and Mrs. Forbush at their home at 1310 New Hampshire avenue, this afternoon.

Miss Johnston is a graduate of Vassar and a specialist in home decoration. Her father is a distinguished attorney, whose practice before the Supreme Court frequently brings him to Washington.

Chilean Envoy Host at Picnic For Diplomats

Feast of Spicy Empenados Served at Outing on River Bank.

The Charge d'Affaires of Chile, Senor Don Emilio Edwards Bello, and Senora de Edwards entertained at a large picnic party Wednesday evening.

The guests, about 25 members of the Diplomatic Corps and resident society, gathered at the Chilean Embassy at 6 o'clock fortified with packages of sandwiches and other delicious things. Senor and Senora de Edwards took a large box of the famous Chilean empanados, deliciously hot and spicy. The picnickers motored far down the Mount Vernon boulevard to a wooded knoll overlooking the river. It was a de luxe picnic, with servants spreading rugs on the ground, arranging the paper table cloth and laying out the food.

Among the guests was Senorita Maria Edwards Bello, sister of the Minister, who has been visiting at the Embassy since her brother came from his post in Havana to assume charge of the Embassy here. Senorita Edwards will leave Washington today for New York and will sail tomorrow aboard the Santa Maria to return to her home in Santiago. Senor Don Emilio Edwards, jr., son of the Minister and Senora de Edwards, will sail with his aunt.

Senor Edwards will go to New York Sunday to spend several days, returning here the middle of next week to join Senora de Edwards and their daughters, with whom he will sail for Havana at the end of the month. The Minister will continue his trip to Haiti and Santo Domingo to present his credentials to the governments of Haiti and the Dominican Republic, and after a short stay will go to Cuba to resume his duties as Chilean Minister.

Sacketts to Spend Season in Canada

Mrs. Taft Also Sojourns at Murray Bay.

The former United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett, who have been at their home in Louisville, Ky., since their return from Europe, have gone to Murray Bay, Canada, for the remainder of the summer. They stopped in New York for a few days en route to the North.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of Chief Justice Taft, is at her summer home in Murray Bay, where she will have her sons and daughter and their families visiting her throughout the season. Mrs. Taft has been among the summer colony at the Canadian resort for many years, the late Chief Justice having built their home there years ago.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who are motoring North through New England, will spend some time at Murray Bay before starting home to Washington the end of September.

Forum Organizes Art Museum Trip

View of Cone Collection Goal at Baltimore.

The International Art Forum is organizing a group of art lovers under the direction of Mr. Francis J. Reuter, to visit the Baltimore Museum of Art early in August to view the Cone collection, one of the most important private collections of modern art in this country.

The dominating note of the collection is the unique selection of canvases by Henri Matisse, tracing his development from the Chardin period up to the present. In this group alone are 34 paintings and 9 important bronzes by the same artist. Other artists represented are Courbet, Cezanne, Derain, Degas, Pissaro, Picasso, Redon, Renoir, Sisley, Van Gogh, Vlaminck, Dalou, Rodin, Monet, Coubine, Friesz, Stevens and Boudin.

A member of the museum staff will escort the party. Information may be obtained from the secretary, International Art Forum, Carlton Hotel.

Sewing is recreation for children; it also encourages the creative impulse, say play authorities. These little girls at Rosedale Playground are making school dresses for next year.

Fashion Toys, Sew Costumes For Festivals

Assistant Supervisor Says This Recreation Most Valuable.

How are the 25,000 children who daily visit Washington's playgrounds kept busy and happy? This, the third of a series of articles dealing with child recreation, tells of the many forms of amusement provided for them.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

WHEN the afternoon sun makes even green grass burn through the soles of thin play shoes, and the sturdiest youngsters are too hot and tired to play games, the hour for handicraft work has arrived in Washington's playgrounds.

Then the boys and girls hurry to their work benches and begin their day's "busy work." And as they work swiftly and carefully, they talk excitedly of the dramatic and sporting events that will take place in the latter part of the playground's summer season.

The costume the little girl is working on will grace a star performer in the folk dance festival, the tiny marionette another is fashioning so carefully will act in a puppet show, perhaps the model airplane Jimmy is making will win the annual endurance flight.

"We feel the handicraft work is even more important than the games children learn in the playgrounds," Richard Tennyson, assistant supervisor of District playgrounds, said yesterday.

Scheduled Play.

"For while the games build up the children's bodies and teach them to work together, the handicraft is creative and has a definite carryover value. For instance, the little girls love sewing; it is recreation for them; it is also useful. Too often their mothers can not sew or do not have the time to teach them, and it is something they will need in after life. And many of these little girls make dresses the younger members of the family can wear to school in the winter."

The playground day is divided into a definite schedule, and the handicraft comes in the afternoon, when the children are tired of vigorous games.

"They need different kinds of recreation," pointed out Mr. Tennyson, "and we try to provide creative work and physical exercise. We have something to interest every type of child.

"Basket weaving is popular with both boys and girls. Every playground supervisor must have a course in basket weaving before starting to work. The children work very fast, and it is not unusal for one child to make as many as 150 or 200 baskets and trays during the summer. At the end of the year we have an exhibit."

Make Costumes.

The children are especially interested in making costumes for the festivals, according to Mr. Tennyson, and also like to make track suits for the contestants to wear at the meet each year.

"Aircraft modeling is the most popular handicraft work with the boys," he said. "We have excellent instructors who teach them to make everything to scale. The boys fly the airplanes, using a rubber band for an engine, and every year they have an endurance flight. Last year a boy built a plane that stayed up 24 minutes.

"These planes are not only made because it is fun. They are very valuable to the airplane manufacturer, who can take a model built perfectly to scale, and tell if a large one will be a success."

The newest handicraft work for boys is making small yachts, according to Mr. Tennyson.

"This has never been done on District playgrounds before," he said, "and all the boys are very much interested. We have 12 wading pools in the city playgrounds, and the boys will conduct yacht races on these."

Boys and girls work together on the marionette shows.

Manipulate Figures.

"They both make the figures," said Mr. Tennyson. "The girls make the costumes and design the stage sets. When the show is produced, the children manipulate the figures.

"The children also design and make all the posters used on the playgrounds. They have contests. Those who are talented, draw and color their own, while others cut out pictures from magazines and paste them on. We always have a slogan contest to see who can write the best slogan for a poster. The posters sometimes are intended to teach lessons in civic pride, such as those urging playgrounds be kept clean. Sometimes they advertise the important events in playground life.

"Very few people know what interesting things children do in handicraft work. But the interest is constantly growing, for classes are getting larger."

Miss Maude N. Parker, director of girl's and women's activities in District playgrounds, was credited by Mr. Tennyson for much of the increased interest now being shown in handicraft.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: What are a second wife's chances for happiness when there are already children? The man is a widower and I know if the two of us were alone in the world we could make a go of it. But he has children and I can't help considering what their attitude will be, and whether this will be detrimental to our happiness.

* * * *

Will they consider me an intruder? Is the stepmother always the traditional ogre, so much so that odds are against her even if she tries to do what is right? And if I should marry this man and the children resent it, will it raise a barrier between us?

* * * *

Apparently, from the divorce records, marriage is a difficult enough proposition even without undercurrents such as this. When I marry, I want it to be forever. Dare I risk it under the circumstances?

J. D. W.

Up to Individual.

MY DEAR J. D. W.: I believe with time, patience and tact, a sincerely warm-hearted and unselfish woman can write her own ticket as to whether stepchildren look upon her as the traditional ogre or accept her as a sympathetic and satisfactory foster mother.

* * * *

Naturally, the problem of creating an understanding relationship with your husband's children will not make easier the early days of your marriage.

* * * *

On the other hand, you have an opportunity for making yourself doubly dear and indispensable to this man and of winning his everlasting respect, admiration and gratitude, by ably discharging the difficult dual role of wife and foster mother.

When a man with children marries he usually does so for two carefully considered reasons: First, because he finds a woman he loves, and almost equally first, because he thinks he has found a gentle mother for his flock.

* * * *

Without knowing the children, it is impossible to say whether they may consider you an intruder. If they are very young they probably won't. If you are kind and friendly and helpful to them they will soon come to regard you as a welcome and pleasant addition to their life. If they are in their teens they may be either resentful or glad to have stability restored to their rooftree.

* * * *

There's Little Risk.

If they are old enough to be on their own they may be glad to have a certain reluctant responsibility for their father's welfare taken off their minds.

In any case, let your husband take the initiative in establishing an entente cordiale. But don't be aloof, self-conscious or too uncertain of yourself in your new role. Whatever their ages, from 2 years to 20, greet them as friends rather than as a potential mother.

* * * *

In the beginning, it will probably be best to let the father hand down decisions and administer discipline, if such are necessary. After all, they are his children. As his helpmeet, you can sustain his decisions, if in your opinion they are fair.

* * * *

I don't think the children's possible resentment of your new place in their father's life will necessarily raise a barrier between you. A man of his age is capable of making decisions for himself, and to challenge his opinion is usually to confirm him in it.

Dare you risk marriage with this man under the circumstances? Yes. The risk is really no greater than the risk of any marriage.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Nazi Marriage Bug Attacks Berlin's Lovely Mannequins

The Lissom Frauleins Who Pose for German Advertisements May Appear Glamorous but their Aspirations Are Exceedingly Domestic.

In this, the third of a series on mannequins of Europe, you read of the beautiful models of Berlin—collectively known as Fraulein Inge.

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—In smart modiste shops, in cluttered artists' studios, and in front of impersonal cameras, Fraulein Inge shrugs her slender, shapely shoulders, lifts her carefully cultivated eyebrows—and hopes for marriage.

"Ach!" she cries, and her voice is honest, "I want to marry, of course!"

Speaking is Germany's mannequin model. She is, as a composite person, Germany's contribution to the international sales value of a pretty face and an attractive, flowing, uninterrupted sort of figure.

Like her fellow-workers throughout the world, Fraulein Inge has her particular talents.

She can progress swayingly across a gilded salon, shimmering like a burnished peacock. She can strap a bathing suit around her perfect hips with deft conviction. She can smile a wide variety of smiles, on cash provocation. She can wear a hat, ach, just so!

Caught by Nazi Influence.

She does any and all of these things in order that someone else may be lured to buy what they need, want, or can't afford.

But Fraulein Inge, however, glamorous she may appear in newspaper, magazine advertisements and fashion shows, is not really so glamorous at heart. Throughout Germany she parades her natural charms, but always hoping that the parade will be blocked and canceled by a good, solid set of marriage chains.

German mannequins and models have been caught, and definitely so, it seems, by the Nazi encouragement toward marriage.

And what sort of a man does Fraulein Inge want to marry?

The answer is almost disturbingly prompt.

"Oh—a man of good character, good looking, of good position * * * with, of course"—and Fraulein Inge smiles an intelligent little smile—"a little money somewhere around."

"A German?"

"Of course!" There is a mild note of protestation in Fraulein Inge's voice, although she adds, as an afterthought, that American men aren't so bad.

All told, there are several ways in which Germany's mannequin models may differ from those of other countries.

They are, it would seem, less professional as a group, since Berlin does not rank as a great style center. They do not have as much lush and velvet background. And they can entertain no great hopes for a theatrical career, although some do, since German film production is limited at the present time in the way of such opportunities.

Fraulein Inge likes her work, but insists it is chiefly a step toward learning business or a process of marking time until Prince Charming suggests marriage might be arranged.

Fraulein Inge originates, for the most part, from the poorer stratum, but soon acquires silk stocking habits. She has no particular training for her work. She is inclined toward having a rich friend of the opposite sex within hailing distance, but her opportunities for meeting rich men through her work are somewhat limited.

Pay Not Too High.

"That happens only in America," is her quick declaration.

In an exclusive style shop such as that of Frau Johanna Marbach, who has catered to such celebrities as Greta Garbo, or in a large establishment such as that of Hermann Gerson, she can earn possibly 200 marks a month (about $55 par exchange). Posing for advertising copy she can earn from 15 to 35 marks a sitting, providing the photographs turn out well.

Tomorrow.
Glorious Gloria, of London.

She is typical of the German models to be seen swaying glamorously through Berlin dress shops or posing carefully for photographers and artists. Models meet rich men only in America, she and her working sisters say with conviction.

PILLAR TO POST

SENATOR and Mrs. William H. King's 11-year-old twins are fraternal twins; they present a different problem from the identical twins of Senator Clark, mentioned recently in this column.

Jack and Eleanor King are contrasts in temperament and appearance. Jack is sturdy and blond, while his pretty sister has brown eyes and dark brown hair parted in the middle with two quaint braids, hanging down her back. In temperament they differ even more. Eleanor is somewhat aggressive in a way that is quite captivating. Jack finds her irresistible and is apt to follow where she leads.

* * * *

"His attachment for her is extreme," explained Mrs. King. "Away from her influence he is quite the dominant male, but because he does not enjoy doing anything without her, he plays with her little girl friends, perhaps too much. For that reason we have separated them this summer. Eleanor was sent to a girls' camp and Jack to a camp where boys would be his only companions."

* * * *

This habit of deferring to his sister began when they were babies. He learned to walk while Eleanor was still crawling, and the chivalrous infant would always wait for her to catch up with him.

A Turtle Goes.

Knowing he'd defend her to the last ditch from whatever enemy might appear, Eleanor accepts his devotions complacently. Her attitude was illustrated once when they each possessed a pet turtle. A little girl friend became ill and they took their turtles to see her. When they returned one of the turtles was missing.

* * * *

"We gave her Jackie's turtle," announced Eleanor, as though conscious of a deed well done.

Jack is instinctively chivalrous and though he has never been given specific instructions to do so, he always gives up his seat in a street car to a woman. When he was not more than six years old he performed this courtesy. After getting up he asked in a loud voice, "Why is it that all men aren't polite?"

One time their nurse took them to the Arlington Memorial and they noticed a sentry pacing back and forth shouldering a gun.

"Why does he carry that gun?" asked Jackie.

"To shoot people with when they disobey," answered the nurse solemnly.

Eleanor stepped up to the sentry with a swish of her little skirts and an impish gleam in her eye.

"Shoot me," she dared him, "I'm bad."

The nurse, Miss Carry B. Lincoln, a sweet and white-haired New Englander, likes to tell of their many pranks.

Once they hid her glasses and then pretended to help in the frantis search, rummaging in bureau drawers, looking in corners. All the time they knew the lost spectacles were reposing under the bed.

* * * *

She tells another story on herself that has to do with chewing gum. They liked gum, but she had forbidden them to have it, although she herself chewed it occasionally. She had a piece in her mouth one evening when she put the children to bed. When she was about to turn out the light Jackie called her.

* * * *

"Come here, Linky, and tell me good night."

"But I have, Jackie," she said after humoring him with another hug. "Why did you want me to do it again?"

"I wanted to smell the gum," giggled Jackie.

Choir to Sing in Russia, But No Church Music

The Westminster Choir, which sang here last spring, will sail August 25 for a European tour, which will include Russia. Concerts will be given in Moscow and Leningrad at the invitation of the Soviet government. At request of the government the program will be confined to secular music, with stress on American folk songs.

English Wives Held Contented In Dependency

They Don't Manage Husbands as U. S. Women Do, Says Visitor.

THE American husband, generous, indulgent, lets his wife manage him as well as their home and children. Exactly the reverse is true in England, according to an American woman who returned to Washington this week from a three years' visit in London.

"While most American women take advantage of their husbands' generosity, English wives seem fairly content to remain subordinate to their husbands," said Mrs. Anne T. Beadle yesterday at the home of her sister-in-law, Miss Mary A. Beadle, in Georgetown. After a few days' stay in the Capital, Mrs. Beadle will proceed to her home on the Pacific Coast.

The English woman is satisfied with her place in the home because tradition and custom decree the man should rule the household, believes the American.

Youth in England.

"Everybody, everything over there is hemmed in with tradition," she declared. "Young people of today are forced to conform to customs that were established centuries ago. They make a few feeble attempts at rebellion, but custom and tradition are too strong for them."

Youth is a handicap in England, Mrs. Beadle reports.

"In the United States," she said, "we expect boys to become independent and to look after themselves as soon as they have finished college. But not in England. Over there a man of 30 is considered little more than a child. He must consult his father on all business matters. And his father sees to it his son does exactly as his great-great-grandfather did."

The most famous of all English customs, afternoon tea, has the unqualified approval of the American.

The Calling Hour.

"It simplifies things so," she smiled. "An English woman is never annoyed by unexpected guests dropping in at noon. She is never disturbed in the early afternoon. But at 4:30 she is 'at home.' She is dressed and ready to receive any acquaintances who care to chat over the tea cups. Or, if she wants to call upon some friends, she knows can be sure of finding them home at tea time."

Eating fills a big part of the English family's life, according to Mrs. Beadle. After breakfast at 8 there is coffee at 11, then luncheon at 1, tea at 4:30, and dinner some time between 7 and 9.

Keeping house in London takes a lot more time than it does in the United States, she observed, because English servants, like their masters and mistresses, are slaves to custom. They refuse to have anything to do with newfangled labor-saving devices.

Distrust Conveniences.

"They're afraid of electricity. And because they fear change in any form, they distrust all modern conveniences," she said.

The American admitted she was disappointed in the appearance of English women. She failed to see any of those famed wild-rose complexions.

"They don't wear their clothes with as much style as American women. And they choose such uninteresting things."

In addition to a rigorous observance of the tea hour, Mrs. Beadle thinks the United States would do well to copy England's police system.

"Their policemen are no more noble at heart than ours," she declared. "It's the system that keeps them from ever being corrupted. Officers are constantly transferred, so it would be foolish for anybody to buy one off. Within a few days he'd have to buy another one, and then still another one."

Aged Mother Takes to Pulpit

Lived for Three Quarters of a Century and Still Played Leap Frog.

CHESHIRE, Conn., July 19 (Spl.). At the age when most women are looking around for chimney corners and comfortable rockers, Mrs. George Aldridge, of Toronto, 75-year-old mother of the Rev. Wilfred G. Aldridge, pastor of the Cheshire Methodist Episcopal Church, is making a name for herself in the pulpit.

In her son's absence Sunday she preached a highly impressive sermon on "What Is Your Life?" to more than 200 persons in the little century-old brick church on the State highway.

Her ability as a preacher won acclaim before this episode. As grand chaplain of the Universal Craftsmen, then in convention in Rochester, she preached a memorial oration for President Warren G. Harding when word of his death was received there. On Mother's Day of this year she delivered three sermons in Toronto before large congregations.

A native of England, Mrs. Aldridge was ordained as a replacement preacher more than 50 years ago. Most of her time, however, has been devoted to organization work.

She has been prominent in the work of the W. C. T. U., having helped Lady Frances Somerset to found the English branch. In addition to her activity in church and social work, Mrs. Aldridge seeks further outlets for her boundless vitality in sports.

According to her son, she recently went swimming. After staying in the water for more than an hour, she emerged to play leapfrog with boys on the beach.

Strictly Speaking

Answer These.

1. Where is the accent in Esquire, the title of a popular magazine for men?

2. Define the italicized word in this sentence: "'If you do this the way I tell you, you will succeed,' he added didactically."

3. What is the correct pronunciation for the final word of a prayer?

4. What noted German composer gave us "Lohengrin" and "Tannhauser?"

5. What is the difference between a provincialism and a colloquialism?

Check Here.

1. According to the editors of this magazine the accent is on the last syllable—Es-QUIRE.

2. Didactically, pronounced di-DACK-ti-kal-ly, means instructively.

3. Amen is correctly pronounced ay-MEN, except in singing when it is always ah-MEN.

4. Wilhelm Richard Wagner —pronounced VAHG-ner.

5. A provincialism is a word peculiar to one section of the country. Common provincialisms are "gallery" for "porch," "poke" for "sack," and "spud" for "potato." A colloquialism is a word or expression commonly used in talking but not correct in formal writing. All contractions are colloquialisms. So is the italicized word in the following sentence: "She was anxious to go."

Democratic Woman To Leave for Tour

Mrs. June Fickel to Speak at Iowa Convention.

Women's part in the New Deal will be the subject of an address to be delivered at the Iowa State Democratic convention, at Des Moines, July 26, by Mrs. June Fickel, assistant director of the women's division of the National committee. The talk will be in response to an invitation from the Iowa State organization, of which Mrs. Fickel is vice chairman.

In addition to her other duties, Mrs. Fickel is regional adviser for women in the States of Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota and Nebraska. After the convention at Des Moines, she will see leaders in the five Middle Western States, offering her assistance in organization and educational programs. Mrs. Fickel will make the tour in her car, returning to Washington in approximately three weeks.

Small Details, Five of Them, Aids to Beauty

What Make-up Should Be Applied First? Read and Learn.

By Frances Mangum.

THERE are five small details that control a lot of beauty, but strangely enough they're details that many women ignore.

For instance—

A cream rouge should never be applied over powder. It should be smoothed on the bare skin and blended in with a gentle rotary movement of the fingers. When it is put on last it cakes and causes the skin to appear rough and streaked. Besides, the true rich color, which its manufacturer doubtless took months to perfect, is clouded and changed when it becomes an aftermath to powder.

Dry Rouge After Powder.

On the other hand, dry rouge should be applied after powder and toned down by another powder film. When smoothing it on be careful to blend the edges so it is not apparent where rouge leaves off and powder begins.

Lipstick should always be applied well inside to prevent a glaring dividing line when the lips are parted.

The lashes should be brushed after the make-up is completed. In this way, bits of powder, rouge and cream are removed. To keep lashes glossy and groomed, brush them at least once every day. The proper way to brush them is, first, in the opposite direction from that in which they grow. Then in the right direction. This stimulates circulation and improves the lash growth. Brushing them both in the morning and at night with an eyelash grower or just plain castor oil will give them a tendency to curl. Be sure to brush the lower ones down and upper ones up.

Cream, Then Tonic.

Liquefying cleansing cream should be followed by a good skin tonic. The tonic removes excess grease, freshens the skin and closes the pores. If it isn't used, the oily surface of the skin is apt to attract fine grains of dust, which lodge in the pores and enlarge them.

An astringent should never be used on the skin unless thorough cleaning has been effected. Otherwise every pat that presses in the astringent also grinds in dirt and foreign matter.

A Book Club For 1 Serves Member Well

Sponsoring Store Sends Literary Preferences When You Wish.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

EVERYBODY in Washington has an opportunity to join a unique club.

It's a book club, and each club is made up of one person. Ever so often the store which sponsors the club sends out a book along any prescribed type. Not one of the so-called best books of the month, mind you, but the kind of book you like. All you do is leave your name and address and the type of book you prefer. Then you sit back and wait for the book to be delivered at you door. If it isn't exactly what you want the store will exchange it for another. As a result, satisfaction is guaranteed.

How often the books are to be sent, and how many sent at a time is a matter of choice. Each club member draws up her own regulations and the store follows them.

Soap Sale, 7 Varieties.

If some all-seeing eye could peer in the windows of all the homes in town it would doubtless discover that 99 out of 100 housewives use 1 of 7 popular brands of soap. And, furthermore, it might find supplies running low, a good time to proclaim a soap sale.

Seven kinds of soap, hard cakes for the tub or sink and flakes and grains for the wash tub, are all reduced. In a case of this kind the more one buys the more one saves, so start now and call in an order. Then count up the money saved and buy yourself a luxury present.

* * * *

Another Cream.

Another cream! There must be hundreds of thousands of them by now, and each one with some properties that warrant its mention in this column.

This one is interesting because it does three things all at once. It cleanses, nourishes, and acts as a powder foundation. The large 1 pound jar is covered with a pastel fabric easily washable.

Remember, the most charming hostess is the one who provides the needs of her guests before they're asked for. Here is a cream sure to suit the week-end guest who might have forgotten to bring her own. It is fine to keep at hand for dinner and bridge guests. And speaking of "bridge," it would be a grand bridge prize.

* * * *

Hose Protection.

Rubber is being put to so many varied uses now it isn't surprising to find it in the shape of small, round disks for protecting hose.

These queer-looking gadgets would confuse the most intrepid shopper save for their direction card. It seems they fasten to the garters without pinning or sewing, and once on they make it virtually impossible for garters to tear the sheerest hose.

A card of 16 for 15 cents.

* * * *

Pedicure Polish.

Thanks to the open sandals and stockingless vogue the pedicure is almost as popular as the manicure. Manufacturers of nail polishes are realizing toe-nail polish is as essential as finger-nail polish.

Women usually use the same polish for both purposes, but they find that although it looks well on the fingers it lacks gloss and smoothness on the toes, because it isn't of the right consistency to cover up the coarser ridges.

A company whose name is associated with a fine grade finger-nail polish is sponsoring a pedicure polish. It comes in a package with remover.

* * * *

French Prints.

It simply couldn't be helped! Those French print handkerchiefs were entirely too attractive not to have a wide appeal. And they were entirely too expensive for most purchasers.

So what happened? The usual thing. A handkerchief company put out inexpensive linens and cotton in the same French designs. It is almost impossible to tell the dollar hankies from these 10-cent ones.

Black and white prints, black with colored flowers, blues, tans, green and yellows all intermixed. There are plain ones and fancy, all with hand-turned hems.

* * * *

For Indoor Plants.

Now the sun is doing such a successful job of scorching gardens, many frail plants are being potted and moved indoors. But no proud housewife cares to have her sun room or porch cluttered with unsightly pots. Nor does she have to.

An F street shop has some fluted flower containers of pottery colored green, white and orange. These come on graceful iron holders. Two curving handles on each side make them conveniently portable. There are three sizes and three prices.

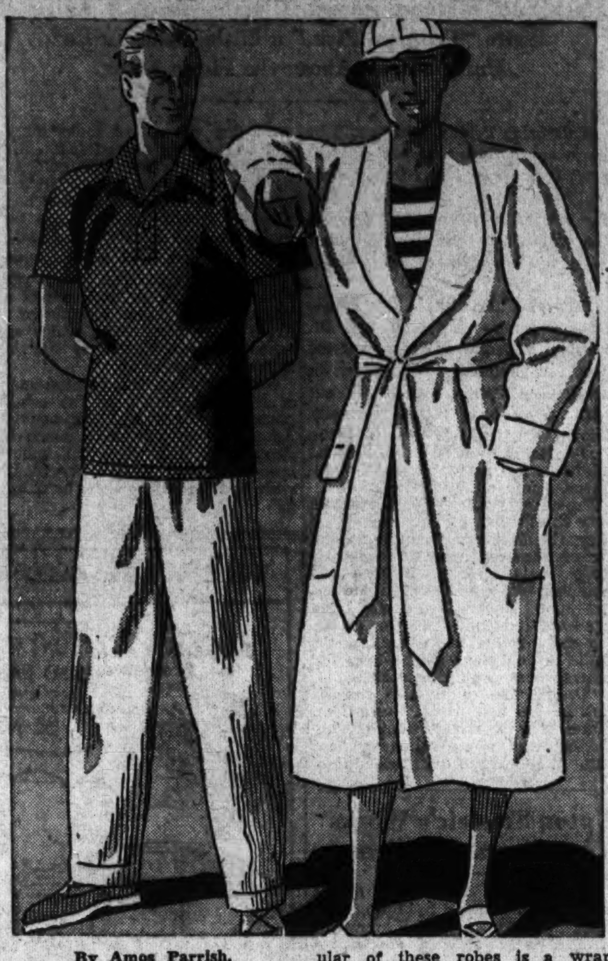
Less Suit, More Accessories, Idea for Men's Beach Outfits



By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Less bathing suit but more beach accessories seems to be the idea among men on popular beaches this season. And for every bathing shirt taken off, and more and more beaches are allowing it, there are several items ready to put on. Which should even things up with stern authorities.

The beach robe is one of these items being seen on more and more men as protection from both over-sunning and from chill.

Outstanding is the terry cloth robe, generally in plain colors of white, light blue, canary or tan, but occasionally in regatta stripes, broad bands of color graduated from a dark to a light blue or brown to yellow. The most popular of these robes is a wrap-around with shawl collar, similar to the one illustrated.

Other comfortable cotton robes include seersucker, ratine and waffle weaves, most of them with shawl collars, some with notch collars which unfold to cover the chest and some with a muffler device attached to the inside of the collar.

In addition there are good-looking foulard silk robes which appeal to men desirous of minimum weight and maximum coolness.

Beach shirts are another item going on when the bathing shirt comes off. Ranging from lightweight knit wools to terry cloth, there is a variety of models.

The hip-length shirt with short sleeves and crew neck, is one of the most popular. Another important one is the half-sleeved shirt with polo collar. This is made of knitted wool or cotton while the first shirt is usually terry or cotton.

Then there's the navy blue polo shirt in lightweight wool which can go over the golf course as well as the beach. This is illustrated. And for a combination of coverage and exposure, you have the "dish rag" shirt, made of an open mesh fabric which formerly knew the water only through the medium of the dish pan.

Men who go in for beach shorts usually have a pair of beach slacks, too. Generally made of duck, sail cloth, corduroy and various cotton weaves, they are cut full and casual.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

While You're Presrving, Try These Unusual Jam Recipes.

By Susan Mills.

BOTHERING to pun, jam is the best thing to help you out of one. A winter evening with a few unexpected guests will deplete the larder. A few extra picnic lunches in the fall will play havoc with your neatly labeled jars, unless you have a large quantity.

While you're canning and jellying, try a few unusual recipes. Variety is the spice of life and the interest in the jam.

Ginger Pear Jam.

(Using crystallized ginger)

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit

½ to 1 cup diced crystallized ginger

7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar

1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel, core and crush completely or grind about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. Dice about ½ pound crystallized ginger.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit, tightly packed, into large kettle. Add ginger, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

This product may take a week to reach a usable set.

Relish Dressing.

(For Vegetable Salads.)

1/3 cup French dressing
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 tablespoon chili sauce
3 olives, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Mix and chill ingredients.

How to Keep Well

Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Prevent Rickets Now.

Every sunny day must be used for its therapeutic value in the treatment of rickets in children. Although the disease has been known for centuries it is only in recent years that a clear conception of the cause of rickets has been obtained. We now know that sunlight, exercise, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D are the underlying factors in the prevention of this disease. Sunlight probably is the chief factor, as most diets will contain a fair amount of calcium and phosphorus.

The symptoms of rickets are easily recognized. There is usually restlessness, loss of appetite, and increased irritability, ofttimes noted by the rolling of the head from side to side. As the child grows the abdomen may be noticeably prominent. When the child begins to walk, bowing of the legs may be the most distinctive sign noted by the parents. The infant may appear to be well nourished, but on X-ray examination of the bones of the head, areas that should be fully calcified are shown to be soft.

Breast-fed children are in no sense immune from rickets should the mother be deprived of an adequate amount of outdoor exercise and sunlight.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m.

Be careful on this date that by a sharp reply you do not offend one who has now a great feeling of friendship, which might be turned into deep resentment. Many a thoughtlessly spoken rude comment has resulted in a costly conclusion. Business should prove fairly active and money should jingle in many a pocket. A supposed-to-be friend may try to deliberately lead you astray from the straight and narrow path by suggestive whisperings, to which it might be advisable to turn a deaf ear. In this case "let your conscience be your guide"—for good. There is a possibility of your receiving an important communication, the ignoring of which might lead to complications. If you wish to make any engagements of a social nature for the week-end, they should be made immediately, otherwise you may be disappointed.

If a woman and July 20 is your natal day, anticipate it being a very pleasant birthday, made brighter by the evidence of good wishes, providing you have not kept it a secret. It might be advisable for you to exercise more independence of thought where your own personal affairs are concerned, not allowing other people to sway your opinion. You might be happier, if you learn to be more tolerant of the faults of one you think a great deal of, and realize we all have faults of our own which need correcting. If engaged in commercial life or a career, develop more self-assertiveness and consideration for your associates. Do not allow others to be too dictatorial to you nor allow yourself to be too much so to others.

Children born on July 20, as they grow up, display an unusual amount of intelligence and physical fitness. They generally occasion little trouble or worry.

If a man and July 20 is your birthday, if you will depend on yourself and not on others, your results will be gratifying. Get the habit of thinking clearly and optimistically, and nothing can stop your meeting with success and making money.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin and her husband, Russian intellectuals, were imprisoned by the Soviets on falsified charges, leaving their small son to fend for himself. Past installments have revealed stories of suffering and privation within prison walls; this chronicle of misery continues in today's chapter.

"LOUD speaking, singing and tears are forbidden," was one of the prison rules.

In their anxiety to reduce our inner life to nothing, the OGPU went so far as to forbid us to cry, although in our state of nervous exhaustion many found it impossible to refrain from tears. Of course one could cry quietly, closing the eyes or pretending a headache, but as soon as the wardress noticed it through the peephole, the slot in the door went up and there followed rude remonstrances that there was nothing to cry for, that we musn't, that it was forbidden.

When old wardresses shouted in their rough but simple-hearted way, "What's the good of blubbering, stop it, now!" it did not sound half so offensive as the remarks of the young Communists with painted lips and plucked eyebrows, who had just been promoted to the rank of wardresses. They said with a sort of contempt, "For shame! You should have more self-respect. Stop, or I'll tell the chief warder."

But some of the prisoners were too ill and nervous to control themselves, and then there was trouble.

Dusk Was Worst.

At dusk, when darkness gathered in the cells, but for the sake of economy no lights were lit, one felt particularly miserable. Nothing could be more depressing than that cold sepulchral darkness; the cell seemed like the grave. Everyone felt wretched during that last half hour before the lights were turned on. I remember I said once to the old wardress:

"If ever I hang myself, it will be at dusk."

"Oh, don't say such things!" she said in genuine alarm. "I should be pleased to turn the light on, but it's not allowed," she added apologetically. "We have to save on lighting. As it is, I light up five minutes earlier than I ought. If only No. 2 doesn't begin to cry! That will be more trouble than it is worth."

In prison we were known by ouh numbers, not by names. We never saw Number Two, because she was not let out for walks, but we knew her voice very well—she could not endure the dusk and often wept.

She wept quietly, though sometimes a sob escaped her, and if she was left in peace she gradually calmed down. But prision discipline demanded that measures should be taken at once, and then there was a scene. It began with the wardress' running up and down the iron stairs, opening the slot in her door and speaking to her in a menacing voice, which was answered by bitter sobs. Then the chief warder's boots were heard thundering up the stairs, and he roared threateningly:

"I'll put you in a punishment cell!"

She cried more bitterly, like a child who can not stop. In the dead stillness disturbed only by the rattle of keys and the steps of the warders, the sound of this unfortunate woman weeping in her solitary cell made us feel as though she were lamenting over all of us, buried alive in the prison.

The chief warder went to fetch two heavy-footed assistants.

Horrible Scene.

"To the punishment cell!"

The woman's weeping became a wail; the key rattled, the door opened with a sinister noise and the place rang with heartrending screams:

"Leave me, let me be! There are rats there! I'm afraid of them! Don't take me there!"

They dragged her by force, pulling her along the floor, while she struggled and screamed, wild with despair, choking with tears and the horror of the rat-infested punishment cell. All of the five stories of the prison resounded with her cries, and then came a stillness that was even more terrible. No one ever heard how she came back to her cell. Intimidated by the punishment, she would sometimes control herself for a week or ten days, but sometimes the fits of weeping recurred almost every day and with the same results.

One evening when I was led back to my cell after a cross-examination I saw a dreadful scene: in the narrow corridor on the ground floor this woman, worn out by sobbing and struggling, was being pushed into the door of the punishment cell.

Rats Abounded.

The broad back of one of the warders shut her off from my view, and I only saw her head, with lovely fair hair that fell in disorder on her deadly pale, tear-stained face. She was groaning but still trying to resist, though her arms were held by two burly men.

"A rat!" she screamed, panic-stricken, and the heavy iron door shut her in.

There were huge rats in the prison. At one time the authorities tried to exterminate them and put down poison; the rats came out of their holes to die in the courtyard, and their hideous reddish corpses with bare tails could be seen by the walls, on the half-basement window-sills and in the middle of the yard.

It may be very foolish and feminine, but the sight of a dead rat spoiled all the pleasure of the walk in the courtyard. I dread to think what it must have been like in the punishment cell, the ceiling of which was said to be so low that one could not stand up, and where the warders could put out the light, leaving their victim in darkness alone with the rats.

Forbidden to Sing.

Another prisoner who was constantly punished for weeping was probably half-insane. She often began by singing, which was strictly forbidden. She had a beautiful voice and had obviously been trained for operatic singing, but her style was very peculiar: she sang the most cheerful songs to funeral tunes, and sad ones—such as Lisa's aria in the "Queen of Spades"—like a chansonette. She did it admirably, and her voice grew louder and louder; the wardress interposed and threatened her, then she cried and sobbed hysterically. Sometimes she began by crying, but she did it in her own way; she cooed in a sad little voice like a turtle dove, then the sound grew stronger, and she wailed in a sing-song voice louder and louder, but always very musically.

Then we heard the wardress' remonstrances and the chief warder's threats, which she answered by wild screaming and cursing. But evidently she was regarded as insane, because instead of locking her in the punishment cell they put her in a strait waistcoat and tied her to her bed. Worn out by crying and struggling, she gradually subsided.

Hated by Authorities.

The prison authorities hated her, probably because they could not deal with her in their own way; they kept her in one of the darkest and dampest cells on the ground floor, and did not allow her out for walks; only once in the summer she was taken out into the courtyard. She proved to be a young woman, tall and well-made, with charming manners; she stepped along the yard as though it were a ballroom, spoke pleasantly to the warder in charge of her, and burst into song as soon as she was brought back to her cell. She was not let out any more.

It was a mystery what the OGPU wanted with this poor mad woman, whom they kept for nearly a year in prison; they do not hesitate to fake evidence, and could have done so in her case instead of driving her to hopeless insanity. We were, of course, unable to do or say anything; we did not even know her name, and could never discover what was finally done to her.

The third woman who attracted attention by her weeping was the common criminal who at one time shared my cell. With her, tears were a means of obtaining favors from prision authorities. It generally happened when she was short of cigarettes. Longing for tobacco she wandered aimlessly about the cell, killed flies, scratched the paint on the walls, and then announced to me:

"I am going to set up a concert and get some cigarettes." She sat down on her bed and began rocking herself to and fro, wailing piteously:

"My poor, poor mother! What are they doing to me! Mother, mother! Why did you bring me into the world Poor, unhappy me!"

Upset by her own words, she began shedding real tears, entering into her part more and more thoroughly.

"I shall die, I shall die, never see you again!"

She put in a line from a popular song and broke into loud sobs.

She Gets Cigarettes.

The wardress' remonstrations were of no avail, because only the chief warder could get cigarettes from the OGPU buffet. When he appeared and sternly asked, "What is it now? What do you want, citizen?" she calmed down, gave him a sad, appealing look—which suited her young and pretty face very well—and whispered, "A cigarette!"

Surprised by such an easy solution of the trouble, he grinned and, pulling out a smart cigarette case adorned with monograms, provided her with cigarettes.

"Don't you receive any parcels?" he asked sympathetically.

"Yes, but I never have enough," she complained. "It's so dull here. Send to buy me some more, dear!"

She begged a rouble of me on the spot and made the chief warder promise that he would have some cigarettes bought for her—an unheard-of concession, which only she knew how to obtain.

Arrest Ends 25-Mile Ride With Corpse

Farmer Caught in Chase Hauling Nude Woman's Body in Truck.

Shakopee, Minn., July 19 (AP).—After a 25-mile chase with the nude body of a St. Paul mother in his battered truck, Harry Lorenz, former convict, was overtaken near here late today and subdued in a fist fight by Sheriff Arthur Messebrink.

The dead woman was Mrs. Mary Tschida, 42, mother of a 6-year-old boy. Her body was found, covered with branches, in Lorenz's truck.

After the sheriff overpowered him, Lorenz pulled four pills from his pocket and swallowed them, officers said, in an attempt to commit suicide. He was brought to Scott County Jail here and treated.

St. Paul police, Dakota County deputies and agents of the State bureau of criminal apprehension participated in the chase after neighbors told officers that they saw him drive away with the body.

County Attorney H. A. Irwin, of Shakopee, said the slaying was committed in Dakota County. Lorenz told him, Irwin said, that he knew the dead woman was in his trunk but "didn't remember killing her."

According to Lorenz, he was getting up at 4 a. m. at his farm home near Rosemount when Victor and Helen Novak, of St. Paul, brought Mrs. Tschida to his place, with the suggestion they go fishing.

Lorenz said he could not go because he was harvesting. He then obtained some liquor and they started drinking.

Then, Lorenz said, he and Mrs. Tschida went to the home of James Fitzgibbons, 2 miles away. The next thing he remembered, he said, was Mrs. Tschida lying on the floor and Fitzgibbons telling him she was dead.

PWA Fund Granted For Sewage Plant

Beltsville, Md., Farm Will Benefit by Project.

Allotment of $195,000 for construction of a sewage disposal plant at the Beltsville, Md., experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture, was announced yesterday by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The allotment carries on a PWA project already started. The Beltsville farm is being expanded into the world's largest experimental station by the Agricultural Department.

Installation of the sewage disposal plant will eliminate pollution at Beaver Dam Creek. The project is expected to take six months and will employ an average of 40 men.

The famous Molly Pitcher of the Battle of Monmouth in the Revolutionary War was in real life Mary Ludwig Hays, wife of an American gunner. During the battle at which she won fame she was carrying water to the troops when her husband fell unconscious at his gun, overcome by heat. As there was no one to take his place, the wife worked in his stead. For this she became an American heroine, known variously as "Molly Pitcher" and "Sergeant Mary"—the latter name being accorded her when she was made an honorary sergeant in the company.

The story, often repeated, that her husband was killed at his gun, and that she took his place to avenge his death, is error. Hays did not die until about ten years later, after which his widow married a George McCauley.

Forty-four years after her famous heroism on the battlefield she was earning her living as a scrubwoman—a fact which was brought to the attention of the Pennsylvania General Assembly. Thereafter Molly Pitcher was given a pension of $40 a year—about 11 cents a day.

Takoma Paving Bids Sought

The Maryland State Roads Commission today is advertising for bids for street paving on Takoma avenue from Albany avenue to Piney Branch road in Takoma Park.

Improvement of this stretch has Montgomery County PWA program. It will complete the connection of Takoma avenue to the underpass of the B. & O. Railroad, completed last year at Piney Branch road.

The commission also is advertising for bids for construction of a triple-span, steel-girder bridge over the tracks of the B. & O. Railroad at Falkland drive in Silver Spring. The bridge will be a unit in the extension of the East-West highway from Silver Spring, through Takoma Park to Ager road in Prince Georges County.

Bids on both projects will be opened in Baltimore July 31. All labor will be furnished by the National reemployment officer in Rockville.

Lake at Salisbury Will Get Cleaning

Salisbury, Md., July 19 (Spl.). Johnsons Lake in the north residential section is being drained for a thorough cleaning by relief workers. The removal of stumps is one of the main objects. Grading and cleaning of the lake shore and a partial grading of the lake bed will be undertaken.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Jay Bird Is a Lot of Help

Wouldn't Blackie have a hard time without Jay Bird? And he certainly has a pretty easy time getting along with him. It just shows how people can help each other and make everything easy for everybody. It wasn't a bit of trouble for Jay Bird to sit around and watch Mr. Man and his wife and the dogs go to town, and then to fly over and tell Blackie about it, and that's just what he did.

SUMMERS 1-19

Blackie had just finished his breakfast, and was sitting on his door-step in the sun and smoking his pipe when Jay Bird came over to tell him about the way things had been left over at Mr. Man's house. Blackie just leaned back against the door-post and laughed and laughed and laughed. Wasn't he a lucky bear? He had just been wondering where he would go for a good supper tonight, and now here it was just handed to him. Then he said to Jay Bird: "Go over and tell Dr. Coon, Billie Possum and Who-Who Owl to come over here. It looks like Mr. Man just wants to pay us for saving him all that money he was going to give for another donkey, and I reckon we had just as well take the pay."

It wasn't long before the whole crowd had gathered at Blackie's house and he told them how things had been left over at Mr. Man's house.

"We all expected to sleep today," said Dr. Coon, "but with such a frolic as this in front of us, I guess we won't complain about being waked up." And so they started on their hike to Mr. Man's house.

There's no use telling you much about what went on over there, for you can guess. Jay Bird says it is a fact that everybody took his time, as well as everything he wanted. Grapes and apples and turnips and chickens till they couldn't eat any more. And then they filled their bags full of things and started out for Blackie's house. Since they didn't have the wagon, they didn't get a sheep or any heavy thing, but they did carry home enough to keep them from getting hungry for several days.

While they were having supper at Blackie's house, Dr. Coon said: "There's always a good side to everything. Uncle Joe has been awfully upset because we had a party at his house that night; and now when he hears about our little frolic over at Mr. Man's, he will feel like he has company, and it will hurt him a heap less."

Mercury Sets New Records In Southwest

Temperatures Surge Far Above Century Mark in Several States.

Kansas City, July 19 (AP).—Devastating heat and drought scourged the furnace-like Southwest without a let-up today.

Temperatures surged again far over the century mark in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

New records were established at many points in the vast sun-baked, water-famished area, which rapidly is becoming a desert.

The weather map held nothing of promise for a good rain or an end to the killing heat.

At least half a dozen deaths were added to the human toll.

114 Degrees in Missouri.

A reading of 114 degrees, the highest on record, was reported at Mexico, Mo. The mercury boiled up to 111½ at Jefferson City, 111 at Maryville, 109 at Hannibal and 109 in Kansas City.

At Parsons, Kans., the mercury touched 111, the sixth consecutive day of 110-degree weather or higher. Topeka, Kans., experienced a maximum of 109, the tenth consecutive day over 105 degrees and the twenty-fifth day this summer that the mercury had gone to century heights.

Readings in Oklahoma today included Nowata, 115; Bartlesville, 112; Tulsa, 110; Miami, 109, and Ada, 108.

Texas Still Swelters.

In Texas there was a repetition of yesterday's high marks which ranged up to 107.

In Iowa, the all-time heat record set at Sigourney 33 years ago was equalled by an official temperature of 113 today at Knoxville.

It was 96 in Chicago and 88 in Duluth, at 3 p. m.

Drought relief officials were pushing plans to aid farmers in digging wells and obtaining new sources of water supply to save cattle threatened with extermination.

In hopelessly dry communities where forage has been destroyed, Government agents were purchasing starving live stock for slaughter on the ground or for shipment to processing plants.

Edward Young Clarke Sent to Federal Prison

Jacksonville, Fla., July 19 (AP). Edward Young Clarke, former high official in the Ku Klux Klan, was sentenced in Federal Court here today to five years in the Atlanta Penitentiary on six counts of using the mails to defraud in connection with the organization of Esskaye, a fraternal order.

His wife, Mrs. Martha Ann Clarke, was sentenced to two years in the Women's Federal Industrial Institute at Alderson, W. Va., on each of the six counts. Sentences were made to run concurrently on each of the counts.

Fish for Friday

Mrs. Lucile Mann Forgets Beetles Long Enough to Write "Tropical Fish," a Little Book Full of Unique Facts About the Finny Tribe.

This being Friday, what could be more appropriate than a thumbnail review (with apologies to Theodore Hall) of a book about fish? Fish for the skillet, fish that stay out of the water, fish that stand on their head and hundreds of other varieties.

"Tropical Fish" is by Lucile Quarry Mann, whose husband, Dr. William M. Mann, is director of the Zoo. An authority and writer on beetles, this time she comes out with a 99-page opus, formally known as "Leisure League Little Book No. 6," on such piscatorial oddities as periophthalmus barbarus, pantodon bucholzi, et al.

Prospective fish fanciers are told how to establish an aquarium, what they should know about light and temperature and what to feed their finny pets. Then Mrs. Mann launches into a series of enlightening—and entertaining—essays on head-and-tail-light fish, the croaking tetra which has a bark; badis badis, which plays peek-a-boo, and others, more popularly known.

"One of the remarkable curiosities in the fish world," says Mrs. Mann, "is a recent importation, monocirrhus polyacanthus, the leaf fish. It appears to drift rather than swim the water, and looks for all the world like a dead leaf. Flat, brownish, with flecks of gold and dark brown, it even has a stalk at one end to make the illusion complete—a protruding lower lip that looks just like the stem of a leaf."

The piranha isn't recommended for aquariums because it is a cannibal that takes big bites out of its victim. Even more spectacular is the Siamese archer fish which can "shoot" a fly at 12 feet by spurting water from its mouth.

Garnet W. Jex, who painted many of the backgrounds in the reptile house, has illustrated the booklet. Among the old specimens which he depicts is the Egyptian mouth breeder, which "opens her mouth wide and the babies swim back into it."

Upton Sinclair's Works Are Banned in Prussia

Berlin, July 19 (AP).—All novels and other literature by Upton Sinclair, widely known American author, were ordered confiscated and banned today in Prussia. His books have been among the best sellers in Germany.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ⅔ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.

Low Interest Liberty Loan Refund Studied

The Treasury Department is studying the possibility of refunding $1,200,000,000 of the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds at a lower interest rate, according to United Press. The present rate is 4¼ per cent.

On October 15 the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds are due for redemption. Treasury officials probably will offer a new issue of bonds at lower interest around September 15 rather than redeem with cash.

Kentuckians Hang Voter Of Sales Tax in Effigy

Danville, Ky., July 19 (AP).—As a protest against the new State sales tax, a dummy representing J. Sterling Towles, Boyle County Representative in the General Assembly, was hanged from a tree in the Boyle County courthouse yard early today.

As soon as it was discovered it was taken down by police. It bore a handbill charging Towers with breaking his "pledge to the people of Boyle County" to vote against the tax. Towels expressed no concern.

Nats Nosed Out By Browns, 8-7

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

I SEE by the papers that they've attempted to still the tumult and the shouting for Walter Johnson's managerial scalp out in Cleveland by tendering the Big Train a contract that will run through 1935 and it's a noble gesture of confidence by Club Owner Alva Bradley, who is flying full into the face of Johnson's critics.

BRADLEY.

I dare say those last two games played by the Indians had considerable to do with Bradley's arrival at the conclusion that his ball team could be in worse hands than Johnson's. While the wolves were in full cry, Johnson produced a couple of victories that set his critics back on their heels and gasping at the rapid turn of events in his favor.

When the snapping and the yapping at Johnson was at its peak last Wednesday, what does Mr. Johnson's ball team accomplish but three runs in the ninth inning that slapped the Yankees down, 15 to 14. And yesterday, as if in mock derision of the yelping that still continued, Mr. Johnson's Indians pulled five runs out of the bat sack, also in the ninth inning, to beat the Red Sox, 6 to 5.

Those two stunning form reversals were like manna from heaven to Johnson's cause, apparently. It is significant that within six hours after Johnson's club beat the Red Sox yesterday the Cleveland directorate voted unanimously to continue the managerial contract of the pitching idol for another year beyond the present season.

This piece is not aimed as a defense for Johnson as a manager. The Big Train has his shortcomings in the eyes of this department. Clark Griffith discovered that two years ago, and the charges by Cleveland fans and press that he has mishandled the best pitching staff in the league are, perhaps, not without foundation.

As a big league manager, Johnson has undergone a very patent metamorphosis. In his early years as manager of the Nats, baseball's most popular figure was an easygoing workaday individual who failed to crack the whip over players who were due for censure. But after two seasons of 'reverses as the Washington manager, Johnson changed his tactics. He became hard-boiled.

But from a tolerant Pollyanna, Johnson transformed himself into a surly, testy tyrant of a type. Rarely was his criticism of his players of the straight-from-the-shoulder, forthwith kind. After defeats he would mutter only half aloud his incriminations of his ball team, dealing out his censure off stage, as it were.

Many of Johnson's players had performed with the Nats under Bucky Harris' dashing management, and Harris' locker-room tactics were as different from Johnson's as day from night. In contrast to Johnson's mutterings during losing streaks, Harris flayed his players in open assembly, laid down the law without mincing words, called them names that hurt, and then patted them on the back with the admonition to get out there and fight.

Johnson's chief crime in Cleveland, however, is being manager in a town where the press goads the fans to harsh measures. The welfare of the home town team is an obsession with Cleveland newspapers and their baseball writers are the second-guessing champions of the known world.

For some unknown reason, the Cleveland press this season became possessed with the idea that the Indians should win the pennant, despite odds quoted freely on Broadway that Washington, New York and Detroit figured far ahead of the Tribe. When midseason found the Indians in fourth place, where they figured Early 5-1 Lead Erased, With Two Runs in 7th Providing Margin.

Weaver Is Routed; Burke "Fall Guy"

Myer Fails With 2 On in 8th; Manush Hits in Pinch Role.

By Lewis F. Atchison
(Post Staff Correspondent).

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Washington's speed demons displayed their usual early innings' form this afternoon against St. Louis in the initial game of their series. They dashed away to a 5-1 lead in the first stanza, then suddenly turned turtle and in true tortoise fashion crawled leisurely over the finish line—second best. The Browns won, 8-7.

The Nats lost by the narrowest of margins—one foot on the rightfield wall and two on the wrong side of the leftfield foul line.

Heinie Manush, whose only appearance on the field was in the guise of a pinch-hitter, rapped one to the rightfield barrier in the eighth that missed being a homer by inches. Sewell, who had walked, was on first. Even so it should have been good for a double, at least, but, unable to slide because of his injured leg, Manush was tagged out going into second.

Wasted Motion.

Dave Harris, pinch-hitting for Bluege, who played left field in Manush's stead, drilled a long drive to left field that curved out of fair territory and landed foul in the bleacher seats. Eventually he walked, but Myer failed to deliver the necessary hit, so it was just wasted motion.

The game developed into another one of those pitchers' battles, and both sides used an abundance of these gentlemen. Weaver, Burke, McColl and Thomas toiled for the Griffith A. C., and the Hornsby Hornets were represented by Wells, Andrews, McAfee and Coffman.

Wells was not going so well today and after giving the Nats five hits and five runs in the first inning he was tossed down the well into the locker room, Andrews replacing him.

Three Two-Baggers.

Wells' departure was hastened by two-baggers he pitched consecutively to Cronin, Schulte and Kress. These hits, together with Bluege's walk, Melillo's error on Travis'

Titans of Mat Tussling in Tense Title Match

The much-maligned business of rassling hit a new high when 30,000 fans witnessed Jim Londos and Ed George stake their conflicting title claims in their bout at Boston, called a draw when both were exhausted after seeking in vain to score a third fall in more than two hours of combat. Londos (left) is applying a wristlock to George, recognized in New England as the world titleholder.

Bluege Felled By Heat in St. Louis

Collapses Twice Following Game, Is Placed Under Doctor's Care.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 19 (Spl.). The jinx that has been hitchhiking through the West with Washington popped up again today and succeeded in striking down another player. The victim was Ossie Bluege, who substituted for the ailing Heinie Manush in left field.

Bluege collapsed suddenly in the clubhouse following the game but first aid treatment, applied by Trainer Mike Martin, appeared to dispel his illness, which was diagnosed as heat prostration. Back at the hotel, however, he again fell unconscious while stepping from an elevator and had to be carried to his room.

The house physician treated him for exhaustion induced by the excessive heat, but subsequent investigation revealed that the humid atmosphere was not entirely to blame.

Hurt Chasing Homer.

Bluege struck his head a forceful blow on the left field wall in the first inning while running backwards on Harland Clift's high fly, which eventually landed high up in the bleachers for a home run.

He did not complain of the blow, nor did he appear to suffer any ill effects. He played brilliantly afield, making five putouts, one on a hard liner which he took down by the ankles after a hard run. But a knot on the head, discovered after his collapse, tells the story of the origin of his fadeout.

Bluege will be in uniform tomorrow though Cronin may decide to keep him on the bench and send Harris to left field.

Today's game started at 3 o'clock with the thermometer, the only one that had not burst, reading 102 degrees in the shade.

Injured List Grows.

Washington's list of injured begins to resemble a Philadelphia ballot box. Manush with a strained muscle in the groin, has been joined by Dave Harris, who manages to get around despite a charley horse in the left leg. Then Johnny Gill brought an injured ankle along from Chattanooga. Gill is playing and the others can go into action if needed, but undoubtedly need a few days of rest.

U. S. Net Aces Rated 3-2 Over Australia

By Henry McLemore.

LONDON, July 19 (U.P.).—London bookmakers, willing, ready and eager to hold bets on anything, today made America's Davis Cup team a 3-to-2 favorite to beat Australia and thus earn the right to play Great Britain, holder of the historic racquet mug, in the final, or challenge round. They were offering 2 to 1 against America's chances of sweeping the first day's play.

The draw made today for the interzone final starting Saturday pitted Jack Crawford, the skidding No. 1 man of the Aussi forces, against Shields, big New Yorker, and Vivian McGrath, rising member of the down under squad, against the rejuvenated Sidney B. Wood, jr., also of New York.

Crawford Is Favored.

Crawford, despite his setback in the European zone final with Czechoslovakia on Sunday, was expected to have saved enough of his game to turn back the giant Shields. Wood, however, was a distinct favorite over McGrath, who saved Australia's tennis life on Sunday by defeating Ladislaus Hecht, of the Czech team, in the deciding match after Crawford had made his unexpected bow to Rod Menzel.

The remainder of the draw pitted Crawford and Adrian Quist against George Mott, of Chicago, and Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, in Monday's one doubles match. On Tuesday Crawford meets Wood and McGrath plays Shields. Play will be omitted Sunday.

Both teams are practising daily, although the Australians, somewhat spent after a campaign of more than one month, are conserving their strength.

The Americans seem to have rounded into excellent form and, barring unforseen developments, should go in against Australia in perfect condition. The Australians seem a bit worn.

Yanks Down Chisox, 4 to 3

Murphy Wins Ninth Game; Ben Chapman Stars.

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP).—The Yankees broke the "jinx" that has beset them on their current Western tour to beat the cellar-dwelling White Sox, 4 to 3, today. The victory, while Detroit was idle, clipped a half-game off New York's deficit in the American League pennant race, leaving the Yanks an even two games behind.

With Babe Ruth still in Cleveland, recovering from yesterday's leg injury, Ben Chapman took over the job of getting the Yankee runs for young Johnny Murphy. He drove in three of them, including the winning tallies in the eighth, and scored the fourth. And he did all this in spite of a charley horse.

Murphy Wins No. 9.

Murphy, winning his ninth victory against five defeats, pitched steadily except in the fourth, when he lost control and handed out four of his five passes to give the Sox two runs.

Cronin Considers Journey to Orient

Will Take Barn-Storming Trip if Not Too Long.

St. Louis, Mo., July 19 (Spl.).—Joe Cronin is seriously thinking about accepting an invitation to barnstorm through the Orient with the big league all-stars, he admitted today. His decision rests on the length of the trip.

Cronin said that should the journey be too long, if he could make part of it and return in time for the annual winter conclave of the solons, he would do so. As Will Harridge, league president, will accompany the players, it is possible that Cronin will go and return with him.

Londos Stakes Crown Here Tonight

Meets Everett Marshall; Record Crowd Is Due to See Struggle.

By Frank H. Young.

WASHINGTON'S greatest leering contest of history is due on the Griffith Stadium mat tonight when Everett Marshall, the Colorado Cowboy, challenges Jimmy Londos, the Greek idol, for his share of claims as titular head of the Cauliflower Industry, one of the few businesses which Gen. Johnson has been unable to bring into the NRA fold.

In the past, the grunting and bone-breaking pachyderms have seen to it themselves that John Public has not gotten too long a run for its money, but there have been many changes of late and, with State commissions taking the supervision under their collective wings, it is suspected that actual competition is reentering the game.

Londos Goes to Work.

Within the month, Londos has taken on the only other two title claimants. A few weeks ago, he knocked Jim Browning out of the running, adding the airplane leg-scissors expert's 24 titles to the 14 he already owned and Wednesday night, in Boston, he attempted to make it a clean sweep by downing Ed Don George for all of the crowns of the New England States. This latter bout, however, ended in the wee, small hours of yesterday morning, with each getting a fall and the deciding bout halted when both were all in after 2 hours and 12 minutes of brawling.

As a result of his failure to nail George, Londos comes here tonight as half-champion. If Marshall drops him, he will eliminate the Greek from the chase and will still have

The former heavyweight champion still has $20,000 in the account, but this has been impounded pending disposition of a $15,000 breach of promise judgment secured by a London waitress.

Johnson Signed By Tribe for '35

Bradley Answers Critics by Announcement of New Contract.

Pilot Was Flayed For Hurling Acts

Directors Unanimous in Vote of Confidence to Pitching Idol.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 19 (AP). Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians Baseball Club of the American League, announced tonight that he had signed Walter Johnson as the club's manager for the 1935 season.

Johnson had been under fire from baseball writers this week for his handling of pitchers after fans had booed him lustily when four runs were scored on one hit and six bases on balls in Monday's game with New York.

In response to this criticism, Bradley had previously said that he "still thought Walter was a pretty good fellow," and had announced that there would be no change in the Indians' leadership this year.

Directors Unanimous.

Bradley said that at a meeting of the Cleveland Baseball Club Board of directors this noon the "unanimous feeling" had been that Johnson deserved another year as manager of the Indians.

"The directors," Bradley said, "have given him a contract for 1935. I feel it is a vote of confidence in Johnson."

Johnson, one of the world's greatest pitchers, was appointed manager of the Indians June 10, 1933, succeeding Roger Peckinpaugh. The Tribe was then in fifth place. Under his guidance the team finished fourth in the American League race last year with a record of 75 games won and 76 lost.

Had Two-year Pact.

Johnson was given a contract to finish the 1933 season and to serve as manager this year. The contract stipulated that he would not be replaced during this season.

At present the Indians are in fourth place, a half game behind the Boston Red Sox, who are here for a series of five games.

Cards Victors; Dizzy Dean Wins 17th

Hurler Takes 9th in Row, Turning Back Braves in Opener, 4-2.

BOSTON, July 19 (AP).—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, the St. Louis Cardinals' eccentric but effective hurler, today led his team to a 4-to-2 win in the first game of their series with the Boston Braves.

The tall right-hander, in winning his ninth straight victory, his seventeenth of the season, registered his first triumph in more than two seasons against a team in Boston.

Jordan doubled in the first inning and opened the scoring for the Braves on singles by Berger and Lee.

Hogan Stops Kennedy in 2d

Wins 9th Victory in Row of Professional Career.

WATERBURY, Conn., July 19 (AP).—Eddie Hogan, Waterbury heavyweight, knocked out Les Kennedy, of Long Beach, Calif., tonight in the second round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Kennedy had the best of the first round, making Hogan wince as he repeatedly stuck a left jab into the young Lithuanian's face. Midway in the second round, however, Hogan got the Californian's range and floored him for a count of eight with left hooks to the chin. A flurry of punches to the head and body, including a left uppercut, finished Kennedy shortly after he got to his feet.

A crowd of 3,000 saw Hogan score his ninth victory of an undefeated professional career, six of his battles having been won by knockouts. Hogan weighed 213 and Kennedy 192.

Monk's Star Scores to Pay $209.50, Longest Odds in History of Rockingham

Plater Wins By Length And Half

Mynah Finishes Second, Foxy Quiller Third in Turf Upset.

SALEM, N. H., July 19 (AP).—The longest odds on a winner in the history of Rockingham Park were returned today when W. F. Axton's Monk's Star accounted for the second race and paid $209.50 for a $2 win ticket in the mutuels.

The plater, which had won only two races in 12 previous starts this year, showed a complete reversal of form to score by one and a half lengths over 5 furlongs. A $2 place ticket was good for $108, while a similar priced mutuel to show returned $35.40. Monk's Star was ridden by the little-known jockey, S. Vail.

In triumphing, Monk's Star ran the dsitance in 1:00 2-5. Mynah and Foxy Quiller, another pair of long shots, were second and third, respectively. Mynah paid $6.60 to place and $4.40 to show, while Foxy Quiller returned $5.70 for third.

The 5½-furlong feature went to Mrs. Edward McCuan's consistent 5-year-old daughter of Sir Gallahad III, Sobieha. Taking the lead at the head of the stretch, the speedy mare finished with three-quarters of a length to spare over F. A. Griffith's Cutie Face, with C. J. Meister's Cantersine three lengths back in third place. De Valera and Gold Step completed the small field.

Strongly backed in the mutuels, Sobieha returned only $3.90 after running the distance in 1:05 3-5.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Rockingham Park, July 19.

If Clocker Mike comes near the pressbox tomorrow afternoon I'm going to put a twitch in his nose. I doubt very much if he timed any horses at sunrise today. He showed up this afternoon with a sleepy look in his eyes, trousers baggy at the knees and the skin off the knuckles of his right hand. But he was toting a roll of bills. When he left the track tonight he still had a sleepy look in his eyes, his trousers were still baggy and those bruised knuckles were still in evidence. But thata banka rolla was gone. In its place was a thick quarter of my hard-earned cash with which he was to buy a paddock stew. Mike was poison today. He squirmed all over the pressbox trying to get Secular out of a tangle at the start of the first. He yelled himself hoarse, in the second, mistaking Monk's Star, the winner, for Washout, which was running last. He went down to the paddock while the third was being run and I had the winner, Old Baldy. But he came back in time to jinx the rest of my picks. I'd like to trade that guy for a show ticket on the seventh race at Marlboro.

BILL.

First race—The Heathen draws only a steadying 112 pounds and the ancient one seems to have found a field that will bow to his sort of speed. Oral will have the capable Hughes in the saddle and may turn in a better race than that last. Paper Profits for the other award.

Second race—Happy Scott is not as dependable these days as he was some time back but seems to have an edge over what this field offers. Macadam and Merry Chatter for the place and show.

Third race—Morning Mail and Candy Prince shape up best in this group of juveniles and it looks like a close fit. Enthusiasm to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Gaillardia Mumsie and Vote is the way I prefer them in this. All three are fit and ready and are partial to the route.

Fifth race—Rock Point has been knocking at the door and is primed for the winning end of a purse. Clocker Mike has given his approval, if that means anything. Prince Tokalon is dangerous. Prince Abbot for the show.

Sixth race—Infillee is Clocker Mike's long shot special and I'm giving him a chance to do his stuff. Jim Ormont's last was a beaut and must be respected. Quick Step to make a money appearance.

Play Hooky Victorious In Arlington Feature

Arlington Park, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Play Hooky, owned by Charles Bacharach, of New Orleans, galloped to an easy six-length victory in the top race over a mile and an eighth at Arlington Park today.

Given a well-judged ride by Jockey W. D. Wright, Play Hooky moved up quickly on the early pacemaker, Mrs. John D. Hertz' Saint, and won as he pleased. The Brookmeade Stable's Sleuth was third, with C. V. Whitney's Elf Lock, even-money favorite, last in the four-horse race. Play Hooky paid $10.42.

Ring Judge to Air Disputed Verdicts

Tow Decision and Others on WMAL Tonight.

Bill Coyle, of station WMAL, will bring to the air at 8:15 tonight the official side of the disputed ring decisions that have been setting the local fight public practically agog of late.

The official version will be dragged from Bob Eller, one of Washington's leading fight scorers, who has participated in the judging of many of the fights resulting in all the shouting. Eller voted for Reds Barry in the Patsy Perroni-Reds Barry draw, balloted for Roy Manley, who many thought lost to Bob Wilson, declared Sammy Britt the winner over Freddy Heintz and participated in the unanimous decision in favor of Bob Tow over Tony Galento.

Dixon Will Seek Better Ring Fare

Meets Clark Tomorrow at Griffith Stadium.

Speedy Dixon, local colored lightweight, will be pointing toward bigger and better recognition when he squares off against Tommy Clark in the 10-round main event of the all-colored boxing card to be presented at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night.

Though cast in an eight-round semifinal, Baby Kid Chocolate is rated in some quarters a better boxer than either of the two main eventers. Chocolate, who is to battle Bobby Brown, an Atlantic City favorite, is accepting the secondary spot to gain a following here.

A good crowd was forecast as ticket sales continued brisk throughout yesterday.

Hook, Line and Sinker

Jean Monk.

TUESDAY morning the call of the wild got me. I jumped into the old bus and headed for the great open spaces. Presently I found myself 23 miles west of Falls Church, Va., and still going strong. But Goose Creek stopped me.

I was looking for bass. A big, new building stood by the side of the road—Goose Creek Tavern. I went in and soon found myself chatting neighborly with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Brown, comanagers of the place with H. H. Ball.

Goose Creek is the kind of place flaming youth term "sharp." Big, new, open; cool breezes sweeping through. Rooms, meals, beer, dancing. The ballroom accommodates 200 people.

And there are bass in that creek, all the way from the tavern to Hopkins Dam, almost a mile. Fine boating, canoeing. Dr. Charles B. Campbell, Washington dermatologist, does much casting thereabouts.

Back to the main road again, I rambled on through Leesburg, Purcellville, and over that great, big mountain at Bluemont. Coasted several miles down the west side of it to Castlemans Ferry, now a bridge, over the Shenandoah River.

Bass Caught at Ferry.

Men fishing. A youngster called S. R. Ashley, manager of the resort. He was fishing with a companion in a rowboat only a few yards offshore.

Ashley says fishing at Castlemans Ferry is better this season than it has been for nine years. Never a blank day. Bass are running from 1 to 2½ pounds. Catches average from one to eight a day per fisherman. Live bait, mad toms, is used. Casting is not productive and will not be until September, he told me.

From 100 to 300 Washingtonians visit this place every Sunday. Splendid bathing. Shallow water, clear as gin.

The most attractive place in this historic old town is Hill Top House, sitting 500 feet (almost straight up) above the Potomac. Its owner and manager is M. J. Croghan.

Picturesque Mansion.

Built of gray stone and concrete, this picturesque mansion breathes something of the beauty of East Aurora and Roycroft. One feels that the Fra himself or Ali Baba might breeze by any moment chanting, "Build your art horse-high, pig-tight and bull-strong." And the art of Harpers Ferry is best seen and appreciated from the lookout of this building.

Sixty-five rooms there are in it, a dining room that seats 200, verandas, grassy lawns, artistic touches, parking space. The Blue Ridge Mountains point a long, green finger down to the meeting place of the two rivers southward, the Alleghenies fade into lavender westward, and Maryland Heights rise 1,000 feet above Hill Top House just across the Potomac eastward.

Mr. Croghan asked me to remain for dinner. I did. Hot rolls, hot biscuits, tender chicken (as advertised), fresh vegetables. The gold shark tooth goes to him for that act.

For two seasons I have crammed this column with interviews of owners of lunchrooms, restaurants, rooming houses and hotels, I have been liberal with my descriptions of their places of business; and this was the first time such courtesy had been extended.

Too Many Licenses.

Fishing at Harpers Ferry is a nightmare. Three States, each requiring a license—$15 in all. "There was a time," Snapper Rhoderick will begin, then shake his head and stop. Too many laws, too many licenses, too many game wardens. Bass fishing is on the rocks at that place. The mythical goose that spawned their golden bass is dead.

The big rockfish are doing their stuff again at Piney Point. The moon fulls the 28th. From now until then the tides will rise higher and fall back lower every day, bring in many soft crabs on the flood and bouncing those crabs back again on the ebb.

This rapid movement of these delicacies causes a reaction among the rockfish. To them the monthly carnival has come to town and everything is free. They will strike much better, which is nothing more than an effort to get their share while the harvest lasts, and you can't blame them for that. This happens every month when the moon fulls.

And there you have about all there is to this moon versus fishing subject in salt water. It isn't a question of moon; it is one of higher and lower tides plus a natural increase in food. In their effort to find a big, juicy plum (crab) they frequently grab the one that has your hook on it.

Camps of Furr And Bowen Confident

Grove Turns Down Bid of $500 for Phil; Sale of Tickets Brisk.

EVERYBODY seems pretty happy about this ten-round Ray Bowen-Phil Furr District welterweight championship match, which will head the Riding and Hunt Club's regular session of slaughter Monday night.

With the fighters safely signed for the greatest local natural since the record-breaking Gallagher-Lamar fiasco, both contestants already in the peak of condition, an unprecedented advance sale and a sturdy roof on his pavilion to protect the customers should the heavens decide to weep, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn is bustling about wearing an ear-to-ear grin indicative of "sitting pretty" or "money in the cash box."

With his protege punching harder than ever and the satisfaction of declining a bid for $500 for his fighter's contract, Harry Groves, who manages Furr, is practically exhuberant.

Both fighters are very, very happy over the large percentages of the good gate that will be theirs and Phineas F. Phightphan is bouncing about in sheer ecstasy in anticipation of a soul-stirring session.

The offer for Furr's contract was not made directly to Groves, but it is understood that Bob May, Alexandria bus magnate who dabbles about in the manly art for the sheer pleasure of being behind the scenes, relayed a proposal to purchase the paper on Furious Phil for $500. Groves declined without equivocation, mitigation or something.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DASH IN, $7.30, $4.60, $3.70; HAPPY SURPRISE, $21.70, $9; MORWAY, $3.70.

DASH IN improved position steadily, moved up stoutly in last quarter mile, wore down leader, drew out slowly in last furlong. HAPPY SURPRISE outbroke his field, was taken up, then moved up rapidly and held on gamely in the drive. MORWAY had speed from the start, but faltered in the last three sixteenths. SECULAR made up some ground. SHORT APPROACH faltered after displaying early speed. BUSTER MOON, well up early, dropped back fast approaching the stretch while racing on the inside. LADY BUCK refused to break.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:13½. Winner, W. F. Axton's b. f. (4), by Monks Way—Constellation. Trained by D. T. Morris. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:00 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONKS STAR, $209.50, $108, $35.40; MYNAH, $6.60, $4.40; FOXY QUILLER, $5.70.

MONKS STAR forced the early pace, came to outside near the stretch, wore down MYNAH, and drew out in the last furlong. MYNAH had speed from the start, made a determined effort to keep pace when challenged by the winner, but was not good enough. FOXY QUILLER, on the outside all the way, closed stoutly in the drive and wore down LEBAM right at the end. LEBAM went well placed from the start. SUSPICIOUS, under urging from the start, saved ground, but was unable to keep up when the real racing began. LERACK was going gamely at the end.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:45. Winner, Mrs. S. H. Fairbank's c. g (4) by Polymeelian—Eagles Nest. Trained by S. H. Fairbanks. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 2-5, 0:59 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLD BALDY, $3.40, $2.40, $2.40; SILVERDALE, $2.70, $2.60; STAROGAN, $4.80.

OLD BALDY moved up fast after leaving the back stretch, wore down STAROGAN and drew out with speed in reserve. SILVERDALE, shuffled back at the start, came to the outside in the stretch and closed with good speed, but was unable to threaten the winner. STAROGAN had keen early speed, but faltered through the stretch. PADDOCK went prominently placed all the way. ONEILL, outrun early, was going stoutly at the close. LARISSA tired.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good for all but Slay Boy. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:14½. Off at 4:20. Winner, J. W. Walter's (jr.) b. or br. g. (2), by Carlaris—Pandora Girl. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARLIE DAWN, $19.20, $7.80, $6.40; PROSECUTOR, $4.40, $3.30; LEALETTE, $9.90.

CHARLIE DAWN, away fast, dropped back in the opening quarter mile, moved up gradually, came to the outside nearing the stretch, wore down PROSECUTOR and was going away slowly at the finish. PROSECUTOR had good speed, was hard ridden in disposing of WAX, but was unable to withstand the closing bid of the winner. LEALETTE, slow to settle into her best stride, closed a big gap and was going strongly at the end. WAX faltered in the last quarter mile. MAD BULL was unable to keep pace after breaking fast. OUR NURSE, well placed early, faltered. SLAY BOY was away poorly and had scant chance.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Shawsheen Claiming Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:50. Winner, Mrs. E. McCuan's b. m. (5), by Sir Gallahad III—Omniad. Trained by E. McCuan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:05 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOBIEHA, $3.90, $2.70, $2.20; CUTIE FACE, $3.30, $2.40; CANTERSINE, $2.40.

SOBIEHA kept within striking distance of the leaders from the start while racing on the outside, closed stoutly in the stretch and was going away slowly all the last 70 yards. CUTIE FACE, under slight restraint while forcing the pace, held on Willingly through the stretch but was unable to keep pace with the winner. CANTERSINE had speed from the start, but weakened through the last three sixteenths. DE VALERA, outrun early, was going stoutly at the eend. GOLD STEP faltered after rounding the far turn.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17½. Winner, J. D. Mikel's ch. or ro. c (3), by Sir Greysteel—Anquice. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third $50; fourth, $25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHAMSEEN, $11.70, $5.10, $3.70; PAR VALUE, $3.70, $2.80; OLD JUDGE, $3.20.

KHAMSEEN forced the early pace, took command after leaving the back stretch and drew out easily for the remainder of the way. PAR VALUE had speed from the start and continued gamely when passed by the winner. OLD JUDGE, a trailer early, closed with a rush on the inside through the stretch. GLORITONE restrained early, closed with good energy in the drive. TAUNTON moved up stoutly on the back stretch, but weakened in the closing drive. ERECH, well placed, lost ground racing wide and dropped back in the last furlong. ZIPALONG tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:49½. Winner, C. C. Miller's br. g. (4), by General Thatcher—Susan Grover. Trained by A. F. Dayton. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:53 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THATCH, $6.80, $3.60, $3; POLLY CEE, $3.40, $2.80; PLUCKY LADY, $4.30.

THATCH had speed from the start, was taken back approaching the half-mile turn, permitting POLLY CEE to make the running, moved up when called upon, easily assumed the command and drew out steadily. POLLY CEE, away slowly, was made much use of gaining a prominent position and though hloding well, weakened from her early efforts and was unable to keep pace when challenged. PLUCKY LADY raced well and had no excuses. LAWLESS LADY was never able to enter into serious contention. WIRT G. BOWMAN was always far back. DEVONSHIRE had no chance with the start.

Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Pray Victims

VIRGINIA POPE, 19-year-old Kenwood golf star, won major honors in the miniature tournament sponsored yesterday by the District Women's Golf Association at Kenwood. Miss Pope captured the first flight prize by defeating Mrs. Leo Walper, of the host club, 3 and 2, in her first 19-hole match, and Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, runner-up for the District championship, by the same count in the finals.

In defeating two of Washington's outstanding feminine players, Miss Pope turned in separate nine-hole scores of 41. She made a 41 against Mrs. Walper on the outgoing side and duplicated her brilliant score on the incoming nine against Mrs. Pray. Her 82 is the best Miss Pope has ever done in competition over her home course, and is considered a new feminine course record for match play.

Holes Every Putt.

Anxious to slice her handicap, which now stands at 5, Miss Pope holed every putt.

Mrs. Morris E. Irwin, of Beaver Dam, won the second flight, after defeating Mrs. L. K. Rice, of Manor, and Mrs. George Parker, of Kenwood. Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, won the third flight.

There were 14 flights of four players each. The contestants qualified early in the morning over the five-hole route, and Mrs. Leo Walper set the pace with a remarkable 21 that included a 7 on the 531-yard thirteenth hole. Mrs. Walper took a 4 on the short tenth and birdied the eleventh, twelfth and fourteenth.

Injury Waning, Ruth Returns Shortly

CLEVELAND, July 19 (AP).—Babe Ruth's contusion started losing its beautiful luster today—which means that the Yankees' 40-year-old home run puncher will continue his punching "within a few days."

When the purple knot near the Babe's shin bone started lightening up from a fine, deep purple, Dr. M. L. Castle, club physician to the Cleveland Indians, revised his prediction of yesterday that the Yankee outfielder would be out at least two weeks.

Minneapolis Wins All-Star Tilt, 13-6

Minneapolis, July 19 (AP).—A bombardment of base hits in the final innings, including Joe Hauser's second home run of the game, gave Minneapolis a 13-to-6 victory over the American Association All Stars in a benefit game before 7,435 fans today. The game was the first of this nature sponsored by the league.

Maryland Gardens Wins.

The Maryland Club Gardens water polo team defeated the McKinley dunkers, 23 to 2, in a game played in the Maryland Club Gardens pool last night.

Tribe Scores 5 in Ninth to Win, 6-5

Ostermueller, of Red Sox, Pounded Out; Werber Slams Home Run.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 19 (AP). Five runs in the ninth inning gave the Indians a 6-to-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox today in the first of a five-game series for possession of third place.

Fred Ostermueller, rookie southpaw, who had been given a four-run lead by the Sox, was chased from the mound in the ninth when Earl Averill, Cleveland center fielder, hit a single with the bases full, scoring Pytlak and Seeds. Joe Vosmik singled, scoring Knickerbocker, and then Trosky tripled, scoring Averill and Vosmik.

to finish, the newspapers launched the shout for Johnson's scalp.

Out in Cleveland, the home team can do no wrong as far as the press is concerned. There was the case of young Monte Pearson's near-no-hit game last year. The Cleveland official scorer scented a no-hit game after three hitless innings by Pearson.

Then, in the fourth, Bluege wafted a Texas Leaguer into right field. Second Baseman Hale gave chase but couldn't get within 3 feet of the ball. It went down as an error by Hale. In the seventh, with the Nats still hitless, Heinie Manush blazed a grounder toward right field that all but emitted steam. Hale barely got his glove tips on the ball. They called it an error for Hale. They were doing nobly by Pearson until Bluege opened the ninth with a double to left field, the first hit charged against the rookie. The wonder is they didn't call it a wild pitch by Pearson. They are like that in Cleveland.

Frey's Home Run Wins for Dodgers

Brooklyn, July 19 (AP). — Linus Frey, known as "Junior" to his teammates, pulled a ball game out of the fire for the Dodgers today when he rapped a last-minute home run to give Brooklyn a 4-to-2 victory over the Pirates.

With two out in the ninth and Ralph Boyle on first, following a walk, Frey hoisted one of Bill Swift's pitches over the right-field screen for the winning tallies.

Houghton Fifth In Pa. Open Tourney

Trails Espinosa, Leader by 7 Strokes; Other D. C. Pros Back.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 19 (Spl.).—Al Houghton, of the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, paced the District contingent in the first 36-hole round of the Pennsylvania open today over Oakmont's famous battlefield, and found himself in a tie for fifth place, 7 shots from the leader, Al Espinosa, of Akron, Ohio.

Espinosa turned in two par-equalling rounds of 72 for a 144 total, and led Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., by 1 stroke, and Sam Parks, Pittsburgh pro, by 2. Wee Bobby Cruickshank tied for fourth place at 150 with Billy Marks, Oakmont amateur and Harold McSpadden, Kansas City.

Houghton, one of five Washington golfers entered scored rounds of 75—76 for 151. He was in a class with Denny Shute, 1933 British open champion, and Perry Del Vecchio, Grensburgh, Pa.

Cliff Spencer, of Beaver Dam, was the next lowest of the District pros, with his 82—77—159. Maury Nee, Columbia amateur, had 81—79—160; Leo Walper, of Bethesda, 84—81—165; Al Treder, of Manor, 91—78—169, and Algie Gardiner, jr., of Columbia, 85—87—172. Hogan Agrees To Match Here

EDDIE HOGAN, sensational New York heavyweight, will head Joe Turner's next card of clout at Mr. Griffiith's brawl yard July 31, if a suitable opponent can be coaxed into the ring with him. Efforts also are being made to match Marty Gallagher, Foggy Bottom's courageous heavyweight, with some outstanding fighter in a cofeature.

Having registered an emphaitc "thumbs down" on a proposal to rematch his protege, Bob Tow, with Tony Galento over the 15-round distance, Bob May, who pulls the strings on the Alexandria Adonis, as quickly inverted his thumbs on Hogan as an opponent.

The Washington Post Sandlotter

SOUTHEAST WASHINGTON, which has been stirred to action in an effort to remedy many of its civic grievances, will have to go far to find an improvement over the Brinkleys' Baseball Team. As a matter of fact, there would be little room for improvement, any way, if the Brinkleys' record of 15 victories in 17 games has any significance. The Southeast aggregation has been stepping along at a fast pace and is confident of increasing its winning mark to 30 games before the players put away their suits for the winter.

To Stanley Pearce, 20-year-old southpaw, and Fred Turner, who also has been playing Post Association ball with Encore, in the Atlantic & Pacific Leage, go the chief credit for the Brinkley's fine record. Their pitching efforts have been consistently effective and have exerted a steadying influence upon the young club.

Vincent Curtin, a horse for work, has done all the catching, while the infield duties have been capably taken care of by Manager Russell Hardesty at first, Alvin Kidwell at second, Monk Barbour at short, and Bob Hanley at third.

Hard-Hitting Outfield.

The Castonguay brothers, James and Walter, and Julius O'Brien patrol the outfield. The offensive punch of the team is concentrated mostly in the batting prowess of these fly-chasers, all of whom sport high batting averages.

The Brinkleys were a little late in their organization this season and were unable to get in any of the local Post Association Leagues, but the Southeast is sure to be represented in organized sandlot baseball by Brinkleys next season, according to Manager Hardesty.

Lans A. C. will be the opponent of Brinkleys Sunday at 3 p. m. on No. 3 diamond.

The scene of the Warwick-Rinaldi Coalmen battle Sunday in the National City League of The Post Association has been switched to No. 1 diamond on the Monument Grounds, Vic Gauzza, league president, announced last night. The game was originally scheduled at Fairlawn.

Northwestern A. C. seeks a game for Sunday with a team having a diamond. Call Adams 6469.

The Adelphites ball team wants games for tomorrow and Sunday with unlimited nines. Call Columbia 562.

The Majestic Radio tossers will meet the Mount Rainier Grays, contenders for Post Association honors in the District Independent League, tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the West Ellipse. The Majestics will engage the Alexandria Eagles Sunday on Baggett's Field at 3 p. m. All players will leave from Tenth and H streets at noon, Sunday.

Virginia White Sox will face the Georgetown A. C. nine in the regular Sunday baseball attraction on the Bailey Crossroads diamond. Morris William, who has not lost a game this season, will hurl for the White Sox.

Chevy Chase Grays and the Mount Vernon Cycle and Sport Shop will meet on the diamond at Chevy Chase Sunday at 3 o'clock.

The Horning Jewelers boasting a fine record of 12 victories and 1 defeat for the season are confident of extending it to 13 victories when they take on the Gambrills, Md., team Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Marylander's field. All Horning Jewelers players will meet at Thirty-seventh street and Wisconsin avenue northwest, 1 p. m., to make the trip. The Jewelers are especially anxious to play a return game with the Fredericksburg Elks, having defeated them in their last engagement. Call Buddy Timmons at Atlantic 1671 after 6 p. m.

The Mount Vernon Cycles and the Renrocs will open the unlimited series of the East Washington Community Center on the Eastern High diamond today at 5 o'clock.

Stocks Decline Seven-tenths As Sales Gain

Metals, Sugars, Aircrafts Weaken; Trading Rises to 614,100 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The stock market today continued to drag along the well known narrow path it has traveled in recent weeks. Weakness in metal, sugar and aircraft shares failed to bring out much liquidation in other sections of the list.

The market seemed content to restrict its expression of approval of prospective ending of the San Francisco general strike to the modest rally of the preceding session.

Drought conditions in farming areas, a break in cotton and absence of contructive trade news more than offset the relief felt in the financial community over latest strike developments.

Half of Gains Lost.

The downward drift cancelled about half the gains of the rally. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks was seven-tenths of a point lower at 77.4.

Volume of trading on the stock exchange increased to 614,100 shares, compared with 490,360 yesterday. Leading commodities, rather than stocks, still attracted most speculative interest.

Rumors of new disturbances in Germany influenced trading, especially in cotton, but failed to find confirmation in the news.

No clear-cut explanation for selling in metal shares was offered by brokers. Talk of British pound stabilization and the argument that rising commodity prices would weaken agitation for further lowering of the gold content of the dollar and increase mining costs were mentioned as possible factors.

U. S. Smelting Drops.

U. S. Smelting dropped nearly 5 points from a new 1934 peak at 141 established in early trading. It closed 3¼ points lower. Alaska Juneau, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and Howe Sound lost 1 to about 3 points.

On the other hand, shares of Homestake Mining, leading domestic gold producer, spurted 13⅛ points in thin trading. To a new top at 430⅛, the highest-priced active issue on the big board.

United Aircraft broke more than a point to a new low. New 1934 minimums also were set by Radio and Aviation Corporation. Losses of a point or two were recorded for such issues as American Sugar, Du Pont, J. I. Case, Coca Cola and Western Union, but most of the prominent issues moved narrowly.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Treasury Department Provides Excellent Table Summarizing Appropriations and Expenditures Under Emergency Program.

On the back of its statements for July 10 and July 11, the Treasury Department for the first time gives a summary table for the emergency side of the Federal budget. It shows the source of funds, total amount appropriated, amount spent in the last two fiscal years, and the amount still available for spending. It is, it seems to me, a record that no one can be without who attempts to talk about the spending program of the Administration. And the Treasury Department deserves most sincere commendation for making the figures public in such a manner. It is further evidence of the apparent constant attempt by those in charge of Treasury accounting to make the daily statement more useful.

Summarizing such a table is a difficult task, and at best must be something less than satisfactory. Nevertheless there are a few points worthy of attention. One is the fact that there are four main sources of funds for the emergency expenditures of the Government. The first is specific appropriations by Congress. To date these have amounted, in round figures, to $2,800,000,000. The large items in this have been $860,000,000 for the AAA, $558,000,000 for the FERA, $375,000,000 for the CWA, $273,000,000 for the Federal Land Banks, and $255,000,000 for public highways.

NIRA Is Large Source Of Emergency Expenditures.

The second great source of funds is the National industrial recovery act. The total made available under this is $3,300,000,000. Outstanding here are $400,000,000 for the CWA, $323,000,000 for CCC, $560,000,000 for loans and grants to States, cities, &c., $438,000,000 for public highways, and $740,000,000 unspecified.

Third is the emergency appropriations act of 1935, totaling $1,426,000,000. Of this $298,000,000 is for the CCC, $169,000,000 for the FERA, and $824,000,000 unallocated.

Finally is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the greatest of all. Specific allotments under it total the incredible sum of $5,958,000,000. In addition it is authorized to provide funds without limit for three purposes—buying preferred stock in commercial banks, enabling the Secretary of Agriculture to make payments to farmers, and carrying out the new housing program.

The grand total of all these appropriations amounts to $13,104,000,000—with nothing included, of course, for the three blank checks on the Treasury just mentioned.

RFC Has Been Largest Spender, Direct Relief Comes Second.

Of this huge sum, $6,543,000,000 actually was spent by the end of the last fiscal year, June 30. Heading the list of spenders is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It accounted for a net outlay (total less repayments) of $2,418,000,000. Next is the group of agencies extending direct relief. Their net outlay was $1,882,000,000. Then comes the group of agencies designed to help the farmer. They accounted for $1,107,000,000. Public works, including loans to States, cities, railroads, &c., used only $653,000,000. The home loan system took $230,000,000; the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $150,000,000.

As of July 1, this year, there still was available for spending under existing appropriations—and again leaving out the blank checks—some $6,600,000,000. In other words, we have left just about as much as we have spent.

The first half, obviously, has not given us prosperity. One can not help but wonder, therefore, upon what basis it is concluded that the second half will be more effective.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 86.8 Level

Trading Is Quiet as Sales Turnover Declines to $8,614,000.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The bond market was exceptionally quiet, but fairly steady today, most issues holding to a small fractional range.

Transfers totaled only $8,614,000, par value, against $11,184,000 yesterday. It was the smallest turnover since June 25, last. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans was again unchanged at 86.8.

While U. S. Government securities were as dull as the rest of the list, they managed to hold advances of 1-32d to 5-32ds of a point Federal Farm 3¼s and Treasury 3⅛s made new highs for the year.

In Federal Section.

Followers of the Federal section were interested in reports from Washington that the Administration was studying refunding plans for September certificate maturities and was considering an exchange offer to the holders of the $1,200,000,000 of Liberty fourth 4¼s which have been called for redemption on October 15. No announcement, however, is expected before sometime next month.

Despite the slow trading, more new peak prices for 1934 or longer were recorded in the corporation division.

Among these were Gannett Co. 6s, up 1 at 99; General Steel Castings 5½s, up ¼ at 89¼; International Cement 5s, up 1 at 96; National Dairy 5¼s, up ¼ at 99⅞; Newark Consolidated Gas 5s, up ¼ at 111½; North American 5s, up 1⅛ at 91¾; Republic Steel 5½s and 5s, up 1 and 1¾ at 93 and 102½, respectively; Tobacco Products 6½s, up ½ to 107½; Union Pacific first 4s, up ¼ at 108¼, and Virginia Railway 5s up ¼ at 109½.

Losers of Fractions.

Losers of fractions to around a point included some bonds of Warner Brothers, Walworth Co., Utilities Power & Light, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Pere Marquette Paramount Publix, New Haven, Nickel Plate, Erie, Chicago & North Western, St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Ice, Baltimore & Ohio and Santa Fe.

There was little activity in the foreign division. Berlin issues were down 1 to 2 points, but the Dawes and Young plan loans steadied.

The former were off ⅞ and the latter up ⅜ of a point. Cuban obligations showed advances of 1 to around 3 points on limited transactions.

Curb's Prices Hold Strong; Sales Larger

Utilities and Oils Drop; Trading Mounts to 150,000 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Despite late mild selling in various parts of the curb exchange list, specialties continued to display strength today. Utilities and oils sold lower, while metals were generally unchanged.

Dealings were a bit more active on the reaction and transfers approximated 150,000 shares compared with 139,000 for the previous session.

Duke Power again dropped sharply, establishing a new low at 37½, off 8½ points. Glen Alden Coal yielded a point to profit taking after having edged a little higher at the start.

Gulf Oil, Bell Telephone of Canada and Cities Service preferred showed declines of around a point. Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Swift & Co., Standard Oil of Indiana and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams showed minor recessions.

Fajardo Sugar resumed its advance into new high ground with a 3-point advance to 105. Greyhound Corporation rose a major fraction in volume trading, while gains of around a point were recorded by Dow Chemical, Flintkote A and Technicolor.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Foreign exchange developed irregular fluctuations yesterday in terms of dollars.

The dollar declined 9-16 of a cent in London, to close at $5.04⅜ to the pound. Sterling gained ⅜ of a cent in New York, at $5.04⅜.

In Paris the dollar rose sharply, gaining 2 centimes at the equivalent of 6.59 cents to the franc. The latter dropped .00⅞ of a cent in New York, to 6.59⅛ cents. The weakness in francs was attributed to the current political disagreement in the French cabinet.

The price of gold in London declined 2 pence, to 137 shillings 10 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.72). Bars valued at $2,724,452 changed hands.

Silk Market.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed barely steady, unchanged to 1½ lower; sales, 910 bales. July, 1.10½ bid; October, 1.15½ bid; December, 1.16½ bid.

Open market quotations (60-day basis): Shanghai steam filature, 78 per cent seriplane, 20-22s, 1.45. Canton double extra "A," 14-16s, .91. Japanese special crack double extra, 81 per cent seriplane, 13-15s, 1.18.

What the Stock Market Did.

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	140	328
Declines	335	137
Unchanged	169	156
Total issues	644	621

Stocks—Prices continued to drag into lower ground. Metals, sugars and aircrafts weakened. Losses averaged seven-tenths of a point. Sales increased in volume to 614,100 shares.

Bonds—Exceptionally quiet trading left the market averages unchanged from the 86.8 level. Federal loans were as dull as the best on the list. Sales dropped to $8,614,000.

Curb—In spite of mild selling, curb prices continued to display strength. Oils and utilities weakened. Sales volume increased to 150,000 shares.

Wheat—Startling reports of widespread drought damages drove wheat prices above the dollar mark. All grains advanced. July wheat sold at 99⅝; September, at $1.01⅛.

Cotton—Reaction set in after an early advance and the market closed down 11 to 15 points. Realizing and liquidation were blamed. July sold at 13.00; October, at 13.14.

Rubber—Crude rubber was higher and steady. July sold at 14.76; September, at 15.00.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.15. Refined sold at 4.75.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Rio, No. 7, sold at 9; Santos, No. 4, at 10½.

Silver—Bar silver was ⅛ lower in New York, at 46½.

Gold—Bar gold sold in London at 137 shillings and 10 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was lower on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.04½ to the English pound; 6.59¾ cents to the French franc, and 39.20 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A cheerful tone prevailed on the stock exchange today. The moderate revival of speculation improved gold-mining shares, rubber and transatlantic issues, while investment buying caused firmness in gilt-edged securities and industrials. Home rails and German bonds were easy. The market closed quietly steady.

Paris—Rentes dropped sharply today on the bourse, traders fearing the opening of a political crisis because of former Premier Tardieu's charges against former Premier Chautemps in connection with the Bayonne pawnshop scandal. Losses in rentes ranged from 1½ to 2 francs, while the remainder of the market was inactive. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—With business more lively, quotations on the boerse recovered somewhat today, especially mining shares. The loan market, however, was neglected. Prices were generally sustained at the close.

Bank of England.

London, July 19 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 761,000; circulation decreased 737,000; bullion increased 24,000; other securities increased 1,157,000; public deposits increased 3,211,000; other deposits decreased 773,000; notes reserve increased 794,000; government securities increased 540,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 44.53 per cent, compared with 44.74 last week.

Rate of discount, 2 per cent.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Gray cotton goods were firm today with trading light. Printed percales were advanced ¼ cent and 36-inch flannels were held at ½ cent a yard higher. Dress goods of sports wear types were in demand. Fancy fabrics for men's wear were very scarce for spot delivery. Rayon weavers planned a trade promotion and did not join the silk code committee in favoring a 40-hour single shift week. Burlaps were very quiet. Silk goods for converting were in better call.

Formula for Testing Banking Soundness by Statement Is Hit

By Anna P. Youngman.

B. M. Gile, of the University of Arkansas, and F. L. Garlock, of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, have made a most valuable comparative analysis of the published statements of 13 Arkansas banks that closed during the depression and 15 banks which remained open through 1932.

The period covered extends from the year 1918 to 1933. The investigators attempt to show which items in the published statements ought to be studied by depositors anxious to obtain a better knowledge of the relative soundness of their banks. They also weigh the merits of various relationships between the items in bank statements as a guide to the condition of a bank.

The most frequently used test of banking soundness—that is, the ratio of cash resources to deposits—proved to be the least dependable of the eight ratios considered. The best test of relative strength or weakness, on the basis of this limited case study, is the ratio between loans, other stocks and bonds, and real estate (minus capital funds) to deposits. That is, this ratio was uniformly much higher during the period of time covered by the investigation for closed banks than it was for banks that remained open. The next best test is the ratio of cash resources and net United States securities (minus borrowed money) to deposits. From 1931 this ratio was much lower for the closed banks that it was for the open ones.

Depositors and Statements.

As a result of their analysis, the authors conclude that during the pre-depression period most depositors might have been forewarned if they had understood how to interpret a bank statement of condition. Nevertheless, although the statistical proof of this conclusion is arresting, given the conditions then prevailing, it would be a serious mistake to assume that the same tests of banking condition apply generally and hold for different times and a radically changed economic situation. It would certainly be most unfortunate to confirm the public in a habit of testing banking soundness by the ratio of cash and United States Government security holdings to deposits.

It is noted in the Arkansas study that many bankers thought they were protecting their institutions when they purchased industrial, utility and railroad bonds during the twenties. They discovered their mistake too late. Similarly banks holding large amounts of Government securities may find that their belief in the extreme liquidity of these holdings is ill-founded.

If the Government continues to rely upon deficit financing to cover budget outlays, and the public debt mounts uninterruptedly, the possibility of depreciation of United States bonds has to be faced. According to authoritative estimates, about 60 per cent of the debt of the Federal Government is already lodged in bank portfolios. The Federal Reserve Board reports, too, indicate that, on June 30, all member banks had nearly one-third more assets in the form of securities than at the peak of the 1929 boom. Steadily diminishing demands from commercial borrowers, it was stated, had reduced this class of loans from nearly $12,000,000,000 to about $5,000,000,000. It is estimated that holdings of Government securities by member banks, on the other hand, have more than doubled, amounting to over $9,000,000,000 on June 30, compared with $4,155,000,000 at the end of June, 1929.

Liquidity and Soundness.

If liquidity is a synonym for soundness, it is evident that the banks of the United States are becoming increasingly unsound in the sense of having acquired immense holdings of Government securities which can not be disposed of in any great amount, however liquid they may be when there is no concerted pressure to sell.

If the public were encouraged to apply generally the tests that proved most reliable for the Arkansas banks, the tendency would be to look askance at banks with a large proportion of commercial loans and nongovernmental securities and to favor those with a high proportion of Government issues. Since conservative bankers are already viewing with alarm the recessions in the volume of self-liquidating commercial loans and the increases in holdings of public securities, it is evident that ratio tests which seem good for individual banks may be a very misleading index to the condition of the banking system taken as a whole.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Anthracite—An increase of 25 cents a ton has been announced by producers, effective August 1. Another seasonal advance of the same amount will become effective September 1, it is said in the trade.

Tea—Importers report a quiet trade with distributors adhering to their policy of buying for immediate needs only.

Lead—Current demand is fairly active and some trade quarters expect an upward revision in prices soon if consumers continue to take metal in the present volume.

Chemicals—The market for crude glycerine shows a weak tone. The Japanese menthol price structure is firm in spite of relatively small consumer demand.

Wool Markets.

Boston, July 19 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—A little interest was shown by manufacturers in combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood territory wool. Prices talked were 70@75 scoured basis for a fairly good strictly combing staple of this grade, and small quantities were reported to have been sold within this range. The bulk of the strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood territory wool, however, was being quoted at 80@82 scoured basis.

Brazil Coffee Destruction Cut to 305,000 Bags

New York, July 19.—Coffee destruction during the first half of July totaled 305,000 bags, against 702,000 during the last half of June, according to advices to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. Since June, 1931, Brazil has destroyed 29,446,000 bags, or more than one year's consumption for the entire world.

The sharp decline from the 1,104,000-bag total in May and the 1,227,000 total in June reflects the improved statistical picture in Brazil. Faced with an estimated 1934-35 crop of 14,102,000 bags, Brazil feels that it can now let down somewhat in its destruction program.

Bank of France.

Paris, July 19 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs: Gold increased 85,000,000; sight balances abroad unchanged; bills discounted at home decreased 27,000,000; bills bought abroad unchanged; advances decreased 32,000,000; circulation decreased 410,000,000; current accounts increased 321,000,000.

Municipalities Struggle Out Of Debt Bogs

Adjustment Acts and Laws on Bankruptcy Aid; Bond Values Assist.

By W. R. Huff.

New York, July 19 (AP).—General improvement in bond values is combining, in the opinion of New York bankers, with State receivership and debt-adjustment acts and the recently passed Federal municipal bankruptcy law, to enable many local governments to struggle out of the bog of excessive indebtedness.

The credit of innumerable towns and cities, counties and school districts and other civil taxing units has been greatly aided in the past few months by the upward surge of bond prices.

The existence of tremendous idle reserves in the hands of banks, furthermore, insures the continuance of a good market for sound issues, bankers say.

Issues Well Received.

In the absence of new corporate financing, recent municipal issues have been well received for investment purposes. The rising prices of outstanding issues have paved the road for refunding and adjustment of debts which would not have been possible a year ago.

The actions of States in assisting their towns and counties with their debt problems, such as the creation of the New Jersey Municipal Finance Commission, has helped point the way out. Properties are being reassessed, services curtailed, expenses reduced and refunding supervised in many sections of the country. The new Federal legislation, it is said, will enable defaulting municipalities to escape their predicament.

Most of these steps are of a temporary or emergency nature, however. Some bankers express the hope, therefore, that permanent measures will be taken to prevent a repetition of the excessive debt inflation of the last 10 or 20 years.

Debts of Governments.

The gross debt, less sinking fund assets, of all local governing units in 1932 is estimated by the New York Trust Co.'s index at $15,222,898,000. This compared with $7,754,196,000 in 1922 and with $3,475,954,000 in 1912.

Florida, with a rise of 2,779 per cent in the total debt of its subdivisions in the 20-year period, showed the largest expansion. North Carolina and Michigan also increased their obligations by more than 1,250 per cent each, while Illinois, Iowa, New Jersey, Arizona, Arkansas, California, South Carolina, Texas and Wyoming all had gains of more than 500 per cent.

Florida is also the leading State in number of defaults, among its subdivisions reporting 328 as of March 1, 1934. North Carolina had 279; Louisiana, 259; Ohio, 140; New Jersey, 130; Texas, 111, and California, 104. New York State had only 3, while seven States had no defaulting districts.

The fact that many of those States which showed the largest gains in their municipal debts also have the most defaults is taken as striking proof, in banking circles, of the thesis that unreasonable expansion has been the chief cause of inability to meet interest at the present time.

Wheat Futures Driven Above Dollar Mark

Reports of Drought Loss Cause Grain Prices to Mount.

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—Prompted by startling reports of widespread drought damage, all wheat futures soared above the $1-a-bushel mark today. Simultaneously, corn and rye both overtopped the season's high price record.

Maximum new upturns of about 2 cents were attained by wheat and other grains, but active selling to realize profits led to material reactions from the day's high points. The apex for wheat today was shown to be up nearly 16 cents in the last 10 days.

A feature was trade forecasts current that notwithstanding shortage of domestic wheat production, Southwest feeding of wheat to live stock this season would be the largest known in 30 years.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm, ⅞ to 1¼ above yesterday's finish; corn, ¼ to 1⅛ up; oats, unchanged to ¼ advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

The fact that Liverpool and Rotterdam wheat markets were much stronger than expected gave added impetus to the upward trend of prices in Chicago, Liverpool showing a net gain of 2¼ cents today and Rotterdam 3¼ cents. Radical curtailment of French wheat crop estimates were an evident contributing stimulus.

Chicago traders devoted greater attention, however, to reports indicating drought and heat were taking increased heavy toll from spring wheat crops Northwest both sides of the international border.

Canadian Wheat News.

Canadian wheat advices bordered on the sensational, and were taken here as significant that the crop was retrogressing rapidly in many sections. One report said that between Caigary and Medicine Hat, Alberta, 190 miles, there were now numerous drought-damaged spots which ten days ago had been in good shape, and that in some parts of east central Alberta wheat was being cut for hay. Suggestions were heard that feeding of domestic wheat to live stock Southwest would wipe out all existing surplus by next July.

Corn and oats reflected wheat strength, together with advices that crop damage to corn was extending into new territory, Iowa in particular.

Provisions were responsive chiefly to grain market upturns.

Acacia Mutual Extends Office; Awaits Building

Entire Structure Leased Pending Erection of New Permanent Home.

Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. has assembled a third portion of its temporary office space pending erection of its next permanent home at New Jersey and Louisiana avenues, First, C and D streets northwest.

The company has rented an entire building at 118 E street northwest, containing 11,000 square feet of floor space, as a temporary office for its cashier department. The lease was executed through the office of Waggaman-Brawner Realty Corporation.

When the life insurance company sold its original home office building at 101 Indiana avenue northwest to the Home Owners Loan Corporation in June, it began to seek temporary office space throughout the city for its executive staff and personnel pending completion of its next building.

Its first selection of temporary space was the five-story and basement office structure at 1437 K street northwest, long vacant and former headquarters of the Wardman construction and real estate activities. This lease was negotiated by H. L. Rust Co. and gives the insurance company approximately 15,000 square feet of floor space.

Its second installment of temporary office space was provided recently by the lease of two floors, the second and fourth, in the City Club Building, at 1312-1320 G street northwest. This lease, also handled by H. L. Rust Co., gives the insurance company approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 19 (AP).—Preliminary reports indicate that bookings and shipments of structural steel in June were more than they were in May but slightly less than the record bookings in April, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction. June bookings were 44 per cent larger than the average monthly bookings in the last quarter of 1933 and 13 per cent larger than in the same month last year, the institute indicated.

Lake Superior ores consumed by furnaces in June totaled 2,721,449 tons, compared with 2,957,934 in May and 1,894,004 in June, 1933. Ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie ports at the end of June amounted to 27,042,854 tons, compared with 27,479,090 tons on the same date a year ago. There were 30 furnaces in blast on June 30, a decrease of 24 from the previous month.

Stewart-Warner Corporation consolidated sales for the June quarter were $5,180,718, compared with $4,041,722 in the previous quarter and $2,480,572 in the June quarter last year. For the first half sales totaled $9,222,434, against $3,979,164 in the corresponding period last year.

The award of the Grand Coulee Dam in Washington combined with the third highest week of this year in private work, says the Engineering-News Record, makes a total of $56,276,000 in engineering awards for the week. This tops all records for the two preceding years, according to the publication.

The Associated Oil Co., it was announced today, will retire outstanding funding debt amounting to $3,482,000 of an original issue of $24,000,000 of 12-year 6 per cent gold notes at 102½ and interest.

Greece Arranges Interest Payments

New York, July 19.—Speyer & Co., as fiscal agents for the Greek government 40-year 7 per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds, refugee loan of 1924, and Speyer & Co. and the National City Bank of New York, as fiscal agents for the Greek government 40-year 6 per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds, stabilization and refugee loan of 1928, announce that, in accordance with the agreement between the Greek government and the league loans committtee (London), the announcement concerning which was published on November 17, last, they have received funds sufficient to pay 27½ per cent of the annual interest on the above-mentioned issues falling due in the Greek fiscal year ended March 31, 1934, and 35 per cent of the interest required for the May 1, 1934, coupon of the 7 per cent loan and the August 1, 1934, coupon of the 6 per cent loan.

Such payments will be made at the offices of the fiscal agents upon presentation of the coupons, accompanied by a letter of transmittal.

The coupons will be stamped with the dollar amounts paid and will be returned to the bondholders who should reattach the same to their bonds.

Consumption Of Electricity Holds Steady

Volume Used Nearly at May Level; Advances Balance Losses.

New York, July 19.—Electric energy consumption in June in a group of 3,800 large plants in 12 broad lines of manufacturing scattered throughout the country, which are surveyed each month by Electrical World, was on nearly the same scale as in May, that paper will report in its final issue on July 21 (Saturday). "Moderate recessions in certain lines of industry," the report continues, "are nearly balanced by gains in others.

"A decline of 3 per cent is shown in the weighted average compared with the revised figure for May. The total energy consumption in June by the plants surveyed is one and a third billion kilowatt hours.

"Last year at this season manufacturing operations were rapidly speeding up, the gain in June over May being nearly 13 per cent. Following a sag during the fall and winter, this year's operations have for several months been oscillating around a new level about 5 per cent under the July peak and 13 per cent above the minimum of last December. The result has been to cut the excess over 1933 to 3 per cent, compared with 19 per cent in May.

Iron and Steel Activity.

"Activity in iron and steel is higher than in any previous month of the year except May and the recession from that month is small. The gain over the rate of operations a year ago amounts to 23 per cent. The same statements apply to the metal-working industry, which consists mainly in the manufacture of machinery.

"Two others in the durable goods group, namely, forest products and the stone-clay-glass industries, had previously made considerable progress and are now approximately at the level attained a year ago.

"In food products the usual seasonal rise has been in progress, but on a somewhat lower level than a year ago, the difference in June being 7 per cent, while in the chemical industries, including oil refining, energy consumption has for several months been approximately constant and materially larger than in 1933. In automobiles and textiles the past two months show a decline, but the former stands with a net gain of 30 per cent over last year, against a net loss of 22 per cent in textiles.

Durable Goods Gains.

"The very definite gains in connection with the manufacture of durable goods are important. It was in this field that the decline was most pronounced, and it is here that renewed activity is regarded as most essential to general recovery. As to the figures on the chemical industry, it is to be noted that on the basis of energy used by the reporting companies this group is on a higher level than in any previous year covered by this series of statistics.

"In New England activity in the textile industry decreased in May and again in June, the present rate being 22 per cent less than in June of 1933, but slightly greater than in May of that year.

"Iron and steel receding from the preceding month, is on a par with April and with June, 1933, but in metal working there is a year's gain of 9 per cent. Both industries have approximately doubled their use of energy, compared with the low point in 1932. The regional average dropped 6 per cent from May and is below June, 1933, by the same amount.

Middle Atlantic States.

"In the Middle Atlantic States most of the changes were negligible. Leather gained, automobiles and stone lost, the average remained unchanged and almost identical with that attained a year ago. With a number of important returns still missing, some of the figures are subject to revision. The North Central average shows a year's gain of 10 per cent, notwithstanding the sharp advance at this time last year. Recessions are indicated in the metal industries, leather products, stone, and, to a less degree, in automobile, with an increase in textiles.

"Labor troubles are reflected in a severe decrease in energy consumption by textile mills in the South, but the loss was in part compensated by an advance of 19 per cent in the stone, clay and glass industries. The regional average is the same as in April, and down 3 per cent from last year.

"In the West the only important change was in forest products, which declined 8 per cent. Smaller changes in other industries, in part counteracted by a further rise in metals, caused a decrease of 3 per cent in the general average, leaving a gain of the same magnitude over last year's June."

Cotton Prices Pushed Lower In Realizing

July Sells at 13.00 as General Market Drops 11 to 15 Points.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Sharp reactions from an early advance in cotton today under realizing and liquidation, accompanied by a talk of a weakened technical position and unconfirmed rumors of unfavorable developments in Germany, was followed by partial recoveries. October contracts, after selling off from 13.35 to 12.95, or about $2 per bale from the high price of the morning, closed at 13.14, with the general market steady at net losses of 11 to 15 points.

There was considerable realizing and a little Southern selling at the opening, but offerings were absorbed and the market stiffened up during the early trading on buying which seemed to be coming largely through spot house brokers.

This was supplemented by covering and a scattering commission house demand which carried the active months about 4 to 10 points net higher during the early trading.

Realizing continued, however, and while the market steadied up a few points on the detailed weather reports, prices soon broke again under liquidating.

Stop orders were uncovered on the decline, which sent prices off about 40 points from the early highs and 30 to 33 points net lower, but, after their execution, the market steadied up again on further trade buying and covering. Closing quotations showed rallies of some 17 to 18 points from the lowest.

Reports that it looked more like rain along the Texas Coast were considered a contributing factor in some of the early selling, but nothing was heard of any actual rain in that section. The official forecast was for generally fair to partly cloudy weather in Texas, except for unsettled weather near the East Coast. Exports today, 12,893, making 7,572,786 so far this season. Port receipts, 8.294. United States port stocks, 2,468,487.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm and active early today on further covering and commission house buying, promoted by the advance in tallow and greases and the strength of cotton and crude oil, but after showing advances of 9 to 17 points offerings increased and reactions followed. Final prices were 4 to 6 points net higher. Sales 118 contracts.

Bituminous Coal Yield Is 6,540,000 Tons

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car-loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended July 14 as approximately 6,540,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week, 1933, 6,965,000 tons; 1932, 4,210,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,275,000 tons for the week ended June 30, and 5,118,000 for the week ended July 7, 1934. Production calendar year to July 14, 1934, *194,062,000 tons; 1933, 158,552,000 tons.

*Subject to revision.

Exchange Officials Await Investigation of Margins

New York, July 19 (AP).—Officials of the New York Stock Exchange have as yet received no indication from the Federal Reserve Board as to when they will complete investigation into the subject of margins, it was learned today.

The Federal Reserve Board, it was indicated, is making an exhaustive effort to secure information from all parts of the United States through the various exchanges on the subject of margins.

Revival Expected In Retail Trade

New York, July 19.—Store executives are openly pleased with the public response to summer offerings, for retail trade is generally well ahead of a year ago, says the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, currently.

The explanation apparently is that merchandise in consumers hands is rapidly losing its utility as a result of the early and unusual persistent hot weather.

Normal seasonal sales declines are therefore being relieved somewhat by replacement of such goods, which is taking the form very largely of early purchases of fall lines. This tendency has been shown thus far principally in the lower price field, but should soon extend to higher quality lines. A fall buying movement of substantial proportions in indicated, early appearance of which will assist retailers in maintaining favorable sales comparisons with a year ago.

New Zealand Improves Export Trade Balance

Wellington, New Zealand, July 19 (AP).—New Zealand almost doubled her favorable trade balance in the 12 months ended June 30, it was shown in figures published today. The excess of exports over imports amounted to $90,000,000, compared with $48,000,000 in the previous year and $40,000,00 in 1931-32.

Exports in the past 12 months reached the highest figure in the last five years, a total of $196,564,000, while imports were $106,812,000.

Porcupine Mines Prosper.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Net profit of McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd., in the second quarter totaled $951,734 after charges, equal to $1.19 a share on the capital stock. This compares with $800,468 or $1 a share in the June quarter of the previous year.

Radio Waves and Ripples

Maj. Ernest W. Brown's local traffic clean-up campaign will have its counterpart today in New York when Traffic Officer James F. Dixon, New York City Police Department, faces an N. B. C. mike with two schoolboys to give them lessons in traffic safety. His talk will be heard over the networks at 4:30 p. m.

AUDITIONING a seething mob of mike-struck young women for the part of a hat-check girl in Columbia's forthcoming "Hollywood Hotel" has definitely got radio Station WJSV by the ears.

Ordinarily the local C. B. S. lads and lassies are quite sane . . . but listening to the frightened voices of a bunch of applicants who never should have tried out in the first place, has cast an eerie pall of gloom over them all.

If some one had given the girls sound advice before coming to the studio much confusion and heartache would have been avoided. But the jig isn't up yet. Dick Powell, who is to play the lead in "Hollywood Hotel," after fighting off a severe case of conscience, wrote out some timely advice for the girl contestants. And it's sound as store teeth, girls!

"The girl who wins the auditions," says Dick, "will have to be able to sing popular songs and do an acceptable job of acting before the microphone—that is, she will have to do all her acting vocally.

"I imagine that the girl who wins the local auditions at each of the 86 Columbia stations," he continues, "will be the one who gets up before the mike and sings with perfect naturalness. She won't try to put on any airs. She won't use any affectations of voice. She won't try any vocal stunts. She will remember that if she wins she will be playing the part of a hat-check girl in a big hotel, a typical, wisecracking, healthy American girl.

"Imagine such a girl in real life. If she happens to be singing at her work, do you think she will strain her vocal chords to reach some spectacular closing note that isn't even written into the song that she is singing? Do you think she will adopt a pronunciation and accent completely at variance with that of her normal speaking voice? No? Neither do I. Well, the girl who plays the part in 'Hollywood Hotel' will have to create the illusion of real life. She will best be able to do that, especially in her singing, if she remains just her own natural self."

SEVERAL of the girls we watched during WJSV's auditions last week adopted a "wise attitude" after they had finished singing. They thought they had made a killing with the judges. This is bad, very bad. Powell sensed this, too.

"I think there is a great possible danger to the ambitions of the girl who wins the local contest and goes on to the regional audition," he says. "She may become overconfident. She may forget for the moment that it was the naturalness of her singing that won for her in the local audition. In the excitement she may tend to assume a pose that is just a trifle affected. If she does, her chances fade out completely.

Out of the local auditions, which definitely end tomorrow at 6 p. m., it is not unreasonable to suppose that at least one Washington girl will be sent to the regional contests, which will, in turn, lead to New York for the finals. Please note that WJSV will handle the regional contest for this district starting August 8.

"Incidentally," finishes Powell, "the winner of the final audition will probably be a girl who has had plenty of sleep the night before she is given her test, and who, on the day of the audition, has sung just enough to loosen her vocal chords and assure the smoothness of her voice before she steps to the microphone."

Your Announcer Is . . .

ROBERT "BOB" TROUT: This tall, lanky son of North Carolina nearly starved himself writing pulp fiction in Greenwich Village before he landed in Washington ot become the C. B. S. Presidential announcer. Bob has tried his hand at nearly everything from slinging hash to riding the rods . . . he has even combed a few beaches (rarely his tousled black hair), poked into out-of-the-way corners of the globe on a tramp steamer and driven a hack. He has an easy, lackadaisical microphone manner, but few equal him in catching essentials during broadcasts of large hearings or outdoor events. Delights in subtle ad-libbing. Is open, friendly, genial and easy-going. Though over 6 feet tall, he weighs only 150 pounds. Luminous, brown eyes and jib-boom nose, is married. Takes boxing lessons. Smokes unsavory corn cob pipe and spends spare time writing fiction. Secret love: Sports announcing. Bob leaves here July 26 to join the President at Portland, Oreg., from whence he will present to C. B. S. networks the remainder of the Presidential trip.

RAPTUROUS maidens will journey far to view the heaving chest and Adonis profile of Henry Nestor, whom the gods have blessed with a soothing barytone voice.

Nestor, who directs traffic for Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of the District police, at New York avenue and Fourteenth street, has been heard as the "Singing Cop" over N. B. C. stations here.

Late yesterday the major announced that Traffic Director Nestor has been awarded the coveted post of "wayward pedestrian-catcher" so that he may ride as the "Voice of Conscience" in that fearsome white traffic car which will lie in wait for rule breakers here on or about Wednesday, July 25.

The voice that will boom at cars that tear through traffic lights has trilled opera bits with the Washington Civic Opera Company and chided patrons in a master of ceremonies way at a local hotel.

We predict a traffic jam de luxe when Nestor lets loose at violators next week. Some of his brother patrolmen will learn that untangling traffic is nothing compared with quelling women with a barytone complex.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Three Million Higher

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended July 18, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,471,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $275,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On July 18 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,460,000,000, a decrease of $8,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $16,000,000 in money in circulation, $60,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $3,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and an increase of $16,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by an increase of $85,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and a decrease of $2,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency.

There was practically no change during the week in the system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market and United States bonds. An increase of $25,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by a decrease of a like amount in holdings of Treasury certificates and bills.

Changes in the amount of Reserve Bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended July 18, 1934, were as follows:

Londos-Marshall Match Here Tonight May Draw 12,000 to dispose of George. Londos, however, has all to lose and nothing to gain except the cash.

It is a good thing for Londos that he had this Marshall fracas moved back from last night, for he toiled—and toiled hard—for a total of 3 hours 15 minutes and 13 seconds in the Boston ring Wednesday and, even with yesterday's rest, which included a long train-ride from the City of Culture, he likely will be far from fresh when he tackles Marshall. And any rassler tackling Marshall in his present form should be at his best.

The Colorado cowboy has been training hard, pointing for this particular bout, for a week and was chock full of confidence last night. In the recent past, he has been Londos' nemesis. Five times have this pair met and four times has a draw resulted. On the last occasion, the two tugged at each other for nearly three hours before Londos won. Even then, he had to toss Everett out of the ring on his head, injuring him, to gain the verdict.

Knowing each other's style, indications are that the two will throw science to the winds and that it will be a knockdown, dragout affair. Marshall recently has specialized on an arm stretch and shoulder jolt, which was effective enough to half kill Rudy Dusek here recently, and he is planning to give the Greek punishing doses of this medicine. Londos, between his back-pedaling, is expected to try to wear his foe down with plain and fancy thorhammers and all-around roughing, then to make the kill, if he can, with his famed airplane spin and body slams.

Indications are that the largest crowd since the Londos-Rudy Dusek melee of 1931 will batttle its way through the turnstiles, this bout drawing 12,000 and a $17,000 gate.

Browns Rally And Down Nats, 8-7

Weaver Unable to Hold Lead; Myer Fails in 8th With 2 On.

grounder, a wild pitch and singles off the bats of Gill and Sewell, accounted for Washington's runs.

Before going into the gruesome details of the slaughter, it may be well to mention that a young man tagged Harland Clift slapped a brace of home runs into the left-field bleachers to bag the day's long-distance clouting honors.

His first drive came in the initial inning, which he opened, and the second occurred in the sixth, and as it scored Andrews it turned out to be the run that topped the Nats.

The Browns got their second run in the second inning on West's double and Andrews' single, but it was in the sixth that they really got back in the ball game, scoring four times and cutting Washington's lead to a mere 7-6.

Open With Double.

Campbell opened with a double, but Melillio flied to second and Hemsley popped up to Travis. Strangely enough, it was a fellow tagged Strange who kept the rally alive with a single scoring Campbell. After that Weaver was as effective as a popgun in a bull fight. He cracked like a bent record and Bejma, batting for Andrews, belabored his fast ball for a triple, scoring this Strange person. And then came Clift. His second drive went after the first as though it were mating season. It was a real sock.

Weaver was yanked and Burke eased onto the mound only to be greeted by a lusty triple off Sam West's bat, but he managed to make Pepper fly to Schulte after passing Burns.

Washington's last two runs were served in the first half of the sixth when Buddy Myer wrapped his war-club around a McAfee curve for a two-bagger, scoring Sewell, who had singled, and Bluege, occupying a base on his fielder's choice.

Bobby Burke was the fall guy in the seventh when the Browns wiped out the Nats' 1-run lead to win the ball game. Campbell reached first with the tying run when he beat out a hit off Burke's glove. Burke got Mellilo out on a line drive to Bluege, but Hemlsey caressed his next pitch for a triple to right, tying the score and putting the winning run on third. Strange was purposely passed and, with Hornsby batting for McAfee, McColl went in to pitch. Hemlsey scored the deciding run when Cronin took Hornsby's grounder and heaved wildly to Myer in an attempt for a double play. That, my friends, is how the Browns won the ball game and climbed to within three points of the Nats' fifth-place berth.

Umpiratical

Maybe Baseball Arbiters Ought to Be Examined Every So Ofen.

By George Kenney
(Pinch-hitting for Paul Gallico).

BECKHURST, Long Island, July 19 (Spl.).—More in jest, I dare say, than in earnest, old Prof. Gallico recently delivered himself of a mouthful of barbed comment on the advisability of having referees, judges and members of the New York State Boxing Commission examined as to their fitness before every important boxing match. It was prompted by the fact that a day or so before Commissioner Bill Brown had unlimbered a broadside of unkind and, as it later developed, unwise remarks concerning the physical condition and boxing ability of Max Baer.

Max, as every one knows, subsequently foreswore buffoonery and play-acting for the time being, went into the ring against Commissioner Brown's well-meant advice and proceeded in a most convincing manner to shellack the large Primo Carnera. He did it so thoroughly that by the time a referee, who, incidentally had not been examined before the fight, saw fit to call a halt, every one at the ringside, including the aforementioned Commissioner Brown, must have been convinced that Brown's early diagnosis was a bit premature and somewhat dampish.

How About Umpires.

The idea of requiring officials, particularly judges and arbiters of sports events, to undergo an examination before an important contest seemed somehow less screwy after the Carnera-Baer affair. Almost daily since then it has been recalled to my attention by the operations of a different, but no less autocratic and authoritative group of officials who, from time to time, have pulled decisions quite as haywire as Commissioner Brown's judgment of Baer. I refer to baseball umpires.

Now, I grant that umpires are human, and as subject to the ills and frailties of humanity as other mortals. And I grant, moreover, that the job of umpiring is no push-over; that umpires must make decisions without batting an eye and in the twinkling of that same unblinking glimmer. But nevertheless and notwithstanding, as the strike leaders are saying, I maintain that if there is one branch of sport where keen eyes and alert senses in officiating are necessary, it is in baseball. (Cheers off stage.)

Maybe Sight Fails.

Baseball still is the great American game. (More cheers.) It goes on day in and day out. Even during part of the winter the activities of the baseball teams in Florida and elsewhere are followed with interest, even eagerness. It is a sport better understood than most any other sport by the average fan. This is true because there are, for every kid who has boxed, wrestled, played football or taken an interest in the ponies, ten who have played baseball during boyhood and early manhood. That being the case, I am frequently puzzled by the fact that umpires are permitted to rule the game year in and year out without any proof whatever of their fitness except, perhaps, their membership card in some fraternal organization. I mean, how can the president of a major league determine in 1935 that the umpire he engaged in 1932 is still fit for service, particularly if he was already middle-aged when hired?

How can he know in 1935 whether the umpire who, in 1925, was a wizard on balls and strikes, hasn't lost the keen sight which enabled him to see the corners of the plate ten years before? What assurance has a league president or, for that matter, has the fan who plunks down his buck every day or so, that the top-notch umpire of 1925 hasn't strained his sight by, say, reading gas meters during the winter or squinting at the agate type on his income tax return? In brief, to what examination does an umpire submit to permit him to qualify year after year as the arbiter of a game for which fans spend millions annually? Answer me those, Cuthbert!

Stars Are Ejected.

These questions have somewhat invaded my noggin, which has a habit of entertaining heretical questions frequently without my awareness or sanction, and I find myself wondering every once in a while how it happens that an umpire, earning—well, getting then—$7,500 a year may arbitrarily banish from an important game a star player or a playing manager merely because that hapeless hooligan neglected to prefix his remarks with the title Mister when calling the umps a cross-eyed, blankety-blank, so-and-so in the heat of a closely fought game? Or how come an ump may cause a player to be fined 50 or 100 simoleons when the player, in whom his club has an investment of perhaps $100,000 or more, honestly believes that the umpire was wrong—an opinion which, all too often, is shared by practically every one in the ball park except the umps.

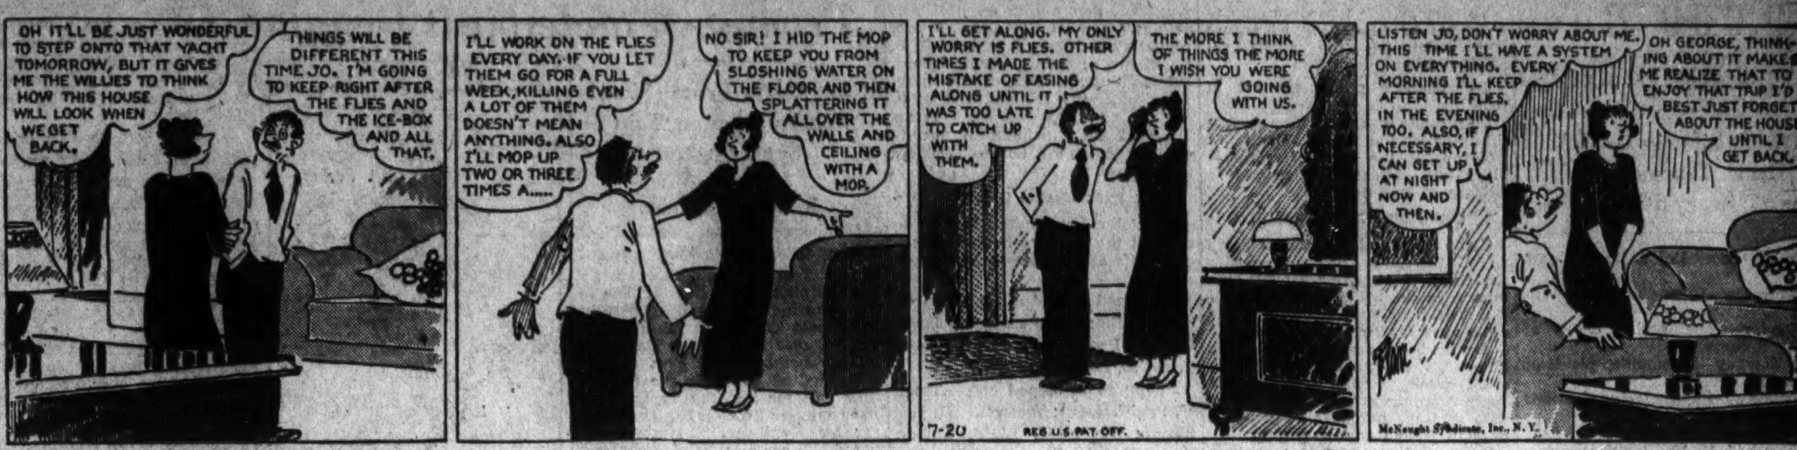
THE BUNGLE FAMILY Experience Doesn't Worry George By Harry J. Tuthill



OH IT'LL BE JUST WONDERFUL TO STEP ONTO THAT YACHT TOMORROW, BUT IT GIVES ME THE WILLIES TO THINK HOW THIS HOUSE WILL LOOK WHEN WE GET BACK.
THINGS WILL BE DIFFERENT THIS TIME JO. I'M GOING TO KEEP RIGHT AFTER THE FLIES AND THE ICE-BOX AND ALL THAT.
I'LL WORK ON THE FLIES EVERY DAY. IF YOU LET THEM GO FOR A FULL WEEK, KILLING EVEN A LOT OF THEM DOESN'T MEAN ANYTHING. ALSO I'LL MOP UP TWO OR THREE TIMES A.....
NO SIR! I HID THE MOP TO KEEP YOU FROM SLOSHING WATER ON THE FLOOR AND THEN SPLATTERING IT ALL OVER THE WALLS AND CEILING WITH A MOP.
I'LL GET ALONG. MY ONLY WORRY IS FLIES. OTHER TIMES I MADE THE MISTAKE OF EASING ALONG UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE TO CATCH UP WITH THEM.
THE MORE I THINK OF THINGS THE MORE I WISH YOU WERE GOING WITH US.
LISTEN JO, DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME. THIS TIME I'LL HAVE A SYSTEM ON EVERYTHING. EVERY MORNING I'LL KEEP AFTER THE FLIES. IN THE EVENING TOO. ALSO, IF NECESSARY, I CAN GET UP AT NIGHT NOW AND THEN.
OH GEORGE, THINKING ABOUT IT MAKES ME REALIZE THAT TO ENJOY THAT TRIP I'D BEST JUST FORGET ABOUT THE HOUSE UNTIL I GET BACK.

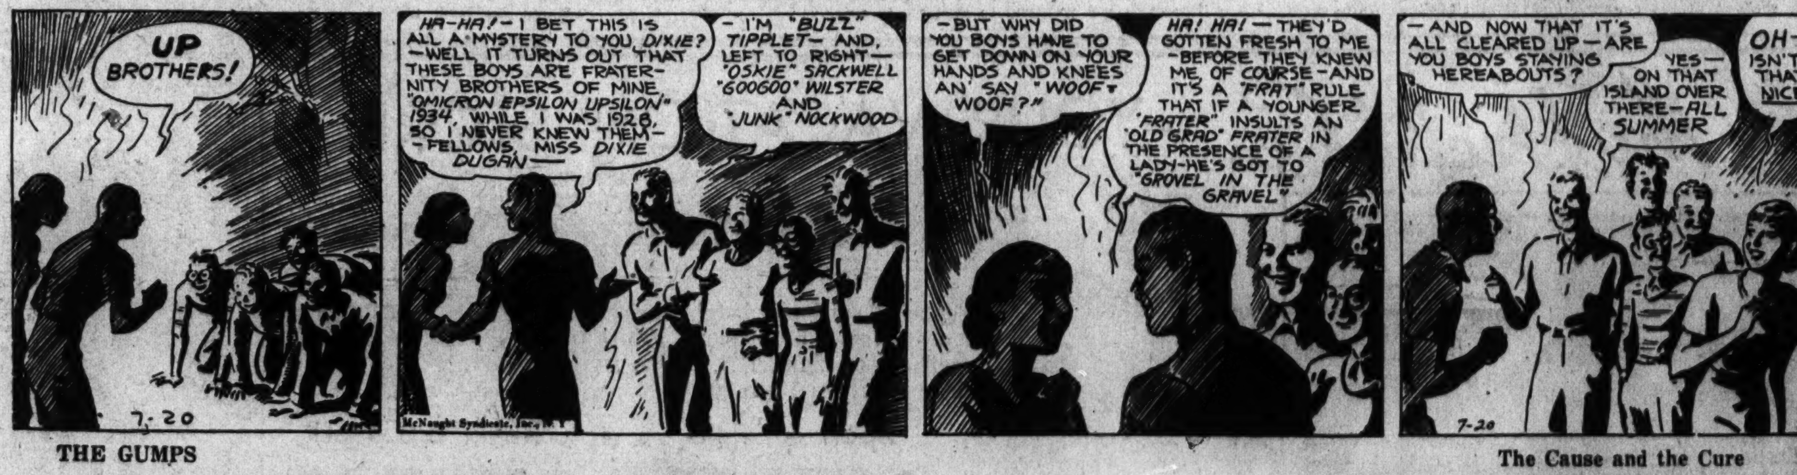
DIXIE DUGAN A Pleasant Outlook By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel



UP BROTHERS!
HA-HA!—I BET THIS IS ALL A MYSTERY TO YOU, DIXIE?—WELL, IT TURNS OUT THAT THESE BOYS ARE FRATERNITY BROTHERS OF MINE, "OMICRON EPSILON UPSILON" 1934 WHILE I WAS 1928, SO I NEVER KNEW THEM—FELLOWS, MISS DIXIE DUGAN—
—I'M "BUZZ" TIPPLET—AND, LEFT TO RIGHT—"OSKIE" SACKWELL "GOOGOO" WILSTER AND "JUNK" NOCKWOOD
—BUT WHY DID YOU BOYS HAVE TO GET DOWN ON YOUR HANDS AND KNEES AN' SAY "WOOF WOOF?"
HA! HA!—THEY'D GOTTEN FRESH TO ME—BEFORE THEY KNEW ME, OF COURSE—AND IT'S A "FRAT" RULE THAT IF A YOUNGER "FRATER" INSULTS AN "OLD GRAD" FRATER IN THE PRESENCE OF A LADY—HE'S GOT TO "GROVEL IN THE GRAVEL" —AND NOW THAT IT'S ALL CLEARED UP—ARE YOU BOYS STAYING HEREABOUTS?
YES—ON THAT ISLAND OVER THERE—ALL SUMMER

SIDNEY SMITH

Walt Mason, Himself

Hark From the Tombs.

Calamities of every kind have come along in recent years until man's grieved in heart and mind, he floods the parlor with his tears. The farmers of my native State were planting corn when May rolled round; it didn't even germinate, it shrunk and shriveled in the ground. The farm lands seem a barren stretch, and farmers wring their hands and wail, "The weather man's a heartless wretch who should be lynched or put in jail." I've seen such ghastly things before, I've seen my orchard dead and sere, I've seen the sheriff at the door, and still I planted things next year. I've seen my hens, once brisk and gay, go reeling past on wobbly legs; they had forgotten how to lay, but still I've always had my eggs. I've seen my cows, that were my pride, once full of pep and smooth as silk, reduced to racks of bone and hide, and still I've always had my milk. Calamities may come along, catastrophes in dread array; and somehow we keep going strong, the breezes blow our tears away. It does not help us to rehearse the dreary tale of grief and groan; our granddads found conditions worse than anything we've ever known.

Scouts Invite 30,000 Boys To Camp Here

Silver Jubilee in 1935 Will Draw Delegates of Every State.

Today—Scout Day at Chevy Chase pool.

Tomorrow—Courts at Camp Wilson.

Monday—Third period opens at Camp Roosevelt.

Wednesday—Community picnic at Camp Roosevelt.

Thursday—Physical examinations at headquarters.

July 28—Courts at Peck Chapel.

August 17, 18, 19—Regional camporee at Herring Run Park, Baltimore.

Scouts all over America are working resolutely on preparations for the huge jamboree to be held in Washington next year to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of scouting.

President Roosevelt issued the invitation to the Scouts to hold their silver jubilee in the Capital, in a radio address last February.

"Of course, it would be physically impossible for us to have the whole membership of the Boy Scouts of America, a million strong, come to Washington at one time," he said, "but I much hope that it will be possible to have every nook and cranny, every section of our Nation represented."

While all details have not yet been worked out, present estimates are that the delegations which will come from every State in the Union will total about 30,000 Scouts and leaders. Each council will be assigned a quota equivalent to one scout for each troop or equivalent group.

The National jamboree will be organized on a regional basis, with a complete camp unit assigned to each region.

Invitations are contemplated to be sent to all foreign Scout organizations affiliated with the International Bureau. Each will be invited to send not to exceed one troop from each nation to the jamboree at its own expense.

Suggested objectives of the National Jamboree are:

To mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of scouting in America.

To promote a new sense of National brotherhood and stimulate friendship among Scouts and Scouters from all over the country, who will camp here together.

To enable Scouts to observe the methods and program of Scouts of other sections of the country, and to provide an exchange of ideas.

To display troop and patrol activities.

To demonstrate troop camping as a means of furnishing adventure and developing the Scout resourcefulness.

To stimulate public interest in scouting.

To provide Scouts with an opportunity to see the Nation's Capital.

To deepen the sense of responsibility and obligation of Scouts as citizens of this Republic.

Camp May Be Extended.

Camp Roosevelt, Boy Scout camp on Chesapeake Bay, originally scheduled to close August 20, may remain in operation until Agust 27 if registrations warrant keeping the camp open for the ninth week, Linn C. Drake, Scout executive and camp director, announced today. The ninth week would accommodate many summer school students, as well as large numbers of campers returning from earlier periods.

Harry Cutler announces another Imu day to be held at Camp Roosevelt August 16.

The third period at Camp Roosevelt will open Monday and the fourth period on August 6.

An Imu style dinner was served at the camp yesterday.

Camp Roosevelt Court.

At the court of honor and review held at Camp Roosevelt July 8, the following Scouts advanced in rank:

Camp Wilson Program Full.

The population of Camp Wilson is steadily growing and enthusiasm for its activities is more pronounced. The tents of new campers are dotting the woods and more Scouts are learning the art of cooking and other scoutcraft.

The camp staff, with the assistance of some of the campers, has built a place of worship in the upper woods called "The Chapel in the Grove." The chapel seats 50, with provision for expansion. Dedication services were held Sunday. French Grimes led the devotions and Norman Woodruff, of the National Baptist Memorial Church, spoke. Dr. Shearer, of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, preached at the vesper service.

Troop 14 Activities.

During the week of July 8 a rifle range has been constructed at Camp Jennings.

Troop 14 visited the Lutheran Home for the Aged last Friday and entertained with an open air camp fire and Scout program.

Four Scouts, under supervision of two troop executives, went to Camp Roosevelt last weekend to visit the eight members of No. 14 who are spending the second period there.

Several hundred neighbors and friends will gather at Camp Roosevelt Wednesday for the annual Community Picnic. There will be fried chicken and other good things to eat.

Water Lilies and Arboretum Promise Wanderbirds Delight

Hike Starts From Shaw's Sunday; Canoe Trip Set Tuesday.

By Robert Shosteck.

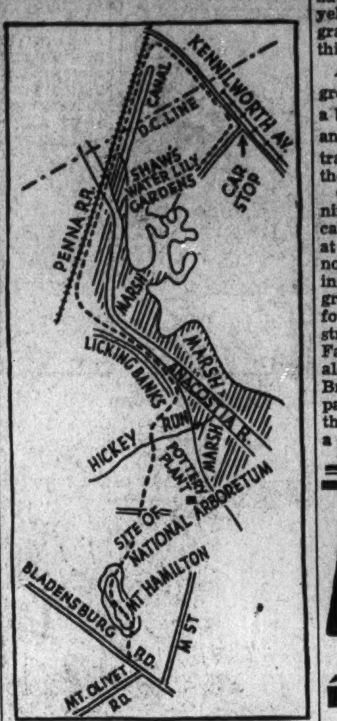
Members of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club are looking forward to the trip to Shaw's water-lily gardens planned for Sunday, and to the canoeing party and corn roast to be held Tuesday evening far up the Potomac beneath the Palisades.

Club members and Post readers interested in going on the Sunday hike will meet at the Treasury at 10:50 a. m., in time for the 11 o'clock car for Kenilworth. Hikers may board this car anywhere along New York avenue or on H street, getting off at Douglas street, one block from the end of the line. The gardens are about a half mile to the left, at the end of the street.

Mr. Shaw, proprietor of this interesting park, informs us that all of the beautiful aquatic plants are now in bloom. The exotic Egyptian and Japanese lotus, the hardy American white water-lily and the tropical blue water-lilies almost choke the pounds. Many species of native frogs cavort on the broad pads of these plants, dextrously nabbing flies with their tongues. The owners of the gardens have introduced many native species of turtles and snakes, all of which find these ponds quite home-like.

Ricebirds' Paradise Lost.

Leaving the ponds, the hikers will return to Kenilworth avenue, which we follow to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, just beyond the District Line. A path bordering the tracks leads for about a mile over the Anacostia River bridge to the trail to Licking Banks. This half-mile of palisade along the river was famous for its colonies of bank swallows. On the other side of the river and beyond the banks stretches a long flat marsh, now drained. This marsh was once the home of thousands of ricebirds which annually flocked to Washington to feast upon the wild rice which covered thousands of acres of marshland. The painted turtle, once so common in these marshes, has likewise disappeared before the onslaught of the steam dredge.



Crossing Hickey Run, the group follows the trail along the abandoned conduits, turning up a trail to the right after crossing a tiny creek via the Conduit Bridge. A dirt road across an abandoned field leads to the long ridge, the highest point of which is known as Mount Hamilton. At the foot of this ridge is a fine old spring surrounded by a clump of silvery barked poplars. Here, a short distance from the pottery plant, the group can lunch. After the meal, a short detour to the pottery plant is planned. Here the hikers can see the evolution of a piece of clay into a beautiful pot or vase.

Leaving the factory, the hikers enter the 800-acre tract set aside by the Federal Government as a National arboretum. Here will be laid out a gigantic testing station in which will be planted, for experimental purposes, every variety of tree that can thrive in this climate. Within this tract may be found every variety of soil, from rich bottoms or clay hillsides to rocky and gravelly slopes.

An excellent trail follows the crest of the ridge to the highest point, a promontory about 250 feet above sea level known as Mount Hamilton. A pure stand of chestnut oaks covers this ridge, one of the few stands of this species in Washington. The wild crabapple, the thorn tree, the paulownia and many park escapes have become naturalized in this area. Both the yellow-eye grass and the blue-eye grass are found in abundance on this crest.

A rapid descent soon brings the group to Bladensburg road, where a bus carries the group to Fifteenth and H streets northeast. Here we transfer for the street car, reaching the Treasury in 20 minutes.

Club members and friends planning to go on the corn roast by canoe, will meet at 7 p. m. Tuesday at Thirty-fourth and M streets northwest, the last stop in Washington of the Rosslyn car line. The group will proceed down Thirty-fourth street over the canal to K street and up K street to the Great Falls Boathouse, about two blocks along the tracks beyond the Key Bridge. Here we hire 17-foot, four-passenger canoes, at 75 cents for the evening. This will be 20 cents a passenger. Those unable to paddle are urged to come along, since but one paddler is necessary for each canoe, even though two would be somewhat faster. The route will be along the right bank of the Potomac to the Three Sisters, through these islets and across to the Virginia shore, which we follow for about a mile to the place selected for the corn roast. Members with musical instruments are urged to bring these along to add to the merriment of the party. The group will return to Georgetown by 11:30 p. m. The trip will be postponed until Wednesday in case of inclement weather.
